WAGE CUT OF 250 MILLION UP TO 'JURY'

Chairmen of Rail Brotherhoods Will Decide on the Course of 2,000,000 Workers

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP)—Railway labor has come face to face with a $250,000,000 wage cut.
dollar wage cut.
The case of the 10 per cent reduction goes to a jury of 800 chairmen of various unions and brotherhoods, listening and deciding for 2,000,000 men on the roads.
The closing argument for the rails is to come from the lips of Daniel Willard, for years a friend of the workers, president of the Baltimore & Ohio and chairman of the committee of nine rail presidents.
Then the jury retires for a vote—a vote to decide whether a 10 per cent voluntary cut is better than a possible 15 per cent reduction threatened by the railroads.
REFUSE SIX-HOUR DAY
A week of bargaining between labor's leaders and the rail committee ended yesterday.
Its result was a general answer from the railroads to a specific proposal of labor that it be assured a year's steady employment to a minimum number of full-time and standby workers.
The carriers declined the guarantee but promised instead to do everything practicable to stabilize employment. They refused to agree to the principle of the six-hour day.
SUNDAY OR MONDAY
The labor chief, Daniel Brown Robertson, would not predict when this decision would be ready. It may not be until Sunday or Monday, he said.
On one side of the situation it must weigh, Labor will find the plight of its jobless. On the other, the diminished returns of the rails, which, the managements say, have lost one-third of their income since the peak year of 1929.
They appealed to labor to take the cut, not only in the interest of credit restoration, but also to help return of prosperity by making purchase of materials needed for repairs.
TWO FACTORS
Lined up against the rails' argument of financial need, labor leaders said, will be these factors:
A hundred, twenty-five million dollar boost from recently increased freight rates.

'HATING' BOY QUIZZED ON BLAZES

Boy of 19, Who Said He "Could Kill Cops," Under Arrest in Worcester

Worcester, Jan. 22—A 19-year-old youth, who "hated" churches "could kill cops," went under examination in the State Hospital here today after his arrest as Worcester's firebug.
After detectives trailed him two days, police captured him in a lively battle near his home.
Police said he admitted he jumped from a window of All Saints' Church a few hours before that edifice was burned, early Wednesday.
"COULD KILL COPS"
They also questioned him on the recent fire in the Pleasant St. Baptist Church and other incendiary fires that caused special guards to be placed around churches and public buildings.
The youth later denied all the statements he made to police.
"I could kill cops if I thought they were after me," police had quoted him.
They added that the youth admitted he "hated churches or anything religious" but denied that he had had any trouble with any church officials.
FOOTPRINT CASTS
He was confronted with plaster casts of footprints taken from the scene of one fire, but refused to look at them, police said.
The guard was still maintained at churches and public buildings today, however, and was extended to nearby towns, when an attempt to burn the Grafton Town Hall was revealed yesterday.
Since Sunday the total loss through incendiary fires has been more than $500,000.

WOMAN FIXES MRS. JUDD'S DEATH HOUR

Tigress Coolly Sees State's Net Drawn Tight About Her Frail Body

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 22 (INS)—Ruth Judd, frail daughter of an Indiana preacher, was painted today as a woman whose fury drove her to kill her best friends and mutilate their bodies, later attempting to conceal the crime by shipping the remains in trunks to Los Angeles.
"Winsome Winnie" of the desert cocktail parties, now pale and drawn faced the second day of testimony in her trial for the trunk murder of red-haired Agnes Lerol, robust nurse of 30, one of the two she confessed murdering.
As she went again today to face the jury of middle-aged farmers and workingmen, Mrs. Judd went without flinching, although 10 state witnesses yesterday had pointed accusing fingers at her.
TIGRESS' RUSE IS TOLD
She was described by Mrs. Nora D. Smith, nurse employed at the same hospital with her and with Mrs. Lerol, as using a ruse to gain time for disposing of the bodies.
Mrs. Smith testified Mrs. Judd telephoned the hospital, saying she was Mrs. Lerol and asking Dr. Percy Brown to be excused for the day.
Another ruse was tried when Mrs. Judd told a transfer man, Richard M. Swartz, that the big packing trunk, now known to have contained both bodies, was filled with books. This explained the weight.
Miss Nace, another nurse, testified she had gone to the home of blonde-grilish Miss Hedwig Samuelson, the other victim, and Mrs. Lerol for dinner and to play bridge. The bridge party broke up about 9:45 p. m., and the two unsuspecting hostesses remained at their apartment, soon to be transformed into shambles.
TOOK BODIES HOME.
Meanwhile, according to the testimony of B. W. Jergemyer, operator of a one-man street car on the Indian school run, Mrs. Judd was approaching the horror scene like a silent nemesis.
She rode on Jergemyer's car to within three blocks of the Lerol-Samuelson duplex apartment. Two hours later she boarded the same car for the return trip after the State contends, a battle in which she shot her erstwhile chums to death and left them lying in their disarranged bedroom.
The State contends Mrs. Judd later took the bodies to her home in a single trunk, dressed Miss Samuelson's body and repacked the corpses.

THICK FOG TIES HARBOR CRAFT

A thick blanket of fog tied up liners and fishing vessels today until rain dispelled it and a shift of the wind into the west gave promise of partial clearing.
Eight vessels returned to the Fish Pier to await better conditions after making a start for the banks, and the New York steamer, Robert E. Lee crept slowly through the murk all the way from the canal to its berth here.
The end of the first month of winter found no snow in Rhode Island, Connecticut or Massachusetts, only about six inches in the New Hampshire mountain region and hardly two inches anywhere in Vermont.
Conditions are highly unfavorable for the water supply, as there is neither snow nor frost to store up the moisture, which consequently is evaporating rapidly.
More rain is due tonight, according to the weather man with lower temperatures Saturday.
For the fifth consecutive week-end the Boston Maine railroad's "snow train" was cancelled.

TAX MIGHT KILL GOLDEN GOOSE

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—A warning that an increase in federal taxes on cigarettes might bring the government less instead of more money was put today before the House ways and means committee.
Junius Parker, representing the Tobacco Merchants' Association, testified that during the last six months there has been a steady decline in cigarette consumption as compared with the same months of the preceding year. An additional tax burden, he said, necessarily would be passed on to the consumer and might cause further decreases.
Parker said cigarette manufacturers already pay half of the money they collect to the federal government. Out of the remaining half is paid all expenses, including general, local and income taxes.

More Cutouts Here; Fine Chance for $700 Prizes

The third large shipment of free Fisher Body Model coach cutouts in the Boston Evening American's $700 contest have arrived.
They will be distributed to the first comers as long as the supply lasts. More than 100,000 already have been distributed, and the demand is tremendous. It is the most popular award ever given away by a newspaper. The cutouts are printed in several colors on cardboard.
Remember, the Boston Evening American is not only placing this colorful miniature within reach of all who want it, but is offering $700 in prizes to those assembling the neatest coaches from the cutouts.
The resulting coach is an actual working model with strong, true-running wheels, front axle that really pivots, doors that close and latch, and springs that really cushion the graceful body.
There are 85 prizes, divided as follows and awarded by a committee of artists and experts to be announced later.

Boy's first prize	$100
Girl's first prize	100
Teacher of boy winner	50
Teacher of girl winner	50
Second prize, either sex	50
Third prize, either sex	25
Fourth prize, either sex	15
Fifth to 15 prizes, either sex, 11 prizes of $10 each	110
Sixteenth to 35 prizes, either sex, 20 prizes of $5 each	100
Thirty-fifth to 85 prizes, either sex, 50 prizes of $2 each	100

Any boy or girl not more than 16 years old is eligible to contest, excepting the families of employes of the Boston Evening American.
The cutouts are free. All you have to do is to ask your nearest newsdealer or American agency for one, or send five cents to cover postage to the Cutout Contest Editor Boston Evening American.

Hit, Run Car Also a Purse Snatcher

Not only did an autoist injure Miss Delia Sherry of Gale st., Malden today, but he drove away with Miss Sherry's pocketbook.
Miss Sherry was struck as she alighted from a bus at Pleasant and Summer sts., Malden. Her pocketbook flew from her hands as she fell and it landed on the running board.
Miss Sherry was badly bruised. She said the pocketbook contained $5 and personal papers.

Jail Can't Hold Him; Departs 14 Times

Milledgeville, Ga., Jan. 22 (INS)—Leland Harvey, "Houdini of Georgia prisons" and his pal, Jack Martin, escaped again from the death cell of the Georgia state prison farm here today.
It was the fourteenth time Harvey had made good his boast that "no jail can hold me."

Coast Guards Seek 2 Missing Cape Men

Provincetown, Jan. 22—Manuel Williams and Joe Vincent, veterans of the Provincetown dory fishing fleet, were sought today by Coast Guard boats because of their failure to return to port last night.
They were last sighted hauling trawl about 20 miles off Peaked Hill bar buoy.

BRITAIN FACES TARIFF CRISIS

London, Jan. 22 (INS)—Official confirmation of serious dissension in the British Cabinet was given today in a communique by Prime Minister MacDonald.
The statement admitted a split on the tariff problem, but said decision had been reached to allow those ministers disagreeing with the majority to vote and speak on their own views. Therefore, the Cabinet will not resign.
"Essentially united on all other matters of policy," the communique said, "the Cabinet believes this special provision best interprets the will of the nation. The Cabinet is deeply impressed with the paramount importance of maintaining national unity in the presence of grave problems."

NORMAN WAITE KILLED IN FALL

Norman S. Waite, a wealthy realtor and pioneer in the development of Brighton 40 years ago, was killed today when he fell from the roof of the three-story building at 373 Cambridge st., Allston.
He had gone to the roof with a mason to direct some repairs and is believed to have slipped.
He fell into an alley on the Wilton st. side of the building. He was dead on arrival at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.
Waite was 62. His home was at 9 High Rock rd., Brighton. He was a partner in the realty firm of Taft & Waite.
He was a graduate of the University of Michigan and held membership in the Boston Real Estate Exchange and the University Club. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

South End Woman Badly Cut by Mirror

Claiming she had cut her right wrist deeply on a broken mirror in her home, Mrs. Gladys Fiorinno, 27, of Tremont st., South End, was taken to City Hospital early today by Miss Gertrude Weiner, of Davis st., South End.
Both women said they were in Mrs. Fiorinno's home when the accident occurred but refused to give further details.

Maid Writes Note, Then Turns on Gas

Fall River, Jan. 22 (AP)—Dorothy Martin, 19, house maid, committed suicide by gas during the night in the home of her employer, J. Paul Smith.
She left a note indicating her intention to take her life. She formerly resided in the Deaconess Home here.

DRIVE FOR DIRECT RELIEF OF JOBLESS IS

PROGRESSIVES IN CONGRESS TO PUSH FIGHT

Will Seek Passage of 375 Million Bill Despite Hoover's Opposition

Washington, Jan. 22 (INS)—A drive for direct federal relief of the hungry unemployed will be launched in the Senate as soon as Congress enacts President Hoover's two-billion-dollar credit bill for aiding business.

Progressives from both major parties announced today they would press for prompt action on the non-partisan LaFollette-Costigan bill, appropriating $375,000,000 for distribution among the states in helping to feed, clothe and shelter the jobless.

The bill will be fought by administration leaders, since President Hoover opposes direct federal relief.

"Testimony before the Senate manufactures committee demonstrates the need for immediate action on the part of the federal government if we are to prevent terrific suffering," said Senator LaFollette (R-) of Wisconsin, co-author of the bill.

Senator Costigan (D) of Colorado, Democratic author of the measure, shared LaFollette's view.

"The bill is constructed along administrative lines which will safeguard public expenditures through locally established and effective social welfare agencies," said Costigan. "Congress can ill afford to disregard the helpless unemployed in an hour in which it is showing the utmost generosity toward financial institutions."

As against their appeals for immediate action on the bill, Senator Watson, Republican floor leader, merely said:

"I am against the bill."

The relief bill would set aside $125,000,000 for contributions to the states between its passage and next July 1. Another $250,000,000 would be made available for like contributions during the fiscal year, ending July 1, 1933.

BROOKLINE ART COLLECTOR MISSING

A. L. Brackett, 73, Mysteriously Vanished From His Home Over a Week Ago

Mysterious disappearance of Arthur L. Brackett, 75, wealthy Brookline resident and art collector, was revealed today while private detectives combed the east for clues to his whereabouts, dead or alive.

Despite the combined efforts of detectives and police, working secretly on request of his wife, his absence is as complete a mystery as it was when he dropped from sight, eight days ago. His home is at 22 Thorndike st.

Mrs. Brackett told a Boston Evening American reporter today that she could account in no way for his disappearance. She has abandoned a foul play theory. Search of hospitals and morgues has failed, and her only thought now is that he might have gone to Canada for a rest.

Mrs. Brackett disclosed that the foul play theory, based on the fact that he wore a large diamond in a ring, was abandoned when she discovered that he had disposed of the ring shortly before his disappearance.

A son, Donald Brackett, who is high in financial circles in New York, came here to help organize the hunt but has been forced by business duties to return to that city.

"Just prior to the day he vanished, my husband was worrying considerably over financial matters and I have an idea he may have gone to Canada for a vacation and rest," said Mrs. Brackett.

A friend of the family said Brackett left home January 13 to go to Boston by trolley, although the family has cars. According to this friend he has not been seen since, but Mrs. Brackett said it was a week ago today that he vanished.

Although resting comfortably after his operation Wednesday, Rep. William P. Hickey of South Boston was barred from all visitors today at City Hospital so that a complete rest might hasten his recovery.

HIGHER POSTAGE RATE LOSES

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—The postoffice department has given up hops of obtaining postal rate increases as part of the administration's method of reducing the treasury deficit.

F. A. Tilton, assistant postmaster-general in charge of fiscal affairs, said today the matter was "a dead issue" so far as the postoffice department was concerned.

Postmaster General Brown has recommended to Congress that rates on non-local first-class mail be increased from 2 to 3 cents and that the 1921 war measure rates be resumed on bulk second-class matter.

Opposition has arisen on Capitol Hill to the increases and approval of the legislation was considered unlikely.

Victims Hacked With Ice Pick, Then Shot

New York, Jan. 22 (INS)—A savage, Mafia vendetta-like killing of one man and stabbing of another was carried out in Queens today.

After hacking at the bodies of Nicholas Somma and Michael Annunziato with an ice-pick dozens of times, four men shot Somma to death and left the other victim unconscious on the floor. Two women and two men, whose house the victims were visiting, were locked in the kitchen.

Senator Capper, in a signed article, calls attention to the fact that Milwaukee, Wisconsin, is about the most prosperous, best managed city in the United States, having in its treasury an unexpended balance of six million dollars, one million more than a year ago.

Milwaukee has no crime problem, thanks to a police force that accepts no bribes and property is assessed for only 70 per cent of its real value.

Most amazing of all, Milwaukee, in which the late Victor L. Berger, an able and honest man, built up a powerful Socialist party, has for years been ruled by Socialists, with a Socialist mayor.

How can you explain anything as strange as that?

o'clock came around, according to law of the sovereign State of New York, they had to get rid of a little mosquito named Francis Crowley.

It was a very neat job. The Empire State did it like nobody's business.

He was so "hopped up" that he didn't know whether he was going to his finale or just walking into another stage of his silly young life.

You have heard of controversies about whether they dope them or not—THEY DO!

It was my 30th execution. With me is la exactly clinical. I wrote yesterday that this boy would die game. Out of 30 they all wound up that way. But I never saw anybody go like this kid did.

A DEADLY EVENT.

It was a solemn, deadly event. We were all there, newspapermen. We don't enjoy it. It's one of those jobs that's pushed on us, like a doctor who has to cut up bodies because that is his racket. Seeing men pay the penalty for their mortal sins is no novelty.

I arrived at Sing Sing; the driver left me at the front door of the executive building. I could do nothing but walk into the warden's office. Lawes had slipped on the ice and, warden or no warden, he is only human. So he didn't show up.

His serious-faced secretary officiated. I was not so deeply impressed because executions, which are recurrent manifestations of the human intent of squaring the wrong-angled triangles of life, have been my daily experience.

We foregathered in the ante-room, the coppers frisked us for fear that we might have on our persons cameras. We didn't.

After plenty of delays we were let into the death chamber. It was a very little theater, including police, physicians and officials, I guess there weren't 40 in there.

We all removed our hats, because even reporters in the presence of death pay respects to a crisis.

The coppers moved nervously about.

COPPERS NERVOUS

At the far end of the room there seemed to be some activity. We sat or stood (I stood) awaiting a great story.

The coppers seemed to be more nervous than we were.

At the remote end of the little chamber a door opened. Two policemen stepped in. The door swung behind them. It opened again. A priest walked in. Around his neck was a purple surplice. He was tremendously agitated.

Behind him came a little, fat boy. He had upset Manhattan Island. He wore a white shirt. And he looked like my boy or your boy. He was quite alive. He looked the little room over, and he said:

"I don't mind."

His life was three minutes to go. And he didn't mind.

He found the chair without any direction. There was a smile on his face.

In a feeble, game way he waved his right hand to the sergeant against the wall and bade him hello.

I have seen many guys die game. Some of them have thought of some swell ideas to pull at the last moment. But Crowley was the only one I ever heard get specific about the machinery of the law that was knocking him off, when he said:

"I don't think it's tight enough down below." (Meaning the straps.)

So the great empire state paid off, and Francis Crowley is now no longer with us. He murdered a copper, he was a mad boy, and I suppose we're better off without him.

WHO'S TO BLAME?

But as I stood there in the death chamber of the Big House—and the great State of New York rubbed out, I couldn't help but think—just a little fat boy.

He crooked a copper. He was a robber. But, he was a product of Manhattan Island. Any of us could have been Francis Crowley!

When he stiffened against the black belts, with a smile on his young pan, looking reporters who represented the world in the face, there was something about the expression of that kid's face that made me ask myself:

"Am I not to blame?"

The illegitimate child of a servant girl and a copper, the frantic kid, raised up" with no breeding and no training, passed out like a gentleman—and he was not born to be one.

The great Empire State is washed up of Francis Crowley. But was it his fault or ours?

"Straps Aren't Tight Enough," Said Crowley as He Sat in Chair

By SEYMOUR BERKSON

Sing Sing Prison, Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 22 (US)—As nonchalantly as he made a target for bullets of virtually every policeman that crossed his path of crime, Francis (Two-Gun) Crowley, 20-year-old youth, went to his death in the electric chair at 11:07 last night for killing a patrolman.

He strode fearlessly into the death chamber, grinned broadly at the 25 newspapermen assembled to watch his execution, greeted a prison sergeant with a cheery "Hello, Sarg" and then in a more solemn voice said:

"My last words are that I send my love to my foster mother. Tell her I appreciate everything she has done."

But those were not his last words. As the prison chaplain who had led him into the death chamber read some prayers and the guards adjusted some straps on the electric chair and the wired helmet on the young slayer's head, he said casually:

"Say, Sarg, I don't believe those straps down here are tight enough."

They were tightened, a mask was thrown over his face and he said no more. Soon a groaning noise was heard in an adjoining room.

Crowley lunged forward in the seat, straining the straps and gripping his fists as 2000 volts of death-dealing electricity sped through his body.

There was a wisp of smoke that curled up from his head—and the current was turned off. Two physicians then stepped up, opened Crowley's white shirt at the neck, pushed aside a little Catholic relic he wore around his neck, and tested his heart and lungs with stethoscopes.

He was dead.

And thus ended two-gun Crowley's brief and sordid career that achieved its only peak of the spectacular when Crowley shot it out with his life-long enemies—the police.

Crowley ate a huge supper last night of turkey with all the trimmings and chewed gum unconcernedly as the hours separating him from death ticked slowly by.

He forestalled the contemplated romantic prelude of a final meeting with his last sweetheart, 18-year-old Helen Walsh, who was here all day sobbing and pleading for a last chance to say good-bye to him.

When he was asked whether he wished to see her, he snarled:

"Naw, sweethearts never done me no good."

Mrs. Crowley, a wrinkled old lady who raised the boy since she took him from the orphanage where his unmarried mother had left him, tried to cheer him as they looked at each other through double bars in the death house. But about all she managed to say was:

"Don't worry. Sonny, God will take care of you."

And he drawled back indifferently:

Ultimatum by Jap Admiral

Shanghai, Jan. 22 (AP)—Strained relations between Chinese and Japanese here appeared worse today as a Japanese admiral issued a virtual ultimatum from his flagship in the harbor and Chinese merchants sent an appeal to Nanking for more troops.

The admiral demanded immediate suppression of organizations hostile to Japanese residents. Chinese shopkeepers formed a "protective corps" and asked the National government to provide them with guns.

The trouble arose from recent clashes in which two persons were killed. The appeal to Nanking, drafted by the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, asked for protection "against the savage actions of Japanese rioters."

Ex-Pres. Chiang Returns to Nanking

Nanking, Jan. 22 (AP)—Former President Chiang Kai-Shek, who left for his estate in the provinces immediately after the resignation of his government a short time ago, arrived here again this afternoon.

He declined to comment on the purpose of his visit or on the Chinese political situation.

Fall River Man Hurt in Accident

HUMANIST REVOLTS AT DEATH CHAIR

By CHARLES FRANCIS POTTER

Founder and Leader of the First Humanist Society of New York, Who Witnessed the Execution of Francis (Two-Gun) Crowley

New York, Jan. 22—I wish every man and woman who believes in capital punishment could have witnessed what I have just seen.

I am hoping that before long television will be used to broadcast throughout the United States an accurate picture of the death struggles of a human being strapped in the electric chair.

I wish I could make you, who are reading this paragraph now, see what I have just seen, the chair, clumsy and uncouth, covered with straps and fastenings and with its wires leading to the control board where the tremendous electric power on tap looms in one's consciousness all the more horrible because we cannot see it.

Then visualize a human being strapped in that chair.

Brave as he may be, every cell in his body, every nerve, every muscle protests against the grotesque indecency and the violation of the bodily sanctity.

When the current is turned on, the body leaps and plunges against the straps.

It is as if an ordinary man suddenly became a superhuman creature. The very current which is used to destroy it gives it a temporary new life, and every man in the death chamber feels a grip of terror in his heart, for fear this monstrous thing will escape and take vengeance upon us, because we are official representatives of the society which has perpetrated this thing.

Francis Crowley is dead.

He was only a boy, brought up in an environment which would turn a saint into a crook.

I wonder if we have any right, as long as we bring up boys under our present social conditions, to take their lives when they develop the traits which those very social conditions force upon them. And a great many others are wondering that, too.

Peggy Allenby

Miss Theresa De Leveretti at, West Eno, took the witness stand in the Suffolk superior court and declared that her uncle, Andrew W. De Gregorio, 53, of New York, rushed at her mother and grabbed her by the throat and that her brother, Joseph, 21, pulled him away, and took his mother to another room.

Joseph is on trial charged with manslaughter in shooting his uncle, Andrew, December 6.

1 Dead, 3 Wounded in Lucknow Riot

Lucknow, India, Jan. 22—One man was killed and three wounded when police fired upon a crowd at Jagannathpur. A communique said Jagannathpur is under armed guard.

In Calcutta, a bomb was hurled by Nationalist sympathizers at district Magistrate Quinton as he rode through the city. He escaped injury.

Damage Feared in Guatemala Quake

Guatemala City, Jan. 22 (AP)—More than three-score earthquake shocks which sent a part of the Republic of Guatemala into a shiver yesterday, interrupted communications. It was feared today that considerable damage had been wrought around the two volcanoes, Fuego and Acatenango, 50 miles distant.

Ten of the shocks were heavy and later there were upwards of 50 rumbling tremors. Ashes from the volcanoes fell on Guatemala City.

BARRY WOOD PLAYS 'GUINEA PIG' ROLE IN HARVARD TESTS

Romance Is Aided by Drop of Price in Floral Gifts

Romance has a good chance to thrive these days if the cut rates of local florists are to be an index of the chivalrous impulse.

Evening corsages are offered by leading Back Bay shops at two-thirds to one-half as much as 1931.

Orchids, time honored symbol of exotic luxury, may be bought in the most exclusive shops for as low as two dollars. Four dollars was the minimum last year.

Competition with the fragrant white gardenia is responsible for tumbling the haughty orchid from its throne.

The gardenia prices, too, have changed and are selling for 35 cents.

HARVARD STAR 'GUINEA PIG' FOR SCIENCE

Barry Wood Subjects Self to Blood Tests; Plans to Become Doctor Himself

By LEIGH MATTESON
International News Service Science Writer.
(Copyright, 1932)

Barry Wood, Harvard's "wonder boy," emerges from his cocoon of scholastic and athletic splendor as a volunteer "guinea pig" and humble student of science.

In his recent spare time he has been presenting himself at a laboratory bath as a subject on which important fatigue experiments may be made and as an interested student of the tests and the technical methods involved.

This, of course, is in addition to starring in football, hockey, baseball and tennis, getting A's in all his studies except once when he got a "B," functioning as marshal of the senior class and president of the student council, winning scholarships, being an alternate on the Davis Cup tennis team and helping the Crusaders sent out wet propaganda at the university.

SCORES ALL GOALS

It was only Wednesday night that Wood personally made the only three goals the Harvard hockey team managed to score against the stronger team of the Boston hockey club, which scored six goals, and this week they are conducting mid-year exams at the university.

But Wood finds time with his interest in the fatigue tests, blood chemistry, air hunger and such.

For this already ultra-eminent scion of an old Boston family plans to become a physician—that is, if Johns Hopkins medical school permits him to enroll at the institution. That is exactly the way Wood put it:

"I plan to go to Johns Hopkins medical school, but of course, I cannot say I am going, for my application for enrollment has not been accepted yet."

Wood refused to discuss his informal studies at the laboratory of Dr. Lawrence Henderson of the Harvard medical school, or to comment on the fatigue studies made there with himself as a subject.

WATCHES DOCTORS

"The men at the laboratory have been good enough to let me putter around there and pick up a little information that might come in handy when I become a medical student," he said, "Already I know that I should not make experiments not completed."

Wood got interested in the work at the laboratory when he and other members of the football squad volunteered to permit extraction of blood from their veins prior to, during and after football games.

The extracted fluid was then analyzed with a view to noting the blood chemistry changes induced by hard tackles, forward passes and drop kicks.

Permitted to watch the analyses as well as the extractions, Wood, with the prospect of finishing at Harvard this June as the first letter man and with the highest scholastic honors ever heaped up by any Crimson athlete, decided medicine and surgery would offer problems worth tackling.

SUBJECT OF TESTS.

With his customary zest he decided to get a little experience in this vast field before he began in earnest as a medical student, he proposed himself as suitable subject for further fatigue studies, and suggested that he be granted permission to watch as experiments on other subjects were conducted.

Both the proposal and suggestion were granted. He promptly became the prize "Guinea Pig" of the laboratory and a great watcher from the sidelines, for once.

"He hopes by fleeing to Johns Hopkins to escape from the fame newspapers have given him, to bury himself in work and routine, to escape the 'conquering hero' legend," said Dr. Henderson.

Young Wood is 21, stands six feet one inch in his bare feet and weighs 175 pounds.

TRIO CAPTURED BY LONE POLICEMAN

JOHN COGGER JOSEPH FINEBERG HOWARD DONOVORO OFFICER SUTTON

Three young gunmen suspects captured single-handed by Patrolman Oda Sutton of Revere. Officer Sutton is shown standing at end of his lined-up captives. The latter are John Cogger, 17, of Revere; Joseph Fineberg, 20, Boston, and Howard Donavoro, 21, Revere. They were seized while seated in a parked auto, which police say was stolen. Two of the youths were armed. Police are seeking to link them to recent crimes in this vicinity and several outside policemen came to view them. (Staff photo).

ASKS $30,000 IN N. H. SUIT FOR LOVE

Mrs. Jennie Wentworth, Socially Prominent, Alleged to Have Ruled Son's House

Concord, N. H., Jan. 22—Charging that her elderly and socially prominent mother-in-law "influenced" her husband in the size of his family, Mrs. Bessie W. Wentworth, 56, of Portland, Me., opened a $30,000 alienation suit today against Mrs. Jennie Wentworth, 68, of Rochester.

Three daughters of the younger Mrs. Wentworth, one of whom is Mrs. Vera Webster, 28, of Boston, appeared ready to testify for their mother.

Mrs. Wentworth was separated from Roscoe C. Wentworth, Portland bond salesman, on a claim that he deserted her in 1928 after "continued opposition of his mother to the marriage that took place in 1900."

SUED HER IN FLORIDA

With former Gov. Samuel D. Felker of New Hampshire defending the elder Mrs. Wentworth, and the Portland law firm of Harry E. Nixon appearing for the plaintiff, the hearing opened in U. S. district court before Judge George F. Morris and a jury.

"My mother-in-law used her influence to try to and did prevent more children in my family by continually keeping my husband in mind that no more children should be born," Mrs. Wentworth charged i nher declaration.

"She financed her son and induced him t ogo to Florida to seek a divorce, compelling me to spend my own money to go there and flight the action.

ALWAYS ANTAGONISTIC

"No divorce was granted but I obtained a legal separation because of desertion in 1929.

"Over the long period of years since our marriage in 1900, my mother-in-law was continually opposed to our marriage."

The court action was a surprise to even the close friends of the elder Mrs. Wentworth, who has made her home in the exclusive section of Rochester for many years.

Hubby Flees to Her

Mrs. Lillian Beham, San Francisco debutante of a few years ago, whose husband, Harry Behan, alias Phillips, alias Lesser, former Boston salesman, has fled The Great Meadows State Farm in Comstock, N. Y., presumably to her. He was serving time for robbing Mrs. Howard Johnson. Photo shows Mrs. Behan at the time of her acquittal in the same case.

EX-BOSTON MAN FLEES PRISON

Harry Beham, alias Harry Phillips and Harry Lesser, former Boston salesman, escaped from Great Meadow State Prison in Comstock, N. Y., last night, and Boston authorities are on the lookout for him.

Beham, with nearly three years of a sentence yet to serve for the robbery of Mrs. Howard Johnson, wife of the lyricist of "Tangerine" and other musical comedies, was swallowed up in a snowstorm as he fled the prison.

He was a trusty and had been working in the milk house, from which he walked away unnoticed.

Beham, who used Phillips and Lesser as allases, was sentenced in November, 1928, for robbery of $9,000 in jewelry from Mrs. Johnson, a former Boston cabaret singer, in a New York hotel.

Beham was also questioned in the murders of Louise Lawson and Dorothy King, "Broadway Butterflies," strangled to death by someone who used the same method of overcoming his victim as Beham used on Mrs. Johnson.

$349,000 LOSS IN GLEMBY GEMS

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Police were without suspects today in the $349,000 jewel robbery in the home of Harry Glemby, art collector and hairnet manufacturer.

Attempt of Mrs. Glemby to identify the robbers from pictures in the Rogues' gallery failed.

The three robbers entered the Glemby home in 67th st. yesterday in the guise of bootleggers with gin for Mr. Glemby.

Glemby was taking a shower. Mrs. Glemby was telephoning. A maid let the man in. When she would not call Glemby from his bath the robbers drew guns. A butler attempted to stop them and was felled by a blow.

Mr. and Mrs. Glemby, the butler, the maid and the butler's 17-year-old daughter were bound after the jewels had been scooped out of a wall safe.

MAYOR MURPHY SUED IN FIGHT

The bitter fight between Edward and Walter Jafferian, brothers, of Haverhill, and Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville, over a miniature golf course permit is before Middlesex Superior Court again, a damage suit brought by the Jafferians against the mayor being on trial before Judge Abraham Pinanski and a jury.

After the Jafferians had been denied a permit by Mayor Murphy to conduct a miniature golf course in Somerville, they carried their case to the Supreme Court and obtained a writ of mandamus which required the mayor to conduct "a fair and impartial investigation" of their application.

In compliance with the order of the court, Mayor Murphy reported that he had made such an investigation, as a result of which he had again denied the Jafferians the permit which they sought. The brothers now seek to recover damages from the mayor for alleged expenses incurred.

3 MORE FREED IN AUTO FRAUDS

Dr. Louis Mendoza of the North End and Vincent and Rosario Congolo, brothers, were freed in Suffolk court today on sealed verdicts after trial for nearly a week for conspiracy to defraud insurance companies through false automobile claims.

Two other defendants, Enrico Magliocaro and Michael D'Ambrosio, were found not guilty yesterday in directed verdicts.

The jury deliberated until 2 a. m. on the cases of the Consolo brothers and Dr. Mendoza.

U. S. 'Danced and Now It Must Settle With Fiddler'

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Gates W. McGarrah, president of the World Bank for International Settlements, arrived for a visit today on the liner Europa, declaring that in the United States the last few months I had seen a decided growth of confidence."

He said Americans "have got to make up their minds to pay taxes and stop issuing bonds."

He said the country "danced two or three years, and now they've got to pay the fiddler. They can do it, too. I have no worries about America."

He said his opinion always had been that a sales tax was one of the most just forms of taxation.

ONE MAN TAKES 3 GUNMEN

Revere police today awaited possible identification by police of other cities of three youths, two of them armed, who were captured last night by a lone patrolman.

The trio were arrested while parked in Campbell ave. late last night in a stolen car. It is believed they were lying in wait to hijack a load of liquor or ambush an enemy in a gang or liquor feud.

The three gave their names as Howard W. Donavoro, 21, of Revere Beach Boulevard; John W. Cogger, 19, of Walnut st., both of Revere, and Joseph Bruno, alias Fineberg, 20, of West Cedar st., Boston. Donavoro and Cogger were charged with carrying loaded revolvers without a permit while all three are charged with larceny of the auto.

LORD READING SHOWS GAIN

London, Jan. 22 (AP)—Word received from Egypt today said the temperature of Lord Reading, former Foreign Secretary, who is ill in Luxor, was lower today and his pulse better.

He is suffering from ordinary bronchial trouble, it was stated, and his condition was said to be not so serious as first reported.

No special significance was placed on the fact that an airplane was used to carry a doctor and nurse from Cairo to his bedside, because that is the ordinary procedure in Egypt in such cases.

VICTIM HELD UP BY OWN GUN

Newport, R. I., Jan. 22—For the third time within a year, Samuel Feigelman, Thames st. jeweler, has been a holdup victim, but today's holdup has him really peeved.

One of the gunmen used Feigelman's gun to hold him at bay while the second took three diamond rings, valued at $228, and $500 in cash.

Feigelman told police that one of the men came to his store several days ago to look at diamond rings. When he returned today with a companion and asked to see the rings Feigelman opened the safe.

HERRIOT TAKES A RAP AT U. S.

Paris, Jan. 22 (AP)—Criticism of the United States by former Premier Herriot in the chamber of deputies keyed France for another address late today by Premier Laval.

Herriot was cheered wildly. He declared flatly that France cannot abandon her right to reparations secured by contracts freely entered into and added:

"The United States, which often gives us advice, would gain by being closer to us in international negotiations aimed at uniting the whole world to assure peace."

BOY 'LONE WOLF' ADMITS BREAKS

Arrested today in his room in Sullivan sq., Charlestown, where police reported finding four revolvers and a large amount of loot, Charles Rice, 16, is alleged to have confessed to 15 successful breaks while operating as a "lone wolf."

But according to police he was a "dud" as soon as he worked with a pal. The boy's arrest followed the capture at gunpoint by Patrolman Patrick J. Kelly of Harry Myles, 24, under the counter in the men's clothing store of James Gallagher, 50 Warren st., Roxbury.

Rice is alleged to have fled from the same place just before Kelly appeared.

Myles, who lives in Zeigler st., Roxbury, was charged with breaking and entering, and Rice was held for juvenile court. His breaks, police say, were in Charlestown, the Back Bay, the South End and Roxbury. In one of these, according to police, his slimness enabled him to slip between the bars protecting a store window.

DEFIES SHOTS AND RACES ON

A three-mile chase that included police shots and a route through marshland ended early today in Revere with the arrest of Spencer Walden, 25, of Washington st., Dorchester.

Patrolman Fred Campbell of the Metropolitan police commandered the automobile of "Jimmy" Gallagher, Boston orchestra leader, after he fired several shots at the Walden car on Revere Beach blvd.

A dozen corners were turned in the chase that led through Beachmont, back on the boulevard and finally toward the Winthrop line.

Walden, Officer Campbell testified later in Chelsea court, veered off the road into marshland and drove perilously near three creeks without miring his car.

A detour by the pursuers brought the arrest of Walden as he drove out of the farsh on to Summer st., Revere.

Before Judge Cutler in Chelsea court, Walden pleaded guilty to driving while under the influence of liquor, refusing to stop at the command of a nofficer, drunkenness and driving without registration in his possession.

He appealed a sentence of three months on the drunken driving charge and a $50 fine for refusing to stop.

Receivers for N. H. Mine Company Asked

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 22 (AP)—Receivers for the American Mineral Products Co., Inc., operating mining and milling plants at Cold River and Alstead, N. H., were sought today by George N. Dulin of Johnstown, N. Y.

Dulin, who holds class B preferred and common stock, alleges the concern is unable to pay obligations. The company, which owns feldspar, quarts and mica quarries has listed assets valued at $700,000, of which $581,000 consists of mining leaseholds.

CAPITAL AWAITS MYSTERY VISIT OF GOV. LONG

Washington, Jan. 22—Official and social Washington will get its first glimpse next week of the most picturesque figure in modern American politics—Governor Huey P. Long of Louisiana.

Louisiana's stormy petrel, who has just triumphed over his foes in his latest political battle, is packing his bed for a trip to the national capital, it was learned from authoritative sources today.

VISIT A MYSTERY

The nature of his mission, however, remained shrouded in mystery. Even his dynamic young governor's closest friends in Washington were surprised to learn that he is leaving the State.

It may be that Long, having elected his protege, O. K. Allen, as his successor in the Governor's chair, will come to claim his vacant seat in the Senate, to which he was elected in 1930.

Because of the threat of Lieut.-Gov. St. Cyr, once Long's ally and now his bitterest political enemy, to turn all Long appointees out of office and wreck the governor's political machine, Long announced that he would not take the oath of United States senator until after his term as governor expired next May.

HINT AT "TRUCE"

Some of Long's friends said it was possible that the governor has patched up a truce with his political foes after giving them a sound trouncing. If this is so, they said, Long would probably begin his six-year term as senator at once.

In fact, Long himself told one of his colleague-to-be in the Senate in New Orleans last summer:

"When I get to Washington, you're going to see me kick up some dust."

'CASH REGISTER' IS JUDGE IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP)—Frank J. Loesch, who served on the Wickersham commission and who was re-elected for the fifth time as president of the Chicago Crime Commission, despite the fact he will be 80 years old in April.

Without mentioning any names, Loesch spoke his mind in his annual report concerning certain members of the city's judiciary, declaring that one municipal judge had acquired the nickname of "Cash Register."

"To what depths," he asked, "must a judge have sunk to earn such a sobriquet?"

He referred to the "abysmal ignorance" of another judge and to the "mountebank performance" of a third.

"So far as I can recall," he said, "out of the 333 gang murders committed in the last four years in this county not a single murderer was brought to trial, and all of those 333 murders passed into history as unsolved crimes."

OPEN N. Y. BOAT SHOW TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Several hundred thousand dollars worth of motorboats, sail boats and yacht cruisers are at anchor in Grand Central Palace for the 27th annual show, which opens tonight.

One cruiser, which was to have been shown, was delayed, by oysters, but the show has plenty of others ranging in size from 24 feet up to 50 feet and in price from $2500 up to $26,500.

The delayed craft was a 27-foot cruiser constructed especially for the showing by the Colonial Boat Company at Port Norris, N. J., whose plant is adjacent to an oyster shelling factory. When the craft starts down to be taken up the East river and thence overland to the Grand Central palace, a mountain of oyster shells blocked its way.

At last reports a crew of 14 men was shoveling desperately to dig out a path.

Manufacturers claim the yachting sport is inexpensive, all things considered. One estimated the cost of operating a 24-foot cruiser, which has sleeping quarters, kitchen and other accommodations at $350 for the season. This included 1000 miles of cruising, insurance, winter storage, spring painting and overhauling.

RECORDS SET IN SCHOOL JOB

Two records were established when the Gen. Clarence R. Edwards school building at Walker st., Charlestown, was completed yesterday, four months in advance of schedule, and Contractor Matthew Cummings returned to the city savings of $853.63 below the contract price.

Although he won the contract with a bid of $543,800, the contractor finished Charlestown's first intermediate school at a cost of $542,946.37.

The new school, recently named in tribute to the late General Edwards, will accommodate 1200 pupils now attending four old schools.

The new building is of Colonial architecture, built of red brick with stone trimmings. It is three stories high and has 30 rooms, including a ground floor auditorium with a capacity of 2000 seats and an adjoining gymnasium.

RITES SATURDAY FOR EDITOR

Funeral services for William J. Fitzpatrick, night editor of The Boston Herald, will take place tomorrow, with a requiem high mass at St. Theresa's church, Centre st., West Roxbury, at 10:15 a. m.

The cortege will proceed from the home of Mr. Fitzpatrick's sister, Mrs. Joseph E. Lynch, 104 Landseer st., West Roxbury, where the body will lie until the time of the funeral. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden. Mr. Fitzpatrick, who in past years had held important positions on several Boston newspapers, died on Wednesday at his home, 218 South st., Jamaica Plain.

BABY'S LIFE IN BALANCE

New York, Jan. 21—To allow a child to die, or to try to save it by a major operation on the one slim chance that success would not condemn the infant to life long misery, perhaps insanity, was the problem that confronted a group of New York City physicians today.

The child is a two-year-old girl, whose mother and grandmother are in a poor, upper East Side flat, awaiting the decision of science.

In Chicago, 17 years ago, a doctor facing a similar problem, a child with a subnormal brain, a throwback to the Mongol type, allowed it to die—and aroused a world wide storm of protest.

Last Tuesday night, Dr. Oscar A. Spier first faced this problem without coming to a decision.

It was decided the child was a cerebro spastic, that is, with brain tissues absent, with consequent irritation of the brain and paralysis of the limbs. If it should live without an operation, it would be hopelessly crippled.

An operation that would open the rear of the skull carries a chance of life, and perhaps a chance of saving the tiny girl's sanity, but only a chance.

GARNER IS ONE MAN FREE OF WALL ST.

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

New York, Jan. 22—Widespread interest in the presidential qualifications of Speaker Garner calls attention to Democratic lack of vision in selecting national candidates.

Since the Civil War the Democrats apparently have been unable to think in presidential terms west of Ohio and south of Pennsylvania. The only exception was Bryan. Even he spent more time away from Nebraska, where he was voted, than he did within its borders.

Of the 17 Democratic presidential candidates since 1860, 13 lived east of the Ohio and north of the Mason and Dixon line.

New York provided Seymour, Greeley, Tilden, Cleveland (three times), Parker, Davis and Smith; New Jersey Wilson (twice) and McClellan; Nebraska, Bryan (three times); Ohio, Cox, and Pennsylvania, Hancock.

LINKED WITH WALL ST.

In every campaign New York has been linked with Wall Street and roundly denounced by Democrats in every section of the country.

The Republicans have chosen their candidates from Ohio (six times), Illinois (four times), Indiana (twice), New York (twice) Maine, Vermont and California.

In the pending campaign, the Democrats most talked of in connection with the presidency live within the sphere of Wall Street influence, with the exception of Baker (corporation lawyer and internationalist). Speaker Garner, former Governor Byrd of Virginia, Governor Ritchie of Maryland and Senator Hull of Tennessee.

The most conspicuous candidates at present are New Yorkers, Roosevelt and Smith. It is significant that most of Roosevelt's support comes from the South and West, which have long denounced Wall Street.

GARNER FREE OF NET

Controllers opinion inclines to the belief that Southern and Western candidates will be set aside as usual and that the nomination will go to a man favored by Wall St.

Speaker Garner is completely free from such undemocratic entanglement. This may also be said to apply to Byrd and Hull, but it does not include Ritchie, for while geographically outside the Wall Street radius he has consistently displayed his friendship for corporations and financial powers.

That is why Garner is attracting unexpected interest and why many Eastern and Western leaders want a candidate this time as far removed as possible from Wall Street influence.

They Visit Sick

MRS. EVA ABRAMS

MRS. ANNA G. ALTSHULER

Celebrating the 61st anniversary of its founding, the Sisters Who Visit the Sick, Inc., will hold a Valentine party and dance at the Hotel Kenmore, February 9, and proceeds will be used for charity fund. Mrs. Eva Abrams, president, and Mrs. Anna G. Altshuler, first vice-president, are in charge of the affair. (Bachrach photos.)

Orders Death Probe

The State department of labor and industries has ordered inspectors to Winchendon to make a thorough investigation of the situation which caused the death of one man and the serious illness of two others.

Drive Opens Feb. 14

The annual Greater Boston American Palestine campaign for funds to carry on the rehabilitation of the Jewish National Homeland in Palestine will be formally launched with a banquet Sunday evening, February 14, at the Temple Ohabei Shalom, Beacon st.

Eagles Expect Relay Victories

Boston College relay teams expect two wins, January 30, in the first big indoor meet of the season, the Prout Memorial games at the Garden. The one and two-mile varsity relay outfits are fast and are like to be successful. The one mile team meets Dartmouth, while the two mile four will race in the college relay feature against seven fast fours.

Would Change Name

Peter F. Pezzarossi, Arlington builder and contractor, has petitioned Middlesex Probate Court for permission to change it to Peter F. Rossi. Pezzarossi, in his petition, states that he was born in Italy, but has been a citizen of the United States for 24 years.

Soliciting Forbidden

Andover, Jan. 22—Representatives of the Boston branch of the Salvation Army have been notified by the board of selectmen, through the police, to quit soliciting funds here.

Town Employes Face Pay Slash

A proposal to reduce salaries of town employes 10 per cent and to cut wages of town laborers will be considered at the annual town meeting in Wayland in March.

The town will be called upon to pay 20 per cent more in State taxes than last year and receipts from the State will be about 20 per cent less.

COLDS

mean internal infection

When you feel the first symptoms, just take a few tablets of Bromo Quinine—that's all you need.

Don't waste valuable time treating the outward discomforts—get rid of the internal infection from within—and thus avoid possible complications which often have their beginning in a slight cold.

Public Bequests in Lowell Will

Lowell, Jan. 22—Many public bequests, totaling $310,000, were left in the will of Frank Hanchett, self-made Lowell millionaire who died here last week.

Some $250,000 was bequeathed to the Lowell General Hospital for the erection of a building in memory of his two sons, Sherman and Walter R. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology was left $100,000, in memory of his son, Walter, who was a graduate there. Immediate private bequests total more than $500,000, mostly to his widow, Mrs. Ella W. Hanchett.

Bank Clerks Protest Cut

Rome, Jan. 22 (AP)—Thirty bank clerks were arrested here and charged with "disorderly protest" against a proposed 8 per cent reduction of salaries.

PLOT TO KILL 2 IN HOSPITAL REVEALED

Return of Arthur Veluccl, wounded gangster, to Charles st. jail and police plans to place Jack Berger there as soon as possible, revealed today that gangsters had made two attempts to kill them in Massachusetts General Hospital.

Police admitted Veluccl had been brought to the jail hospital after his arraignment yesterday because of attempts made to take his life and Berger's. Both attempts were made, police said, in retaliation for statements made by the pair regarding the triple shooting in Winthrop last week in which they were wounded and "Little Harry" Wolen slain.

The first attempt came last Sunday night, the day following Berger's admission that he had slain Wolen. Three men parked a car at the Fruit st. entrance. One remained at the wheel with the motor running while the others started to enter. A detective approached and the pair turned and fled.

On Tuesday they returned and got as far as the lobby and inquired the way to the ward where the wounded gangsters were. An attendant told them to wait and he notified police. As an inspector hurried down the pair fled.

Veluccl was arraigned in East Boston court yesterday and pleaded not guilty to assault with intent to murder Berger and participation in a New York murder. He was ordered held without bail on the New York charge and in $30,000 for the alleged assault on Berger. He was too weak to walk and was wheeled into court on a cot. When informed he would be returned to the Charles st. jail instead of the hospital, he expressed relief.

MAGOON IS HELD AT HOSPITAL

Victor L. Magoon, 38, Lowell postal employe, indicted for theft of $100,000 in registered mail on New Year's Eve, will be held another week for observation as to his mental condition, at the request of physicians at Boston Psychopathic Hospital.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Haven Parker stated that he had notified Dr. Samuel S. Cottrell, of the hospital, that he might hold the defendant for further observation.

He was sent to the hospital for 10 days' observation by Judge James A. Lowell at the request of his counsel, who stated that four aunts and uncles have already been committed for unsoundness of mind.

Amtorg Corp. Loses Federal Tax Suit

Washington, Jan. 22 (INS)—The Amtorg Trading Corp., Soviet sales agency in the United States, was directed to pay $37,010 federal tax on its $264,597 income of 1924 and 1925 by the board of tax appeals today.

The corporation had appealed a treasury ruling which disallowed a deduction from income by reason of a payment made to the Russian government.

New Haven Trades Oppose Ornburn

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 22 (INS)—Ira N. Ornburn, President Hoover's nominee to the Federal Traffic Commission, is repudiated in his home city.

The New Haven Trades Council, of which Ornburn once was president, was on record today characterizing Ornburn as "unqualified" for the post.

TRAVELING MAN ENDORSES ALL-BRAN

Says It Brought Relief From Constipation

"I want to take this unsolicited means to tell you what ALL-BRAN has done for me.

"I am on the road all the time, and this has a tendency to constipate me, or any one who travels all the time. I used to suffer a great deal from constipation, until some one told me about Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Since I have been eating this cereal, I have been cured of constipation. I heartily endorse it to any one suffering as I did."—Mr. B. F. Pollard, Marion, N. C.

Constipation is caused by lack of two elements in the diet: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. Laboratory tests prove ALL-BRAN provides both. At the same time, it supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Being a natural corrective ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming.

How much better than risking pills and drugs—so often harmful. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation—serious cases, with every meal. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. At all grocers in the red-and-green packages. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

From the Envelopes!

"Are you sure, Louis," writes George Rambeau, "that you gave the proper sequence in which the tequila ritual is taken? I have seen lots of tequila drunk in Central America, but no man knowingly would put tequila on a palate that hadn't first been shocked by salt. The salt first, then the gulp, and finally the lime. The grimacing faces are caused by the feeling that one's hair is receding from the forehead and that at any minute the ears will burst into flame. It's the world's staunchest drink." . . . On the other hand, Louis Rey insists "tequila isn't half as bad as the smell of most poison going around here disguised as liquor. When you drink tequila, making faces is as much a part of the drink, and to some more important, than the drink itself. You can tell a good tequila drinker by the expertness he has in contorting his face after the swallow. I know a lot of Mexicans who have developed a most individual style for themselves that no other kind of drinker could duplicate." . . . A. E. H. Cole writes in to ask, "Has no one supervision over the reptile (referring to Mr. Sobol) who writes articles such as I enclose? It seems too bad that a representative paper should employ a scavenger (ouch) like the writer of 'The Voice of Broadway.' Several of the members here claim you must have obtained this specimen from a Sears-Roebuck catalogue" . . . E. H. Cole, hey? The fella must have sent me a poem. I should have printed it.

"Speaking of Aben Kandel," writes Patricia Pierce, "he's also something of a wit. During rehearsals of 'The Wonder Bar,' on the adaptation of which he collaborated with Irving Caesar, he characterized Jolson's emergence in pale face as "the triumph of mind over matter." . . . "Dear Mr. Sobol," writes Jeanne Hargreen, "you keep mentioning how slim Fannie Hurst has gotten. I remember how stout she was, and now I envy her. Couldn't you get her to tell you what method she used to reduce? . . . Mebbe, Jeanne. I know the method Texas Guinan used . . . Grapefruit and worry—lots of worry—with or without buttered toast.

"Doesn't it occur to you," asks Oscar Lamkay, respectfully, "that if these hard times continue, 1933 should be a swell leaping year?" . . . "Referring to your note on the popular tourist song brought back from Nassau, 'Mama don't allow no peas an' rice and coconut oil', etc., you might be interested to know that it's going to be recorded," informs Eddie Walters . . . "Oh, so Harold Bone wants a word to rhyme with pretzel, does he?" scoffs Nelson B. Wells. "Well, how about this: A contortionist named Willie Wetzel. Once tied himself up like a pretzel; I'm sorry to state. He found out too late. The 12th letter of the alphabet's 'L'" . . . "Or say it this way," offers Arthur Paul. "When Rudy Valles married Fay Webb the ceremony took place in The Little Church Around the Crooner" . . . "Is it true," asks Maxwell Wilnyk, "that they have one roulette room in Agua Caliente which has a roof of gold valued at $1,000,000, and that although you can play nickels in Reno, the low is 50 cents in Caliente on roulette, with $1 low on everything else?"

Brotherhood to Hold Ball

Brotherhood Temple Ohabei Shalom will conduct its fourth annual ball and entertainment next Wednesday in the Temple ballroom, Beacon st., Brookline. Proceeds will be contributed to the final payment on the temple organ.

Jury Hears the Greek, Then Gives the Woman $1200

Hartford, Ct., Jan. 22 (INS)—A Connecticut judge broke with routine and a jury charge from the Greek classics was on record today.

Twelve citizens—farmers, mechanics and business men—sitting in an automobile negligence case heard not the stereotyped legal phrases, but instead the words of the goddess Athena to the 12 Athenian judges before whom Orestes was on trial for murder.

"Therefore, O citizens, I bid ye bow in awe to this command: Let no man live uncurbed by law nor curbed by tyranny nor banish ye the monarchy of awe beyond the walls,'" quoted Judge Newell Jennings in Superior court. And "Untouched by fear divine no man doth justice in the world of men.

"Therefore in purity and holy dread stand and revere; so shall ye have and hold a saving bulwark of the state and land; such as no man hath ever elsewhere known. Ye who judge arise, take each his vote, met out the right, your oath revering. Lo, my word is said."

The quotations were from "The Furies," written by the Athenian dramatist, Aeschylus, 2500 years ago.

The jury awarded Mrs. Jean A. Ramsey $1200 in her suit against Edward A. Reid for injuries she suffered in an automobile accident

HAIR IS CLUE IN MILL KILLING

Dracut, Jan. 22—On one blond hair and a roll of adhesive tape, police today concentrated their hope for solution of the murder of George Abbott, 72, night watchman of the American Woolen Company mill.

The hair was found in a woolen hood used as a mask by one of Abbott's slayers.

The adhesive tape was used to bind his hands.

Four men who live in Collinsville some who has light hair—were questioned last night by State Detectives Sherlock and O'Neil and Police Chief Carsvile.

Two proved alibis and the other two offered alibis. All were released and the latter two will not similarly present themselves again to the authorities for further questioning.

The detectives said no arrest was expected today.

Apparently the blond hair found is not believed to be from the head of the bound suspect questioned.

The adhesive tape is of an unusual type and police are trying to trace its source. No manufacturer's trademark or other identification appeared on the brass roll.

Abbot, when his body was found in his mill Wednesday night, had nearly $4000 sewed into his clothing and authorities believe the crime was committed by someone who knew he carried large amounts of money.

The fact the dead man was accustomed to carry a large sum of money was known to fellow workers. Only a few weeks ago he dropped the envelope in which he carried the money in the mill yard. Since that time he had kept the envelope sewed in his vest and the slayers missed it at the time of the murder.

Relatives of the dead man claim he also had about $75 and auto license and a gun permit, all of which are missing.

7 LAWYERS FACE FRAUD CHARGE

Grand jury action and disbarment proceedings against seven lawyers appeared likely today, following revelation that they have been involved in evidence taken at secret hearings of the senate committee investigating fraudulent insurance claims.

According to a statement issued by the chairman of the committee, Frederick W. Mansfield, former president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, evidence in 71 cases of alleged fraud in which the seven attorneys are involved was received during recent hearings held by William H. Hitchcock, who was appointed a special commissioner by the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

The cases heard, according to Mansfield, involved the forging of releases and of endorsements on drafts, deception of claimants as to amounts of settlements to be made, solicitation of cases and payment of fees to persons soliciting cases for an attorney, and the introduction into a case of a person claiming injuries who was not present when the accident in question happened.

MAINE QUOTA 5, SAYS WHITE

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Senator White in a statement today expressed the opinion that Maine was entitled to only five instead of six electors in the next electoral college.

The Maine Republican expressed his view in reply to an inquiry from Daniel F Field, Republican state committee chairman. The question arose from the fact that Maine has two senators and four representatives in the present Congress but will have only three representatives in the next.

"The answer is the question," wrote Senator White, "is probable found in an act of Congress passed in 1792 which states that the number of electors shall be equal to the number of senators and representatives to which the several states are by law entitled at the time when the President and Vice President to be chosen come into office."

Here's a Chap China Better Enlist to Lick the Japs

Chicago, Jan. 22 (INS)—Charlie Lee hasn't heard about the wounds of Japanese that turn back whole regiments of Chinese in the Manchuria fuss. In fact if Charley were back in China the Japanese would learn a thing or two about fighting.

Charley was busy ironing a shirt when a stick-up man entered his laundry, pointed a gun at Charley and issued the usual ultimatum "stick 'em up."

Charley's hands went up and so did the scorching-hot iron. He let it fly at the robber hitting him on the chest. The bad man fled, howling.

RED REVOLT IN SPAIN QUELLED

Madrid, Jan. 22—Word from Catalonia today said troops had taken over half a dozen villages where "Workers Republic" were set up yesterday during what the government described as a Communistic rebellion to establish a "Soviet republic."

The soldiers were in Manresa, Borgas, Sallent Sura, Cardona and Frigola, the report said and at no point did they meet with resistance. These towns all close together were the center of the rebellion.

In Barcelona 200 persons were arrested and placed aboard a ship in the harbor commandeered for jail purposes.

Organizers tried to incite a strike of building workers and subway operators here in Madrid.

AUTO SHOW IS ON TOMORROW

Boston's annual automobile show this year added to by a used car section, opens tomorrow afternoon at Mechanics Building, to run through until a week from tomorrow night.

With hundreds of car, truck and accessory exhibits and with the addition of used cars, the show this year is expected to be the largest and most pretentious ever held in the Hub.

Mechanics Building has been turned into a veritable rose garden with thousands of yards of crimson, white and pink ramblers in bud instead by colored lights.

Work on decorating the display halls and arranging the countless exhibits will be completed before midnight tonight after nearly a week's labor by more than 400 craftsmen.

COP SLAYER IN SUICIDE THREAT

idea was the aroma of a boiled egg and the fumes of a cup of tea which, with a slice of bread, he avidly devoured for breakfast this morning.

Then came the suicide threat.

The Bristol County grand jury sitting next month is expected to indict him and state psychiatrists will give him their official attention.

Meanwhile in Attleboro search is being carried on for the murder weapon in his re-enactment of the events of the shooting yesterday. Bosquet pointed out to police the approximate point at which he had thrown away the gun. Boy Scouts yesterday searched the area but found no weapon.

MOTIVE LACKING

Police officials there could ascribe no motive for the crime. They believe the shooting was done on the spur of the moment. Bosquet's friends were also shocked at the report of his confession. The prisoner has no police record nor has he ever been in trouble before.

An autopsy was performed on the body of Gobin by Medical Examiner Jesse W. Battersby, assisted by Dr. Timothy F. Leary of Boston. Officer Johnson was reported resting comfortably at the Sturdy Memorial Hospital. He is expected to recover in a short time.

Gobin's funeral will take place tomorrow from his home in Thatcher st. At 9 o'clock, and a solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated in the Church of the Holy Ghost. Burial will be in Notre Dame Cemetery, Pawtucket, R. I.

Gobin, a native of Putnam, Ct., is survived by his widow, Mrs. Eva Gobin, two sons and his mother.

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—A voice evidently relishing to some one with a box office eye spoiled the dignified street on the floor of Representatives today.

WETS SEEK NEW LINE OF ATTACK

Washington, Jan. 23 (INS)—With the Bingham bill, inviting states to hold referenda on the question of repeal or modification of the prohibition law, defeated 55 to 15 in the Senate, Congressional wets today were seeking a different method of attack upon dry laws.

Attacked as a "useless performance," and a "cowardly evasion by our public men," by Senator Lewis (D.) of Illinois, a wet champion, the measure found few active supporters in the upper house though Lewis voted for the measure.

The bill provided merely that the Senate go on record as welcoming any action that the governors of the several states might take in recommending to their respective legislatures that such action be taken by the state as may be necessary to obtain the opinion of the people of the state with respect to repeal or modification of the prohibition act."

Senator Robinson (D.) of Arkansas, minority leader and a dry, termed the measure a "patent effort to fool the public." Senator Buckley (D.) of Ohio, another wet leader, said the resolution would have meant nothing even if it had been adopted.

RUDY VALLEE'S SECRET MADE CLEAR IN A FEW WORDS

By GILBERT SELDES

THE MAN WHO TOOK the megaphone away from cheer leaders and Joe Humphreys, the man who sings as if he didn't know what the words meant, Yale's gift to the radio, Mr. Rudy Vallee, has always been a mystery to those who did not like him. Again and again they tuned in and listened to the voice which hardly ever rises above a monotone; they were sensible of the quality which Mr. Vallee himself calls "my godsent gift of rhythm," and they wondered at the passion which this voice arouses. Quite aware that he sang "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame," better than anyone else sang it, they still couldn't see why it mattered; they went to the night clubs and hotels where he conducted an orchestra, and watched his unaffected and uninspiring waves of the baton, knew that he had a good orchestra, and remained baffled. Finally, Mr. Vallee became a national figure, reaching almost to the level of a Lindbergh, it was discovered that he was an American ideal because he was every mother's ideal of what her son should be like; and the Vallee fans clubs were not composed of mothers—quite the contrary.

GILBERT SELDES

In the Scandals

This year Mr. Vallee appeared in the Scandals, and even his worst enemy told him how good he was. They said he put on no side, he was charming, he even kidded himself. Perhaps it's all true; I did not see the amusing Scandals when they opened, and by this time Mr. Vallee may have forgotten his best qualities. Good, in the sense that Willie Howard and Ray Bolger are in the same show, he certainly is not; my private opinion is that he is pretty terrible. And precisely at the moment I arrived at this conclusion I saw the secret of Mr. Vallee's success. Because all through his stage appearances he persuaded me that he agreed: he knew he was terrible. At the microphone, in a night club, he may be different; he may have assurance and pride. But on the stage he seems to be suffering from an acute and perfectly correct estimate of his own value.

Grace on the Stage

This is a positive grace. Half of the people one dislikes terribly on the stage are players who are of the second class and are convinced (by their salaries and by the applause of their dupes) that they are first class. Good actors give off an air of confidence, of mastery; bad actors surround themselves with the assumption of superiority. The worse they are, the more offensive is this false glamour they appropriate; they wouldn't be half so bad if they did not think themselves so marvelously good.

Admirable Awfulness

Mr. Vallee is remarkably refreshing. He has no stage presence, he is awkward in playing with other people, the merry jibes of Willie Howard destroy his confidence, he cannot dance, he cannot, unaided, put over the simplest or the most effective song—and it doesn't matter, because he knows it. He goes through the movements of making love or imitating Chevalier as if they gave him extreme pain; he gets off the stage as fast as he possibly can. He tries to be charming with "This Is the Missus," but the ingratiating smile vanishes almost before it appears. But he knows that he is on the stage not for his capacities, but because he is a famous crooner, and he never asks the audience to think him any better than he is. I still don't think he is any good; but I admire him. He's got sense.

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

Anyone interested in the biological sciences will find the volume prepared by Charles Singer, "The Story of Living Things," one of England's most distinguished medical scientists, a work to be kept constantly on hand for ready reference.

Scientific knowledge began with the Greeks, and was handed down through the centuries until the world approached the Dark Ages. These lasted, so far as science was concerned, for at least a thousand years—from the death of Cos to the thirteenth century.

It has often been said, Mr. Singer tells us, that the rise of Christianity was destructive of science. This view is untenable for two main reasons. On the one hand, science had begun its downward course long before the birth of Christianity. On the other hand, at the end of the second century of the Christian era, when ancient science was effectively dead, the Christians formed still only a small and obscure sect, that had little or no influence in that class which might be expected to study science. It is true that the intense spiritual interest of Christianity in the early centuries did nothing to promote science, and later discouraged any revival of science. It is, however untrue to say that the rise of Christianity had any definite relation to the fall of science.

There are dozens of illustrations and charts which serve as comprehensive signposts along the way of this rapid survey; and this valuable work has been thoroughly gone over by many experts in their several fields. It is written in such a way that the layman's mind can be illuminated and satisfied. Harpers are the publishers.

For a time, there has been a lull in the Questionnaire racket, but it seems to have broken out again. This time in a small book called "Quiz Yourself," prepared by John Francis Goldsmith and issued by Harcourt, Brace & Co.

A series of statements to the number of 222 has been made such as this:

"The Sistine Madonna, Mona Lisa, My Mother, the Blue Boy and the Last Supper, are paintings respectively by various artists whose names are given in equal number, and in certain groups. One group constitutes the correct answer—and only one. The players must discover this for themselves, and try to strike an average for skill.

Some of the queries, or statements, whichever you wish to call them, are difficult; other are simple. No 86, for instance, suggest that Capt. Absolute, Mrs. Malaprop and Lydia Languish are characters in one of 10 plays listed. Most of us would be sure to know that the play is "The Rivals" and not "She Stoops to Conquer" or "Oliver Twist." But there are other queries not so easy to answer. One must have a great deal of general knowledge in order to excel in this game. But it is stimulating. Politics, the arts, literature, history, religion—all these are included.

Probably school children—or perhaps I should say high school boys and girls—might be better at supplying answers than those of us who have grown up long since, and blithely forgotten much that we should have remembered.

I knew a lad at school once who used to enrage us all because he was so smugly clse. Today, his average would probably be about 20 per cent in a game of this sort. I hope so, anyhow. We are like him in those sadly distant days, and if he has retained his phenomenal memory he must by this time have become an awful bore somewhere in the suburbs.

It was inevitable that someone would sooner or later satirize the Nudists. There is a movement which lends itself to good-natured fun. And the fun increases when, as in Anthony Gibbs' rollicking book "The New Crusade," published by Doubleday, Doran, it is turned on the indomitable British Empire, so loath to accept any change, however beneficial it may be.

This is a joyous record of how a certain millionaire tried his best to make England step forth without clothing. "Let the world know that Englishmen are not ashamed" was one of the slogans inserted by the Crusaders; and it was an awful time for London when, at Lord Surbiton's funeral, the coffin was supported by six naked pallbearers and followed by a regular army of converts reverently marching with bowed heads, in a procession that took an hour and thirty-seven minutes to pass a given point.

70 MILLION IN CHARITIES OF ROSENWALD

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP)—Humanity may benefit from the philanthropies of Julius Rosenwald for generations to come but the actual expenditure of his millions will be ended in 15 years—10 less than the maximum specified by the Chicago merchant prince.

Thus will the cardinal principle of the great philanthropist who was militantly opposed to the "dead hand in philanthropy," be carried out.

BARES NEW CHARITIES

This was disclosed today by Edwin R. Embree, president of the $30,000,000 Julius Rosenwald fund.

Embree also made public a list of Mr Rosenwald's gifts since 1910. These total in excess of $70,000,000 and include a number not heretofore made public.

Based on estimates of the estate Embree figured that Mr Rosenwald, Chicago merchant, gave away four times as much to humanity as he left his heirs.

Benefactions that knew no bounds of race, religion, or origin, were listed. Millions were given to erect schools for Negroes in the South and just as quickly to aid institutions of other races. Among these latter were the University of Chicago, the American University at Beirut, Syria and Kobe College in Japan.

AIDED SACCO DEFENSE

Rosenwald gave $5,000,000 to a Russian colonization project, a Soviet enterprise for the removal of Jews from cities to farms, Hull House in Chicago and other American institutions in which foreigners found a haven knew his philanthropy, as also did Protestant Catholic and Jewish charities.

The Mooney-Billings and the Sacco-Vanzetti defense funds received contributions.

SEES ACQUITTAL IN 'HONOR' SLAYING

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

Honolulu, Jan 22 (INS)—Prosecutor James F. Gilliland today predicted that Mrs. Granville R. Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two sailors, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones would never be convicted of the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, a native.

"I don't believe I know a white man in the islands who doesn't believe that ample justification for the slaying existed after the trial of the five natives accused of an attack upon Lieut. Massie's wife had ended in a deadlock," he said.

Kahahawai was one of the five men Mrs. Massie said attacked her.

Gilliland said he was willing to surrender Mrs. Massie case to the U. S. Navy. This would be permissible in the cases of Lieut. Massie, Lord and Jones, provided a lesser charge than first degree murder is returned against them by the grand jury.

Mrs. Fortescue would have to be tried in civilian courts, but her acquittal or a deadlocked jury would be foregone conclusions, he added.

Late Night Meals for All at Harvard

In the Harvard Crimson it was announced today that a cafeteria for the use of students living in the Harvard Houses will open Monday in the basement of Eliot House.

It will be open to members of all seven houses from 8 p. m. to midnight, making it unnecessary for the students to walk all the way to Harvard sq. for a late snack.

TOY BANDIT DIES TO ESCAPE GANG

Detroit, Jan. 22 (AP)—Police were attempting today to learn what "terrible trouble" drove Russell Gamble, 22-year-old toy-gun bank robber who was trying to go straight, to plunge 28 stories to his death, leaving a penciled scrawl which said:

"It's the only thing to do when you can't quit the gang."

A detective who knew him said Gamble, who was convicted once in Detroit of a $3200 bank robbery in which a toy weapon was used, had been working recently as house-man in an apartment house for $10 a week.

Gamble engaged a room at the Book Cadillac Hotel early yesterday morning under an assumed name

Al Smith Is Paid 90 Cents Per Word for His Writings

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith, author, receives 90 cents a word for his writings.

Strangely enough, he doesn't write. He makes notes on old envelopes and from them delivers a speech which a taken down by a stenographer and used for newspaper or magazine articles.

He's working on a book now

GARNER GAINING IN FAVOR, SAYS PARTY LEADER

San Francisco, Jan. 22—John N. Garner, Speaker of the House of Representatives, is making history in his remarkable leadership and his magnificent guiding of the Democratic party.

"His masterful handling of the House has brought him to the forefront in political quarters generally."

Thus spoke James D. Meredith, secretary of the Democratic state central committee upon his return here from Washington and New York.

PROVED LEADERSHIP

"There is no question that Garner is being given great attention," said Meredith, commending the Texan although he is an avowed supporter of Governor Roosevelt.

"Speaker Garner has shown great force in his leadership. His work as Speaker of the House has been orderly. He has unified the party's strength and has given to it a constructive leadership which has commanded wide attention."

Meredith gave this tribute to Speaker Garner as he talked over political matters from the standpoint of his recent contacts with Eastern leaders and the party rank and file.

HOOVER NOT WANTED

Referring to President Hoover, Meredith said that it was difficult to find at the national capital outside of the office holders beholden to him any boosting of the Presidency for re-election.

"The case was similar in New York," Meredith said. "One could not find a good word for him there."

JOBLESS HEAD WEARS AL'S BROWN DERBY

Sea Cook Struts Sidewalks of New York in Campaign Relic

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—A jobless sea cook strutted the sidewalks of New York's East Side today wearing one of Al Smith's brown derbies.

"Yes, sir, that's what I call a break," said George Stumpf, who used to cook beans on army transports, but now stirs stews in the municipal lodging house for his meals.

"Here I walk into that free clothes place with a ticket callin' for a suit and they gimme one of the guv'nor's blue worsteds, made on Fifth avenue. Then, to top it off, they stick one of his hard hats on my head. Guess I ought to get a job in this outfit, huh?"

Stumpf has his new outfit because the former governor heeded the plea of the clothing relief division of the emergency unemployment committee. He called Clarence H. Low, chairman of the division, into his office high up in the Empire State building.

"Here, Clarence," he said, with movie cameras clicked, "here's a bundle of clothes I gathered together up at the house. I want you to take them down to your warehouse, clean them, sew buttons on them and give them to the unemployed so they'll be comfortable and presentable enough to take employment."

Low carried the bundle, containing several suits and coats to a rehabilitation factory, manned by men [illegible] women formerly without jobs.

A few hours later in waked Stumpf, bearing a ticket from one of 33 relief agencies served by the factory.

"Right this way, Mr Stumpf," said an elderly "salesman," employing the same suave accents with which he once greeted patrons of a Fifth ave. shop.

Stumpf was escorted to long racks of suits, selected the one the Governor wore on many a hustings, then retired to a dressing room, equipped with a mirror and all.

"It's a little big around the waist," he said as he emerged looking like a new man "Guess the Gov'nor's been eatin' a few more steaks than me lately."

But a tailor fixed that and Mr Stumpf departed with a thank you.

"If you hear of a job," he said as he left, "lemme know. I can do almost anything, includin' railroadin'."

"Of course," Mr. Low said to reporters, "there's a moral to this Stumpf story. Just tell your readers there must be a lot of clothes in the closets of this city and nation that man like Stumpf could use."

Waste removed BEFORE you buy!

When you buy Birdseye Meats You Get What You Pay For

LOOK at that heavy leg bone, rump bone, and excess fat shown in the second picture!

That's the waste you DON'T pay for when you buy a Birdseye Leg of Lamb.

You are not asked to pay meat prices for bone and fat you cannot use. When you pay for 4½ lbs. you get 4½ lbs.

THIS PICTURE SHOWS a Birdseye Lamb Chop — before and after waste is eliminated. But it doesn't show how four such chops are wrapped in cellophane and put in a clean, neat box. It doesn't show how nice they look on a platter — each chop uniform in size, shape and thickness. And it couldn't possibly show how good they taste! You'll have to serve them to see why Lamb Chops are one of the most popular Birdseye Meats.

And what lamb! Juicy and tender. The appetizing flavor of the finest selection of genuine spring lamb. It comes trimmed and tied for roasting—ready to put right into the oven for 93 nice a Sunday dinner as you ever enjoyed. The exclusive Birdseye quick-frosting process has sealed-in the flavor and freshness of the best lamb —packed in the season when it reaches top perfection.

It's delicious. It's easy to carve. It's economical. It's as easy to buy as any other packaged, trade-marked food product. It's wholesome and clean—untouched by hands, never exposed to air and dust.

It's typical of all Birdseye Meats—from the lowest priced stewing meat to the two-inch steaks you serve at that extra-special dinner.

All are guaranteed by label. We know that one unsatisfactory Birdseye Food would hurt the hundred others packaged under the same name. So we take extraordinary pains to see that every product maintains the standard set for the Birdseye trademark.

Many People Ask This Question

What is the difference between Birdseye Meats and frozen meats I have tried in the past?

The two are as different as day from night Birdseye Meats are quick-frosted so rapidly at 50 degrees below zero that no change takes place in the meat. No large ice crystals are formed to break down cell walls and allow nutritious juices to escape when the meat is thawed. Its original freshness and flavor are sealed-in and held unchanged.

Birdseye Meats are appetizing, juicy, full-flavored and tender. They are endorsed by leading health authorities.

One Thing Less To Worry About

Birdseye simplifies one of your greatest problems—meat buying! Now you don't have to be a friend of the meat man to get a good roast or steak. You don't have to go to the store to buy it. You don't have to think about what's in season. At the Birdseye store you can have what you like when you want it. Here is a sample!

THIS IS LIFE

SELFRIDGE "DOCTRINE OF FOLLY," ISN'T THE HOPE FOR A HAPPY WORLD

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

IT IS A LITTLE DISQUIETING to hear an English business man warning us that we must at all costs keep up the "American idea" in business and not listen to those who call for a slowing down of the tempo. I say "an Englishman," though the gentleman might repudiate that designation. He is Gordon Selfridge, Jr., son of the man who introduced the American department store to England and whose organization in London is one of the largest in the world.

Young Mr. Selfridge is of American blood and, I believe, keeps his American citizenship. Otherwise he is completely English, educated there in the British "public school" and university system and with all his business experience in England. That makes him, I am inclined to guess, an Englishman. Blood matters little in matters of that sort compared with environment.

Speed Meant Insecurity

There are without question, very many Englishmen who sincerely believe that the introduction of American business methods into England has in the long run helped her very little and, perhaps, to a certain extent, has predisposed her to the economic diseases from which she is now suffering. Historically, it is fair to say, that just about the time when, because of stiff world-wide competition, English business and commerce began to show a downward curve on the chart, the younger generation began to introduce American business methods. For a time they may have staved off further decline, but when that decline accelerated after the war it is not impossible that some of that acceleration was due to American practices.

The same thing is true, of course, in this country. The rise in the business curve from the Civil War to the end of the century was comparatively slow, according to our recent notions, but steady. In the last 15 years it was unbelievably rapid. That very speed of increase made for insecurity. When the downward trend came, those very rapid fire methods that made the peak of 1929 made the slump correspondingly rapid, severe, and complete.

One would think, then, that a young man who'd had an opportunity to learn something of the spirit that made England so solid, even if unprogressive, in the past, would think twice before he advises as he does in a morning paper:

"Accelerated living is the only way out. I believe in it. Wider business co-operation between nations and people. We must work at breakneck speed, spend, enjoy ourselves to the fullest, because life is very short, and so we must put everything we can into it and get everything we can out of it while we can."

Feast Today, Fast Tomorrow Folly

Philosophically, of course, that is a counsel of absolute despair. That is the degraded and popular Epicureanism of late Paganism running amuck. "Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die." "Gather your rosebuds while ye may." "Oh, take the cash and let the credit go!" It means living so fast that you have no time to enjoy life.

Incidentally, it also means hardening of the arteries, angina pectoris, kidney diseases, nervous digestive disturbances, nervous breakdowns, the jitters, and probably cancer. At least, that is what medical men seem to be trying to tell us. "Better fifty years of Europe than a cycle of Cathay" sang Tennyson, back in the days when progress was a slow and steady thing. But today it is rather: "Better 20 years in New York and a quick snappy death on the golf course or out of one's office window (if one is in Wall St.) than a vegetable life to the ripe age of three score years and ten in East Burlap. Mr. Selfridge is undoubtedly on the popular side, but is he, like Disraeli, on the side of the angels?

"I believe in taking whatever job one can, even if it isn't just the job one wants, and working that job for all it is worth," he says.

This is a noble sentiment and one which is practical and useful, but it would come perhaps with better grace from some one else than a young gentleman who is in a monster business already created and waiting for him to take over. But the next statement is an example of that fatuous complacency that is ruining the education of our young, pouring most of the talent of the country into bartering, and trying to make us believe that "civilization" means "business." Mr. Selfridge says:

"In business today is the hope of the world, the only hope of millions of young men all over the world."

Out of the Ruin May Come Sanity

Which is, to be impolite, clotted nonsense. The extension of business means only that the so-called "backward" but stable nations of the world will grow increasingly unstable in the future; they will be dependent on the fluctuations of far-away stock gambling exchanges, mergers, overproduction campaigns, and all the rest of it. Mr. Selfridge will say that he does not mean stock gambling; he means business. One can only reply that all business today is hopelessly dependent on the activities of active, ambitious, unwise or unscrupulous stock manipulators, bankers, security brokers and the like. Business is dependent on those activities, just as the government is increasingly dependent on them.

It used to be said: "Happy is the people that has no history." It is not impossible that our descendants will say: "Happy is the people that has no business." It will be a quiet, uneventful life, perhaps, with small interests, but those interests will be fundamental and real, not the shadowy and fantastic interests of modern business.

The fundamentalist farmer on his little plot of ground on the edge of the sea, reaping the harvest of both land and ocean, living a life as secure as human life may well be, may look back at our days with a sigh of relief that he escaped them. It is not impossible. No intelligent person believes any longer in automatic progress along a straight line. Our top-heavy structures may crash, and out of the ruins man may build himself an old-fashioned culture. For the spirit of man is used to failure and disappointment and often makes surprising use of them.

CLOTHING CLUE TO CHILDREN

Clothing of the two babies found abandoned at the Brattle sq. police station in Cambridge is expected to lead to the identity of their parents.

A tailor's mark was discovered by Special Officer Joseph Breen inside the coat of the one-year-old boy. The mark was the figure "035." If this mark can be identified by a tailor, police believe, they will be able to trace the parents.

Special Officer Breen is also visiting shoe stores in an effort to find where the new pair of shoes which the boy was wearing was bought.

The children are being cared for at the Cambridge Municipal hospital.

Fleeing Burglar Leaves Eggs Behind

The man who fled the home of Mrs. Caroline Sutbach, Fuller st., Lynn, so hurriedly last night that he left a dozen fresh eggs on the back fence may have his property by applying at Lynn police headquarters. But when he comes for the eggs police will ask him to explain how he happened to be in Mrs. Sutbach's bedroom when a $2 bill and a street car ticket disappeared.

POLICE FIGHT PAY CUT

Members of the Everett fire and police departments are fighting the 10 per cent salary reduction proposed by Mayor Michael C. O'Neil, it was learned today.

They have signed a petition voicing their objections

Mayor O'Neil stated that the salary cut is mandatory if expenses are to be met without a "sky-high" tax rate. He also stated that the streets will not be oiled in the spring and no street or sidewalk repair work will be done in order to keep down expenses.

BEAST OF THE CITY.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Daisy Beaumont, vivacious young blonde, is arrested and charged with "soliciting," but Capt. Jim Fitzpatrick of the homicide squad has her released. In the meantime, four men are found murdered in a warehouse. Capt. Jim is convinced that "Big Boy" Belmonte is responsible, and swears to get the "Big Boy" and his whole gang, but he receives orders for duty in the suburbs. At Glendale he captures three bank robbers and is urged by the press for the chief of police job. Daisy and Ed celebrate her birthday.

THEY LEAVE FOR THE PARTY

At 12 o'clock that night they left the apartment. The gas bottles were empty. Ed was a bit tight, and by that time he was promising:

"Don't worry, kid—stick by and you'll be wearin' diamonds. My brother'll take care of me. He'll fix me up right. I'll be a captain in no time."

"But there are plenty of ways a cop can make money," she insisted. "Captain or no captain."

"Oh—yeah? Well, I know 'em all, kid—all the old ones an' a couple o' new ones."

When Ed and Daisy arrived at Celli's at midnight the place was crowded. The five-piece orchestra was in the midst of a spasm of barnie insouciance; the 15-by-12 dance floor was filled with writhing clinging bodies; waiters were hurrying here and there with liquor in coffee-cups and tea-pots; the small room was filled with the odors of cigarette-smoke, perfume and booze

Ed, reeling slightly, pitched his hat to the check-room girl while Daisy disappeared in the small, curtained room to the right

"Be right out!" she called.

Ed leaned in the doorway and surveyed the scene. He suddenly decided that he wouldn't go in, and turned back to get his hat. But Tessie the check-room girl, cajoling and insistent, pinched his cheek and said

"What's the matter, copper, don't you like our joint?"

Ed looked at her a moment and then walked away. The head-waiter rubbing his hands in an unctuous manner, approached

"Whatcha say, Sergeant?" he asked in his most solicitious manner.

"You got a nice crowd," said Ed noncommittally

"Yep!" exclaimed the other. "But ——always room for you and one more."

"Okay," said Ed. "But stick me in a corner."

"Got just the spot for you," bowed the head-waiter. "Been waitin' Right this way."

"Just a minute," from Ed, glancing toward the curtained door. The curtain parted that moment and Daisy came out

"Tired waitin'?" she asked. "Was powderin' my nose."

"Let's get seated," said Ed who

WOBURN STORE PLAN OPPOSED

A resolution was passed by the Woburn City Council last night calling upon Mayor Alfred W. Peterson to give up the idea of a city store to distribute supplies to the needy, which he plans to open next Monday.

A resolution calling for the abolishment of the practice of having men on the public welfare list clean the streets was defeated. A large crowd jammed the council chamber and the speeches for and against the resolutions were met with cheers and catcalls.

The resolutions were introduced by Alderman John F. Connolly, who said that the public store for distribution of necessities of life was placing a tag on unfortunates and worked against the interests of the Woburn merchants who were taxpayers.

Mayor Peterson has stated that the city will use $1300 a month by opening the store which is now being stocked with supplies.

Unemployed Fail to Hold Demonstration

Rumors that the unemployed of Newton were to stage a demonstration yesterday led the police to make preparations but the expected demonstration failed to materialize.

The rumors of unrest were due to the discharge of 150 men from the street department.

J. H. Sheridan to Run for Selectman

James H. Sheridan of Green st., Watertown, announced today he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for selectman for a two-year term at the primaries next month. He was formerly a member of the park commission.

WHO COULD DESERT THEM?

Despite the dissatisfaction evidenced by the youngster on the left, the two children abandoned in Cambridge are quite content at the Cambridge City Home. Miss Florence M. Le Gendre has her young charge looking at the sunny side of life, but the boy in custody of Miss M. M. Chisholm howls when he feels like it. (Staff photo.)

GRINNELL "PUT SISTER AWAY TO END IT"

Woburn City Clerk Says He Pleaded in Vain for "Sprinkler Cinderella"

The only way her brother could end her friendship with Mrs. Catherine Flood was to put Miss Mary Grinnell "away," the brother declared after her commitment to an insane hospital, it was brought out today in superior court.

The testimony was given by William E. Kane, city clerk of Woburn, who originally brought Mrs Flood a $3,000,000 suit against Miss Grinnell, now an inmate of Concord Insane Hospital, and her brother, Harold D Grinnell of Pittsfield.

In her suits against the heir and heiress to the Grinnell sprinkler millions, Mrs. Flood of Sand st West Roxbury, asserts that Mr Grinnell agreed to provide for her for life, and has failed to keep the contract.

PLEADED IN VAIN

Kane testified that after Miss Grinnell had been committed to the hospital, Mrs. Flood, then Mrs. Mc Manus, came to see him in 1926 and asked him to start an investigation.

The witness said he went to Pittsfield and had a conference with Harold Grinnell who had been appointed guardian for his sister

"I asked him what arrangements he had made for the supporting of Mrs. McManus and her two sons," Kane testified. "He replied, 'None. There is no more money going to her.'

"I said to him, 'You know, Mr Grinnell, your sister has been taking care of her under an agreement and arrangement they have had for years. The children will be destitute if nothing is done.' He replied, 'I can do nothing about Mrs. McManus and the children I tried to end this friendship, and the only way I could stop it was to put my sister away.'"

SOUGHT HER ARREST

When Kane asked Grinnell if as guardian of his sister, he did not intend to carry out her wishes Grinnell replied, according to the witness that he did not care to discuss the matter further and that Kane would have to serve the Grinnell counsel, Milton B. Warner.

According to the witness, when he saw Warner, the latter asked him the whereabouts of the then Mrs. McManus, and declared he wished to have her arrested.

Kane was cross-examined by Atty. Warner in the case today relative to "mystery" in the birth of Mrs. McManus, now Mrs. Flood

Q.—Didn't you talk to me about the mystery in Catherine's birth?
A.—There was a reference to it

Q.—Who introduced it? A.—Both of us

Q.—Wasn't it you who told me there was a mystery about it? A.—No

Q.—Didn't you go to New Bedford and look up the records of Catherine's birth? A.—Not then

MEMBER OF THE FAMILY

Q.—Well, later? A.—No

Q.—You did go to New Bedford and you did look up the record of the birth? A.—Yes

Kane said the newspapers had reports on the birth before he went to Atty. Warner's office

Q.—Didn't you tell me that Catherine was a member of the Grinnell family? A.—I told you that I had heard rumors that she was a member of the Grinnell family

Q.—Didn't you tell me that you would bring suit and put it all in the papers if anything wasn't done about it? A.—No

Q.—Wasn't a suit brought a week later? A.—Yes, you told me that I was going to bring suit and it would put it all in the papers

Escaped Convict Hunted in City

All entrances into the city are being watched by local and State police for the appearance here of Harry Behan, alias Harry Phillips, a native of Boston who made his escape last night from Great Meadows prison, near Whitehall, N. Y., where he was serving a 20-year sentence.

20 NEW FIRMS LOCATE HERE IN MONTH

Establishment of 20 new manufacturing firms in Metropolitan Boston was announced today by the bureau of commercial and industrial affairs of the Chamber of Commerce in its monthly report on industrial development in the Boston area.

The new companies reported by the Chamber bring the total of manufacturing establishments which started operations in Metropolitan Boston during 1931 up to a total of 222.

The report represents a gain of 10% in manufacturers during 1931 over the year 1930, and is by far the largest number ever reported by the Chamber as a remarkable showing in view of the general backwardness in business throughout the country.

It is an additional factor, the Chamber points out, in demonstrating the relatively superior economic position of Boston and New England as compared with other sections of the country.

The Chamber's report also describes expansion programs in the case of 16 existing companies which, in most of which instances, are for increases in employment opportunities.

Boston is credited with a majority of the new firms, but other cities and towns in Eastern Massachusetts are also represented. There has been three of the new firms and one each reported in Watertown, Waltham and Salem.

WEALTHY MEN SENT TO JAIL

Waterbury, Ct., Jan. 22—Ignoring pleas for leniency, Judge Frederick M. Peaslee in a superior court imposed prison and reformatory sentences upon five young Naugatuck men.

John Ruland, 22, and his brother, Herbert, 25, were sent to prison for 18 months, while two younger brothers, James, 22, and Charles, 21, were sent to reform school. Brook Baldwin, 21, was also sent to the reformatory.

Judge Peaslee refused to heed pleas for leniency made by Judge Dennis Brown and Police Chief Mortimer Fowler of Milford, who declared that the men came from good families and that they had run wild after their parents left on their annual trips to Florida.

The quintette was arrested several weeks ago charged with stealing and killing 150 chickens from nearby farmers.

Runaway Auto Hit by Train in Concord

Because the Greenfield to Boston express train was exactly on time and a sedan picked that time to run away down the hill, the sedan met a sad fate in Commonwealth ave., West Concord, today.

As it ploughed through the railroad gates the train tossed it 25 feet.

Brown Men Listen to Dead Chiefs' 'Voices'

Providence, Jan. 22 (INS)—Alumni of Brown University today told of hearing messages from two university presidents now dead.

At the first annual Rhode Island Brown dinner last night the voices of the late E. Benjamin Andrews and William H. P. Faunce were heard through talking machines.

Dentists Now Paint Teeth to Match

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP)—The styles change even in dentistry. Nowadays some dentists hand-paint your new teeth to match the originals.

A CANARY WITH AN ACT

Did you ever hear of a canary who could open a feed box and eat, and then go to a miniature well and pull out a thimble full of water to drink. Well, this canary, Polly, owned by Anthony C. Avila, of Cambridge, can do just that. The canary is shown on his "stage," where he performs these feats. (Staff photo.)

Performing Canary Works for His Eats

Most stage performers have something to do before they get their pay, but there's one who gets his every day, rain or shine. He goes under the stage name of Polly.

Polly, a canary, is the proud property of Anthony Jose Avila, 34, proprietor of a candy store in Hampshire st., Cambridge.

"Tony" has trained the bird and built it a stage on the wall of the store. Polly performs daily.

While standing on his perch Polly opens his feed box and eats, after which he has fed himself. When thirsty he puts on a show with his beak and right foot until a water pail is lowered to him. A chain is fastened to his neck to prevent him from flying away.

Chile Has Borrowed $571,000,000 in U. S.

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 22 (AP)—A total of more than $571,000,000 has been borrowed in the United States in the last ten years by the government of Chile, the Comptroller General's office and the Mortgage Bank, an official statement said today.

The statement was Chile's reply to the request of Senator Johnson, (R.) Ca., who asked for the figures in connection with a U. S. Senate investigation.

MAN AND WIFE MUST NEVER PART IN LIFE

By GEORGE McMANUS

In this day of nickel-in-the-slot divorces on frivolous or groundless causes, the holy institution of matrimony is in a deplorable condition. It is my firm conviction that there should be NO cause for divorce. If a man and wife don't get along—well, that's just too bad—but they are still and should be still man and wife. If they realize that, they will be happy—they will MAKE their happiness.

"For better or worse" they join, and through better or worse they should keep their bargain and their oath before the law of God and man "Until death do us part" is the period of the contract, without an "if."

Misunderstandings sometimes are good for the soul. A man and a woman may love each other devotedly and still clash in disposition and opinion. Husbands should have their say and wives should have theirs. Let them fight it out. But it's their fight and I am against courts as referees. I am against alimony to the winner. I am against parentless children and broken vows and broken homes.

Jiggs and Maggie have never contemplated such a tragedy. Maggie would-bless Jiggs if he ever mentioned such a thing, and I think Jiggs would crown his missus if she talked any such nonsense.

Quarrels?—Yes . . . Neglect? Yes . . . Bitter words? Yes . . . Twenty years of this, but 20 years of unbroken matrimony. This is just part of the great story of Jiggs and Maggie. On Sunday, the "China wedding anniversary" of this world wide pair will be celebrated, in big style. This cartoon was specially drawn by George McManus, the creator, to illustrate some of the many and frivolous excuses given by women to obtain a divorce. The cartoonist's famous drawing hand is shown. This brings this famous couple of the funnies up to their "china" anniversary. That ought to be easy for Jiggs and Maggie to celebrate. They have tossed much china. Prominent men and women of politics, finance, literature, art and industry are included in the guests that will dine in Washington, D. C., next Monday night, in honor of Jiggs and Maggie. If you were married in January, 1912, you are entitled to one of the congratulatory cards from Jiggs and Maggie. All you have to do is write Jiggs and Maggie in care of the Boston Evening American. The eight by ten anniversary card will be mailed to you.

SECOND 5-YEAR PLAN FOR SOVIET

Moscow, Jan. 22 (AP)—The "final uprooting" of capitalism in the villages of Russia was officially announced today as the most important result of the first five-year plan. At the same time instructions were issued for the beginning of the second plan.

Under the second plan, said the report, the living standards of the workers must be raised and the people supplied with two or three times the amount of necessaries of life they had during the operation of the first plan, which Russia hopes to complete this year.

The instructions were contained in reports of Vyacheslaff M. Molotoff, president of the Council of People's Commissars, and V. V. Kuybishev, vice-president of the council and head of the State Planning Commission.

The second five-year plan, the report said, would be a completion of the first, which was prepared as a basis for the most powerful growth of Socialism in the Soviet Union.

It placed heavy industry on a firm footing and transformed Russia from a country of little agriculture into the largest farming nation in the world through the application of collectivism and machine technique.

FOUR FAMILIES ROUTED BY FIRE

Four families were driven to the street when a fire broke out early today on the second floor of a four story dwelling at 194 Huntington ave. The fire started in a dumb waiter and was discovered by Sergeant Harold Watkins, of the Back Bay station, who, after sounding an alarm, rushed into the building and aroused the occupants.

'WIFE SLAYER' IS SUICIDE

Taunton, Jan. 22—Louis Pina, 34, alleged slayer of his wife Eugenia, 29, in Taunton on December 8, died today at the hospital of Bridgewater State Farm, from the effects of a self-inflicted bullet wound when he was arrested following the murder.

Pina shot his estranged wife down in the street during a quarrel, according to the police, and when police collector Frankum approached him he fired a bullet into his head.

He recovered sufficiently to be arraigned in Bristol court and sent to the grand jury, filing in February. Then the wound became infected, paralysis set in and all efforts to save him were fruitless.

Marry-Go-Round

A SOD-WIDOWER IS A PREFERRED RISK

By HELEN ROWLAND

TWO THINGS, which cannot be successfully warmed over, are love and griddle cakes.

In the gamble of marriage, a young bachelor is a speculation, a grass-widower is a long shot, but a sod-widower is a preferred risk.

A woman is always happiest when she is sacrificing herself for a man—and complaining about it

Before a woman gives her support to a political candidate, she insists on knowing what his policies are. But she will elect a man to a life-term as Husband, just because he has good shoulders, misty blue eyes and a cute red roadster.

Most women never know when they've got enough hats; some never know when they've got enough shoes and lots never know when they've had enough husbands.

Considering the kind of girl the modern man selects for a wife, he is lucky if he gets one with enough "domestic instinct" to pick up her own clothes, find her own shoes and brush up her own cigarette ashes.

The great matrimonial problem for lots of young couples, these days, is to decide whose parents they are going to live on.

The mystery of the sexes is not that man ruled the world for so long, but that woman ever stopped changing their minds, their hats and their styles, long enough to get the vote and economic equality.

Some women never stop having operations, until they run out of organs—and cash.

There is always a silver lining. Four men have died of star-crossing since women took to dinettes and redwing diets.

Ed Is Sorry For Going to Celli's

felt that everyone was watching him. The head-waiter, still bowing, was head-waiting. He led the way skirting the dance floor, to a booth in the rear. Ed unceremoniously took his seat without standing for Daisy to sit down. The waiter was close at hand, ferret-eyed and watchful.

"I'll take rye," said Ed.

"Twice," seconded Daisy.

The waiter vanished.

"Why in hell did you want to come here?" asked Ed. "Everybody knows I'm a copper. You make it hard."

"What's the difference?" queried Daisy. She smiled at him and reached across and took his hand. "What's the difference? Don't everyone know coppers can be human?"

"But that head-waiter knows me—did you tip them off? I'd just as soon not be known." And Ed threw himself back in the recess of the booth and crossed his legs to the side.

"Oh, here's Belmonte!" exclaimed Daisy. She moved over as Belmonte, accompanied by Cholo, stopped in front of the booth. Ed started to say something, but merely muttered. Belmonte threw out a friendly hand.

"Hello, Sergeant," he sang, "glad to see you."

"Hello," chimed Cholo. Belmonte took his seat beside Daisy and Cholo at her beside Ed.

"I hear this is your birthday," crooned Belmonte turning a full face on Daisy and ignoring Ed.

"Yes—and here," and I got a bottle of perfume," laughed Daisy.

Ed folded his arms across his chest and leaned forward. But he said nothing. Cholo chuckled. He started to speak, but Belmonte's sharp-toed shoe caught him on the on me. What'll it be? Champagne?"

"Well, said Belmonte, "the party's shin. "Ouch! What's the idea, Ed?"

"If it's cold," said Daisy, glancing at Ed. He sank back in his seat and levelled his eyebrows at the girl.

"Yes—he sure it's cold," he said. But Belmonte seemed to ignore the implication. He beamed and drew forth one of his salt-water stogies. He made a gesture toward the waiter.

"Open up that special stock," he said. He leisurely lighted his cigar, after breaking it in half and tossing part of it on the floor.

"Belmonte," said Daisy, "you made me a proposition once. I think I'll take it. I'm tired living the life of a poor little working girl. Are you on?"

"I'm on—anything you say," and Belmonte smoothed out the table cloth. Ed doubled his fists. Cholo instinctively edged away from him.

The two drinks Daisy and Ed had ordered arrived. Without ceremony Ed gulped his off. He shoved his glass toward the waiter.

"Bring me another," he said. The waiter nodded. Belmonte grinned.

"Hittin' it up tonight?" he asked.

"Yeah? And who' about it?" snarled Ed.

Belmonte shrugged in true Latin fashion.

"Oh, nothin'," he cried. Then he leaned forward and peered in the other's face. "You look like a regular guy," he said in oily tones. "I got a proposition."

"I don't want any of your propositions," exclaimed Ed.

"Well, you wouldn't have to go out of your way," and Belmonte leaned back. "The cops have been bothering up out on Wentworth Street. If they would only lay off between three and four in the morning there might be a little something in it."

Let Love Wait For Studies

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a boy 15 years old, but everyone takes me to be much older. I have been keeping company with a girl a few years older than I and I am afraid she has grown to think a great deal of me. Now I have met a girl nearer my own age whom I like very much and I would like to break off with the first girl, who does not know how old I really am. A. S.

Dear A. S.: I believe the best way would be to tell the girl the truth about your age because girls of 17 or thereabouts prefer to go around with older boys. But why spend so much time with girls at your time of life?

Wants Him to Leave Her

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A few years ago my husband died and I was left with a month old boy. A year later I met a young man and after a few months' courtship we decided to marry. He did not tell his mother about my first marriage or about the baby, for fear she would not consent to it. A month after we were settled in our apartment we told her. From that time on she has continually urged my husband to leave me. L. S. C.

Dear L. S. C.: It would be a very hard-hearted person who would not sympathize with you in such a situation. Since is the mischief-making mother-in-law of novels and tradition, doing what she can to wreck her son's home. Your husband should not be influenced.

New Recipes for Delicious Fresh Fruit Conserves

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

EIGHT NEW RECIPES make their debut in the Martha Lee Cooking school this week—dainty Tomato Bread and Rolls, with all those vital vitamins intact; a dessert of Tapioca Custard with Peanut Brittle, a Pineapple Ice box Cake of vanilla cream wafers and a condensed milk custard, lemon juice and pineapple that was a world beater, Fluffy Scalloped Oysters, two tempting new salads, and, perhaps most interesting of all Rhubarb and Strawberry Conserve.

Fresh fruits can be used for the latter or, more convenient and just as economical, the frozen fruits which we used in our demonstration in the cooking class.

Here's the recipe

RHUBARB AND STRAWBERRY CONSERVE

1 box quick-frosted strawberries

1 box quick-frosted rhubarb, cut in 1-inch pieces

2½ lbs. granulated sugar (5 cups)

6 tbsps. commercial pectin

Place fruit in large kettle. Stir over heat until juice begins to come out. Add sugar, stir constantly, and bring to full rolling boil and boil hard for 3 minutes. Still continue stirring. Remove from fire and stir in commercial pectin. Stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes. Pour quickly, cover hot jam with thin coat of paraffin. When jam is cold, cover with ¼-inch of hot paraffin.

Strawberries and rhubarb contain little pectin—the jelly-making properties found in apples, oranges, lemons and many other fruits—it was necessary to add commercial pectin in sufficient quantity to just jelly this conserve to perfect consistency. Served on the hot Tomato Biscuits, this made a hard-to-beat combination which I hope you're going to try very soon.

Daily True Story

The Poor Boob

LOWELL TREVOR, alias the Professor, was in a mellow mood this evening, as usual. He stood waiting, in the darkness, around the corner of the Elm st. parochial school. The high brick wall protected him perfectly.

He might have half an hour to wait, but he didn't mind. He enjoyed leisure. It gave him time to think. The Professor was considerable of a thinker. He read books; he knew history; he could handle intricate subjects in philosophy.

He could always amuse himself by thinking about silly people who shared the world with him. Hah-hah! They shared it with him, all right. They scurried about like frightened ants to accumulate gold, which the Professor easily took away from them.

In a little while Batchford, the grocer, would be coming along. The man would be carrying home the money taken in at the store. Maybe there would be two or three hundred dollars! Batchford was a fine fellow, an ignorant plodder, just the sort to strive so the Professor could enjoy life.

Trevor closed to himself as he pictured in his mind how the grocer would come blundering along, thinking of a dull wife and whining kids. The poor boob would be anxious to get home.

SEEMED TO BE EASY

But the Professor would step forth, holding up a gun, and walk away with the money. It would be, cheerfully concluded Trevor, almost as easy as thinking about it. It would be easy because the Professor knew how to do such things, because he was of a superior intellect.

He peeked out. There was no one in sight. Perhaps the grocer had stayed late, to take in an extra dollar or two.

Hmph. Maybe the professor would go to Atlantic City for the week-end. He was needing some sort of diversion. Down at Atlantic City the Professor would meet some real people.

Again the Professor looked out. He was cautious about it, because Elm st. was fairly well lighted. But Batchford, the dolt, wouldn't be expecting anything. So there was little cause to bother. And there was Batchford, now, half a block away, striding along just as Trevor had pictured he would be. Just a few seconds now.

No, it wouldn't be bad at all to have a week-end at Atlantic City. Suppose there were $500! Then suddenly the Professor leaned forward tensely, staring at the grocer. What was the matter with the fool? As Trevor watched, he saw the man begin to sway violently, holding a hand to his head.

COULDN'T BE DRUNK

Surely, Batchford couldn't be drunk. A moment ago the grocer was walking vigorously along. Too, the Professor had got pretty well "acquainted" with the man during the past few days. The grocer wasn't a drinking man.

There was only one other conclusion. The fellow was sick. And now, the Professor saw Batchford away more violently and with a lurch fall to the sidewalk.

A sudden impulse swept over the Professor. The man out there was probably dying. Something had to be done. Trevor rushed out to where the grocer lay. It didn't matter if the fellow WAS a stupid fool. He couldn't be left there on that hard concrete to die.

The Professor bent over Batchford. "What is it, old man? Can I help?"

"I—I—I—" gasped the distorted lips.

The professor took hold of the thick shoulders and lifted the grocer half to his feet. "Where do you live? What is your house number?"

"Three — hundred — and — and — forty — ah — four," came the desperate response. Batchford seemed to be biting at the air.

The professor, half carrying the man, hurried as fast as he could toward number 344. He knew it couldn't be far. Batchford's legs were stumbling along, and the poor man was clinging to the professor pathetically.

BEACHED THE DOOR

"Poor devil," muttered Trevor to himself, half aloud.

The grocer seemed to hear. "I'm—I'm—I'm sorry—I have—bothered—you."

"That's all right," said Trevor. "I'm glad to help. You'll be home in a jiffy now."

They reached the door. When the Professor pushed the bell a woman quickly appeared. She was a fat, stupid woman, such a wife as Batchford would be expected to have. She saw at a glance something terrible was wrong, and with a plaintive cry took hold of her husband. "Oh Henry! What is it? What is the matter?"

Batchford seemed to have revived a little. He was able to stand feebly. "Ah, I'll soon be all right, Mary." Then he motioned to the professor. "This man has been kind. I don't know what I'd have done if he hadn't helped. We must repay him somehow."

"Forget it," said Trevor. "But maybe I'd better help get you to bed."

Batchford shook his head. "No, thank you. I'll get along now. Mary can call the doctor. I won't keep you any longer. My name is Batchford." And he held out a hand.

"I'm William Trevor," said the professor, shaking the grocer's hand. It made him feel good to realize that he could shake hands with this stranger and not have to worry. He hadn't robbed the boob. No, he was just as much of a gentleman as Henry Batchford. But it was time to be going. "Hope you're soon all right, Mr. Batchford," said the professor.

"Well, I surely do thank you. Good by." "Good by," and Batchford, the professor thought, closed the door with real tenderness.

As the Professor walked along Elm Street toward down town he was again meditating. "The poor boob! I really feel sorry for him. I suppose I should have taken his dough, but he was having enough bad luck as it was. I hope he doesn't croak."

Meanwhile, back at the Batchford home, the grocer mysteriously recovered from his "attack." He fell into a chair and laughed up at his wife, a rather hysterical laugh, expressing relief and delight.

"I wasn't sick at all, Mary. I've been seeing a fellow hanging around the store the last few days, and I was worried. Then, this evening as I came along by the school I saw a head peeking out. I decided I had to do something mighty quick. So I got the idea of being sick."

"But Henry, maybe Mr. Trevor wasn't going to rob you, after all!"

"No? Maybe not. I don't know that he was going to. But I do know that he didn't. I reckon I was too smart for him, eh?"

Skin Disease Is Curable When Treated Right

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

PSORIASIS is a disagreeable disease of the skin. No one but its victim really appreciates the misery it causes. There is no pain, but the appearance of the skin is greatly embarrassing.

Psoriasis is often confused with eczema, but it is important to distinguish between them. In psoriasis there are circular patches of inflamed skin, and these may be found on any part of the body. Each patch has a red base, varying in size. It is covered with a dry, silvery adherent scale. The inflamed area is exceedingly dry, containing no pus and causing no itching or pain.

Dr. Copeland

Most persons who have psoriasis worry for fear they may pass the disease to other members of the family. There is no such danger. Psoriasis is not contagious and cannot be transmitted from one person to another.

I desire, too, to assure the worried mother that eczema is not contagious. Children are often shunned because of this condition. They need not be.

If you have psoriasis it is important to make every effort to improve your general health. Avoid the excessive use of alcohol, tobacco, tea and coffee. Protein foods, such as lean meats, milk and eggs, should be eaten in moderation.

Many salves and ointments are sold for the relief of this condition. Please do not use any remedy unless it has been prescribed by your physician. Before using the salve, the scaly surface of the skin should be removed. This is best done by a warm bath, using a stiff brush and tincture of green soap.

Answers to Health Queries

F. T. E. Q.—Is there any way in which I can increase my height? My small stature is a hindrance to me. I am 19 years of age and one inch or so over five feet tall.

A.—You will continue to grow and develop generally until you are 21, after that it is impossible to add to the height to an appreciable extent. Join the gymnasium for some all-round systematic stretching and developing exercise.

The Beauty Box

LITTLE MISS MOONFACE musn't let her hair fluff out about her ears; make her face look wider. The straight back effect, front and sides, is her best bet. The lower her hair is at the back, the better for the shape of her head. To make the plump, short neck of more pleasing contour, she must wear the V cut rather than the rounded neck line.

The Distinctive RED CHECKED WRAPPER brings a new taste sensation to your table

Your first taste of Leadership tells you that here is a totally different and delicious table delicacy. Unlike shoulder, unlike ham, it has a delightful flavor distinctively new.

In fact, its flavor, its extreme tenderness, is so different from anything you've ever tasted you'll wonder if it really is shoulder.

You pay no premium for Leadership's enticing flavor, its high quality. For Chamberlain has trimmed all excess fat and bone from each one, you get more rich, clean meat in every pound.

Try a Leadership — enjoy its economy and flavor. At your dealer's today.

HAVE YOU EVER READ THE GENJI LEGENDS? IF so you will know, as we did, that the performance given in honor of the Japanese Society of Boston at the Hotel Statler in the Imperial Ballroom was only a high class vaudeville show, excellent but not classical.

If we were to gather from the presentation that this was a description of the Genji translations from the remarkable legends by Lady Murasaki, or from the No plays of Japan, we need look no further for classical art. But, evidently, even the Japanese know that American audiences must be amused by something cute and most of their performance was just that, cute. It got tremendous applause. Everyone loved it because it was within their understanding, but as a classical interpretation it failed wide of the mark.

The Japanese costumes were gorgeous and the instruments beautiful and rare beyond price. The actors, while dazzling and handsome, did not appear to be aristocrats and were evidently trained in the European school.

Blind Musician Triumphs

THE LOVELY LITTLE JAPANESE GIRL WHO SANG placed her tones in the chest, the European method, while the Japanese sang in head tones. More like a Spanish senorita was the girl who danced, clicking her tiny heels and bobbing about. True classical dances are more ceremonial. We were simply thrilled with the blind Japanese musician, nothing on earth could be more exquisite than his playing of the flute. He is one of the foremost musicians of Japan.

Her Reason

HEARD IN THE LOBBY: One lady subscriber wrote in to Miss Grace Nichols, who is a patron of this art, thusly: Due to the scandalous behavior of the Japanese in Manchuria, I cannot bring myself to view the Japanese in Boston. We can imagine nothing funnier than this except the lady in question refusing to go traveling in China because the Chinaman scrubs the cornerironed her husband a shirts badly.

It was a splendid audience who thronged the large ballroom at the Statler and if we have tempted some of them to read the Genji legends from this, it will suffice as our Girl Scout act for today.

Luncheon Hostesses

MRS. ANDREW ADIE AND her daughter Mrs. Robert B. Almy are giving a luncheon at Woodlands, Mrs. Adie's beautiful home in Chestnut Hill, before the Horse Show at the New Riding Club on Saturday. We glimpsed Mrs. Adie, smartly attired in black ensemble at the musicale yesterday morning. She was accompanied by Mrs Cnan- ning Wells, who was wrapped in the soft folds of her lovely sables.

Mrs. Robert Almy

Quite picturesque in brown Empress Eugenie perched on her blonde locks was Mrs. Morgan Butler, and Mrs. Matthew John Whitall was also very chic in black tricorne. The hats do make a difference this season.

Devoted Couple

A VERY HANDSOME AND devoted couple, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Gavin, enjoyed the playing of Mr. Paderewski immensely and shook hands with him after the performance. At the coffee tables we caught a fleeting glimpse of Mrs. Connne Douglas Robinson and her friend, Mrs. Alexander Hamilton.

Via Private Car

MRS. MYERS WAS BEAMING because the artist had arrived and on time and her popular show could go on. She is the most charming and genial hostess and everyone simply raves about her. Mr. Paderewski came to Boston in his private car and is living on it instead of at a hotel. What an autocrat he is!

Met Mrs. Bradbury Cushing, the sweet wife of Mr Cushing who manages the Hotel Statler, and enjoyed a delightful lunch at the Cafe Rouge.

In Usher Group

DOROTHY LAWRENCE HAS chosen her ushers for the annual dinner of the Council of Social Agencies which will be held Thursday evening at the Chamber of Commerce. They will be Anne Clifford, Rebecca Hallowell, Anne Houghton, Mary Loring, Anne Peabody and Harriet White.

Evening gowns are long waisted and narrow to the hips, then flare widely.

A succession of parties has enlivened the Palace and the Kulm hotels. At one of them, Countess Tolstoy, formerly Mary Frothingham of Boston, wore a cherry-colored mousseline de soie cut on classical lines, with a belt of the same material clasped by a buckle of pink and green stones. A black velvet shoulder cape, black shoes and gloves completed the costume.

At the Palace Embassy ball were Mrs. Mabel Barwood of Hollywood, in a tricolored lace, brown shading to orange to drab; Miss Rosie Doily in emerald green lace with necklace and bracelets of diamonds. Miss Dora Duby, the American dancer from Paris, in jade green satin with a pyjama, cross-folded skirt. Miss Peggy Morel of New York, in white satin; Mrs. Harvey D. Gibson in black ring velvet with touches of white. Miss Helen W. Bourne of New York also wearing black. Mrs. Harold Lawrence in shimmering black, and Miss Helen W. Pillsbury of Minneapolis, in midnight blue lace.

Peabody House Group to Give Operetta

"The Mikado," that inimitable Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, will be presented by the clubs and class groups of the Elizabeth Peabody House at 357 Charles st., on Feb. 18 and 19 in the small theater that is part of the Peabody House.

Among the many interested sponsors of this production are Miss Elizabeth Eliot, chairman of the drama committee of the Settlement House, and others include several members of the board of directors of the house: Mr George L. Batchelder, Mrs. Charles E. Blanchard, Mrs. Clifford Brigham, Miss Winifred Cunningham, Mr Philip Foreman, Mrs Charles Ewing, Miss Langdon Frothingham, Miss Mary E. Haslinger, Mr. George C. Lee, Jr., Miss Jane Megrew, Mrs. Samuel J. Newman, Mr. Henry J. Sargent, Mrs. Gerard W. Swift, Mrs. Guy Waring, Mrs. Ezra Whiting White and Miss Edith B. Weidell.

Several of these lovely operettas have been produced before by the boys and girls who have classes at the Peabody House including "Iolanthe," "Pinafore," "Trial By Jury," and "The Pirates of Penzance," all of which made a great impression at the time of their presentation.

Miss Susannah R. Dabney, Miss Clara B. Davis, Miss Lydia Evans, Miss Helen Jackson, Mrs Thomas W. Little and Miss Rosamond Crompton will serve at the tea tables after the concert is over.

Society Formed to Save Wild Flowers

An application for a certificate of incorporation of the New England Wild Flower Preservation Society has been filed with the Secretary of State by Jeanne M. Coit, of Newton, and 11 others.

The purpose of the society is "the education of the public in the knowledge and protection of the native wild flowers and trees, and the practice of conservation of plant life."

Stripes Latest in Styles for Dresses

By DOROTHY ROE

New York, Jan. 22 (UB)—Stars and stripes form the latest news from the fashion front.

Striped dresses with star-shaped buttons are brighten up the shop windows these days and judging from the reactions of the wary shoppers we are to be a nation in stripes this spring.

They can run any old way just so they're stripes—diagonal, horizontal or vertical, they're all smart.

Diagonally striped sheer woolens in the hues of Joseph's coat of many colors fashion some of the gayest dresses for wear right now, under somber winter coats.

A crepe blouse with bias-lines of matching striped stripes cunningly cut to achieve the new wide-shouldered effect, has tiny cap sleeves tied up in a bow, a trim striped belt and a bow at the V-neck.

Striped sweaters already have established their popularity—and the more directions of stripes you can combine in one small sweater, the smarter you'll be.

Striped ascots have matching handbags.

BOSTON COUNTESS FETED

Former Mary Frothingham at Swiss Resort

By MABEL S. MADDEN

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service Inc.)

St. Moritz, Jan. 22—Indoors and out, there is one ceaseless flow of gaiety here. Most people, taking breakfast in their rooms, wait until 11 to appear in skiing or skating outfits.

A novelty in women's ski dress this year is the flannel shirtwaist in check. Large checks are also worn for sports skirts, but most women wear long trousers, loosely cut and fastened into their heavy ski boots with colored socks that appear over the edge of the boot. Scarves matching the socks are worn, with perhaps a similarly colored beret or wool cap.

The brightness of the colors and daring of the patterns are the notes struck by the woolen pullovers which are worn even at fashionable.

Girl About Town

Doorway Men

Tonight as I passed a doorway
I heard a loiterer say,
"Mmm! That's how I like them—youngish!"
How do they get that way?

It's "men" of that stripe who rile me;
You know—the kind that gloats
If they'd only look in a mirror—
Especially without their coats!

When bothered by males of that type,
I think of their mother, or wife,
Who has lavished devotion on them—
MY idea of a misspent life!
—Margo.

Spilling the Beans

Wonder why Banker Tom Cochran isn't going to that old-fashioned beau-ripple at the Wollaston Country Club tomorrow night? Could the reason be another directors meeting? . . . (It's your club friends who want to see you this, Tom) . . . Raw Jack La Rue and his vaudeville revue to be regarded at the Mayfair Wednesday eve. . . . Hell reopen Show Boat the 16th of April with Tex Rinea and his boys still there . . . The Lavaggi roof-top place in the Motor Mart will gather dust for another season, wisely enough—but fat purses are in vogue again, anyhow! . . . Mrs. Percy Musgrave was the first Bostonian to use the telephone radio listening in that may become popular once long. Last October owing to illness Mrs. Musgrave was unable to attend her son's marriage ceremony with Marguerite Swan in Stockbridge, Ct., and the Hub phone folks made it possible for her to hear everything clearly, as she listened in at her Marlborough st. residence . . .

On Our Band Wagon

It looks very much as if preparations are already in execution to confirm the rumor that pals Adele Astaire will quit stage-stepping with brother Fred to be gold-banded soon to that English nobleman . . . We noticed, opening night of the "Band Wagon" here, that it was very much Fred's show . . . He's never been better, has plenty of new tricks including an exquisite ballet number . . . Between acts, everyone was discussing his work and agreeing that he was quite capable of carrying on alone in his own clever fashion . . . Even City Censor John Casey stopped to tell us "I loved every bit of it" . . . Never realized what a clever mimic Fred is, either." . . . One topic of feminine chatting was those dainty figured, grey, cherry-trimmed or gaudies the girls wore in the "High and Low" number . . . And Max Math's almost dance-like bendings and swayings as he conducted the music . . . And who but hilarious Helen Broderick could get a gown that parched any sappier-looking one her head, or make shopping for bathroom fixtures such fun? . . . Anyone who listened to the Colonial expecting to see Frank Morgan a similar character to his "Topaz" of last season was delightfully surprised to find a truly sophisticated top-notch revuester . . . (And night before last, Frank was equally as delightful when meeting the entire kitchen staff at the Mayfair even going so far as to tear a fresh lobster claw with Steward Jack Roberts and applauding Neapolitan tunes sung for his special pleasure by Sabatino Pepe.

About Folks You've Seen

With some of you readers asking and writing us what we know about pleasant people who have sojourned in Boston recently, we thought you all might be interested to know that Arthur Byron is now at Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Replogle's former palatial $400,000 establishment in Palm Beach . . . It's now known as the Colony . . . Ambassador Bath Club . . . Opened last Friday . . . Very swanky and all that . . . And Sally-of-the-Movies Rand is doing THAT dance at the Villa Bouche, Miami Beach, and rooms and pals with Schanz De Lima (the half of the dancing De Limas who resents being only she looks intellectual) . . . It's heard that while Tamara strains her guitar at the Club Lido at the same Beach something murky about that drummer boy, way up here at 84 Broadway . . . Since Dec. 31 Maxine Lewis has been singing her sweet songs at Bill Duffy's $35,000 Chesterfield Lido, Daytona Beach Florida . . . Speeds seven hours daily on the beach and has become a sun-bather, too . . . Grace Hayes rejoined "The Little Racketeer" cast the night before it reopened . . . Taking along her trunks filled with generous assortment . . . Incidentally, even some of the stage itself moves in Grace's part before she finally agreed to hop to it the last minute . . . Ross Roland will be smiling at Yale's sons beginning today . . .

Briefly Speaking

One stringed-instrument playing chap we know is that happy these days because he is appearing to be able to light fire-crackers and shoot Roman candles for a new pair of tiny eyes to witness about that time . . . More later on this . . . Ed Costa, moving picture projectionist at the "Met," gave us his barrister aspirations to unreel the celluloid . . . And Thad Barrows, the ace projectionist there, is a television enthusiast and can tell you anything you want to know about the invention which is slowly sneaking up on us . . .

JAMES DUNN AND SALLY EILERS RETURN

Stars Now in "Dance Team"

By HARRIS MORGAN

James Dunn and Sally Eilers have been called the "wonder team" of 1931 in the movies. The success of the pair in "Bad Girl" and "Over the Hill" will probably keep them together through 1932, and beyond. Now they come in "Dance Team," to make it three triumphs in a row. Their newest film is being featured at the Olympia and Uptown this week.

Few film players in recent years have leaped to fame so quickly as have these two youngsters. To find a parallel one must go back to the silent days when Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell were brought from obscurity to stardom. And it was the same director, who discovered Janet and Charlie in their first picture, Fox's "Seventh Heaven," who directed the photoplay that lifted Sally and Jimmy to stardom.

The women fans will be particularly interested in some facts about Pola Negri, star of "A Woman Commands," now on the RKO Keith screen. She cares little for food. Says one reason she likes America is that people here eat to live and not live to eat. To her mealtimes are a ceremony, and the gourmand boasts of his habits.

Lengthy set exercises of the "daily dozen" type. Likes to swim, play tennis, golf, ride horseback, take long walks and pay various beach games. Is intensely pro American. Says that this country, after Europe, is as exhilarating as a glass of champagne.

Robeson Sings Next Week

Paul Robeson the great Negro singer, who will be heard in a Symphony Hall recital next Tuesday evening, was born in Trenton, N. J., the youngest son of a Methodist minister who had earned his way through Lincoln University. After graduating Rutgers College, Paul Robeson completed a two-year course at Columbia University and took his law degree . . . He was chosen by Eugene O'Neill to act in "Emperor Jones," his first appearance in the theater. After this he played in "All God's Chillun," "Porgy" and "Black Boy."

Miss Cohen in Piano Recital at Fine Arts

The patrons of the Fine Arts theater are to be afforded another treat Thursday evening in addition to the new German musical comedy, "Meine Freundin Su Goldig Wie Du" Miss Marjory Cohen will be heard in a half hour of piano solos consisting of compositions by Debussy, Rubinstein, Granados, Matthay and Buxtehude.

Miss Cohen has recently returned from several years of study in Europe under some of the world's leading musicians. While there she took part in the overseas broadcasts conducted by a dozen various countries and succeeded in carrying the prize for America.

Tangara comes to the Howard Monday as the dance star on the new bill there.

Kiki Roberts, former Follies star, will be a stage feature at the Scollay next week.

Gloria San Swanson's latest film, "Tonight or Never," is now at the Orpheum.

"Prince and Pauper" at the Majestic Tomorrow

Demands of the elaborate and intricate production used in the morning of Robert V. Newman's mystery melodrama, "Trick for Trick," which will open Monday night at the Plymouth, has made it necessary to transfer Saturday morning's presentation of "The Prince and the Pauper" from the Plymouth to the Majestic.

'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde' at Fenway and Modern

"Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde" will be screened today at the Fenway, and also at the Modern. Paramount has given "Dr. Jekyl and Hyde" a superb cast headed by Fredric March, Miriam Hopkins and Rose Hobart. The companion feature on the twin theaters program is "Neck and Neck," a story of the race track. The cast is headed by Glenn Tryon and Vera Reynolds.

Globe Trotter

The 12th anniversary of the enfreement of the Eighteenth Amendment is "celebrated in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The Globe Trotter supplies some statistics and Senator Morris Sheppard, Democrat of Texas, speaks on behalf of prohibition. He declares the law has been a success in that it has improved the morals of the people, added to their savings and is at the present time meeting with the approval of a large majority of industrial heads.

Senator M E Tydings of Maryland, likewise a Democrat, delivers exactly an opposite opinion in no uncertain terms he denounces the law as an absolute fa ure declaring that during its life the record of lawlessness has been richer than ever before in the history of the country, that it has undermined morals, and deprived the government of an enormous revenue in addition to having cost other billions.

A brilliant throng attends the reopening of the Hialeah Park race track in Florida. The birth of the new Spanish Republic is acclaimed in historic Granada with a demonstration in front of the City Hall.

On Lake Placid at Cape Ill the Norge Club hosts its championship tourney in which Kees Walberg of the Norwegian team sets a record with a leap of 161 f t. The season's winter sports is opened at Yosemite National Park with a costume pageant participated in by a great throng including Governor Rolph.

Dance Recital at Symphony

By MOSES SMITH

Harald Kreutzberg returned to Symphony Hall last night to present again his astonishing and beautiful art of the dance. In place of Yvonne George, who has partnered him in the past, Kreutzberg was accompanied by four young ladies who were labelled on the program "his group and their names were set down as Ilse Meudner, Ira Hagfors, Araca Makarowa and Almuth Winckelman.

The program was pleasantly compounded of old and new numbers though the announced tableau Petrouchka was cancelled for some reason and the list as a whole was somewhat lighter than Kreutzberg's previous Boston programs. None the less, there was ample opportunity for him to show anew his extraordinary grace and plasticity, his interpretative genius that makes one looking a pleasure and not an esoteric science, and his boundless vitality and manly vigor. One might single out again the fragile and feminine but not effeminate —beauty of "Angel of Annunciation" or the gripping power of "Gesta in excelsis deo." An amusing comedy, entitled "The Envious Girls," mimed by the whole company, was presented here for the first time, an imitation of the style of the 18th century Dutch painter, Breughel.

James Cagney to Star in Fight Film; Tops Warner Bros.' Money Makers

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Jan. 22—Who, do you think at this moment, is at the tip top of Warner Brothers' money makers? None other than James Cagney who broke so many records in "Taxi" and "Blonde Crazy." Darryl Zanuck intends to continue to build young Cagney's popularity by getting good stories. He has just purchased a short story by Gerald Beaumont called "133 at 3."

Louella O. Parsons

I was curious to know the meaning of the mathematical title. Mr. Zanuck explained it is the story of a fighter who must weigh 133 pounds at 3 o'clock when he weighs in before the fight officials.

Roy Del Ruth who directed "Taxi" and "Blonde Crazy" will again be called in as director. Robert Lord is writing the adaptation. You naturally expect Jimmy's best screen gal, Joan Blondell, to emote opposite him but another date with another Warner star will prevent.

Triumph for Marion

The review of "Polly of the Circus" brought out scores of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer players, directors, etc. But even larger in number than the M-G-M moguls were the sidewalk standees, all of them seeking Marion Davies' autograph and the signatures of Hoot Gibson, Sally Eilers, Big Boy Williams, Babe Daniels, Ben Lyon and others at the theater. "Polly of the Circus" is guaranteed to thrill even the most blase audiences. Oh, those trapeze performers and Marion making everybody's heart stand still while she takes flying leaps through the air. This picture has much of the charm of "Daddy Long Legs" and furthermore it again proves it is those sweet, simple stories that the dear public craves.

New Film for Ayres

An aviation story for Lew Ayres is the next Universal number chosen for him. Carl Laemmle, Jr., who constantly and consistently burns the midnight oil to get the right stories, has purchased "The Empty Chair," an unproduced three-act play of thrilling aviation during the World War. "The Empty Chair" is not, Junior explained, to be a big production like "All Quiet on the Western Front" but it is an entertaining story, well told by its authors, James Hall and Charles Nordhoff. "And," added Junior, "if it had reached the stage it have no doubt it would have been a successful play."

Hollywood Chatter

After Tomorrow" is the first picture Al Rockett okayed after he took the chair as production boss at Fox. Frank Borzage emerged from the boss' office with smiles so apparently all is quiet on the Potomac. Ivor Novello is leaving American pictures for a while. He has obtained a six months' leave of absence from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to appear in a play in England and perhaps make a motion picture. Radio has purchased "The Prodigal Daughter" by Grace Leake. Rochelle Hudson, Wampas baby star, is in "Hold 'Em, Jail." By the way, someone was telling me that Robert Woolsey, Bert Wheeler, Norman Taurog and Tim Whalen are sentenced to San Quentin. However, it's only for a few exteriors and interiors of "Hold 'Em, Jail."

Seen and Heard

Fires has been written on the Mona Maris-Clarence Brown romance. The rumored marriage will not take place, in fact, Miss Maris has decided to concentrate on her career. She has been seriously ill with bronchial pneumonia and is now convalescing. It was while she was sick she decided to say "adieu" and end what looked to all the Maris-Brown friends like a real romance. Neither Miss Maris nor Mr. Brown will discuss what caused the argument that ended in a permanent break. Ruth Chatterton has moved into her bungalow on the Warner's lot. No, it isn't.

ROUTINE BROADCASTING

Program Chief Discusses Variety

By N. Y. T.

One program executive in America's radio realm is inclined to resent any suggestion that offerings on the air waves are becoming overly routine.

Said studio Solon is Julius F. Seebach, director of doings day by day for Columbia Broadcasting System headquarters in New York. He very gently takes a well known Gotham radio writer to task for passing an opinion to the general effect that greater variety might be in order.

LIMITED SCOPE

Mr. Seebach defends his position with a statement wherein he says: "Radio has but three basic foundations for entertainment. They are speaking, singing and the playing of instruments. Variations of these forms are possible, but they still represent all the latitude we have. Being thus limited, it is no wonder radio seems to be suffering from routine."

Further along in his communication, Seebach points out "Just because an orchestra with a quartet or a quartet and a soloist is scheduled to follow another program of the same make-up, doesn't mean the two will be identical." Radio chieftains are constantly striving to master the art of program lineup to avoid sameness, according to other passages from the document.

UNAVOIDABLY DETAINED

An audition was recently arranged for four speakeasy waiters. No, no, not in Boston, but in a very big station of another city. Just before time for the audition, a phone call informed production men the test would be impossible. "Our Tenor and Bass went to jail after a raid last night," said the baritone voice on the other end. "But we'll have them both out tomorrow," he added assuringly.

Seth Parker's photoplay, "Way Back Home," is reported to have done so poorly on Broadway, New York, that theater bosses pulled it out before the run was completed.

Rudy Vallee, Paul Whiteman and a host of other "mike" favorites are listed among the Veterans of Foreign Wars program heard from three cities tonight at 11:30. Listen, ere hereabouts can catch it through WRZ.

LOCAL LATHER . . .

Crossed-up Pilsbon Post legionnaires enjoyed a Yankee Network radio treat at their luncheon yesterday . . . Songs by Helen Barr, Emily McKenzie, Morton Bowe, Edward Jardon. The Meistersingers, a musical program by Charles Hester's Orchestra and Organist Francis Cronin delighted the gathered guests . . . Among those present at the speakers' table were Post Commander Edward C. Edwards, Roy L. Harlow, John Shepard, 3d, Linus Travers, Charles Florian and Gerald Harrison . . . WAAD featured said festivities between 1 and 2 p. m. . . . Tonight at 5:30 (WEEI) Councilman Laurence Curtis speaks for The North End Union, a benevolent institution in existence for 40 years . . . Never once during that time has any public appeal for assistance been made . . . An unhappy air artist of our fair city seems to think your Uncle N. F. T. should change his initials to N. G. T. . . . Imagine harboring that sort of spirit. The very thought produces pain . . . yet one must carry on to the end, which is right here for today. Let's not make it the bitter end.

Bit on Big Fights. Months,—Not Rounds. War Outside Ropes.

Der Max's Manager. Old Carpet Bagger. Man of Blackstone.

A Once Over of the Guy Behind the Stogie

For 39 minutes in the ring against Dempsey at Chicago, in closing nine minutes of rest, Gene Tunney received a cool $990,000. . . He was paid at the rate of $25,308.45 per minute . . . For every second the watch ticked off Gene found himself $421.80 the richer . . . Each $421.80 was made quicker than it takes to say it . . . But the 10 or 15 rounds a fighter is in the ring only is a part, sometimes an infinitesimal part of a Big Fight . . . In reality a Big Fight generally is fought over a period of many weary months—sometimes years . . . Oftimes there is more fighting outside of the ropes than inside of them . . . Frequently the managers do more fighting than the fighters . . . A championship fight is won by a manager as often as it is by the fighter . . . As an instance take Mickey Walker and Jack Kearns . . . Do you think Smiling Mickey would have climbed into so many profitable matches by himself and without the aid of the foxy, astute, scheming, manipulating Kearns? . . . For years the overgrown and frequently beaten middleweight has been getting matches he never qualified for, or was entitled to . . . Without Kearns Mickey might have passed into pugilistic oblivion by now . . . Perhaps it would have been better for him if he had . . . But that's another tale.

It was not by his bindgrooming fists alone that Max Schmeling, the poor German boy, came to America and transformed himself from a panper to a millionaire in a couple of cycles of the months . . . The shrewd eyed, tight lipped gent behind the big black stogie Burris Jenkins sketches for you in other columns had much to do with it . . . As much as, and perhaps, if the truth were known more than, the Black Uhlan, himself . . . A shrewd, astute, clever, scheming, conniving, manipulating gent is Joe Jacobs, otherwise known as "Yussel the Muscle" . . . Perhaps he eventually will be, perhaps now is, just as much of a master manipulator as the perfumed pilot who, after many others failed, made Jack Dempsey the greatest gate attraction in the history of sport and piloted Little Mickey Walker into the Big Money . . . Let's fan a bit on this lean and hungry looking Cassius who came out of the Ghetto in New York and planted the scaling ladders up which the black eyed, tawny thatched German youth mounted to the fistic ramparts to fame and fortune . . . Let's look over Max Schmeling and his managerial entourage.

Joe "Yussel the Muscle" Jacobs has lived by his wits since he wore knee pants . . . Originally, we believe, when virtually only a mere kid, he was a partner in pre-prohibition days of a "dump" in New York's East Side . . . "Dug in" in boxing handling preliminary fighters in dingy little clubs . . . Worked deeper, ever deeper . . . As manager his first Big Shot was Mike McTigue, former middleweight champion of the world . . . Bowid Michael McTigue from County Clare and "Yussel the Muscle" from the Ghetto, were a queer and contrasting pair . . . Besides an agile brain "Yussel the Muscle" had nerve—plenty of it . . . When Young Stribling's K. K. K. sympathizers threatened to string both Bowid Michael and "Yussel the Muscle" to the same limb of that sour apple tree down in Georgia "Yussel the Muscle" took it a lot more calmly than did the fighter . . . Cold steel had to be shoved right into Yussel's ribs before he gave in to Stribling and his hooded henchmen . . . A queer angle to the Jacobs Stribling fend, was, as we told you a few days ago, it later found Jacobs and Pa Stribling partners in a Florida promotorial venture and Young Stribling in the opposite corner to Yussel's fighter, Max Schmeling, in the heavyweight title fight in Cleveland . . . When the old do-ri-mi is concerned a little thing like making up with a fellow who once threatened to string you up by the neck, doesn't interfere with "Yussel the Muscle."

Associated with "Yussel the Muscle" in the Schmeling enterprise are many men known and unknown . . . As a known partner Yussel has the colorful Billy McCarney, the Old Carpet Bagger . . . As a more or less secret partner there is Gambling Pete Reilly—and others . . . McCarney has been mixed in the fight racket since Hector was a pup . . . Was a fighter himself once . . . Found for his health and also found an easier way . . . Bill's specialty is the ballyhoo and the circus . . . A great circus man . . . It was McCarney who took Luis Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Pampas, on the grand tour prior to the Firpo-Dempsey fistic blizzard . . . Going down in the train from New York to Philadelphia for the Firpo-Weinert bout McCarney and Slim Brenan spent an hour elucidating to us why the Firpo-Weinert bout was sure to be on the level . . . Until then we had no suspicions it wouldn't . . . We thought Weinert went "in the tank" and we said so . . . A couple of years later Charlie proved he did by haggling the Wild Bull the most artistic licking he ever received.

McCarney is a great raconteur and a jovial fellow but Tragedy has camped on his trail . . . He was behind Luther McCarthy when the Missouri heavyweight was killed in his bout with Arthur Pelky in Calgary . . . Promoted the show in which Mickey Shannon was killed by Al Roberts . . . "Had a piece" of Bull Young, who was killed by Jess Willard . . . Being a partner in managership of world's champion occasionally goes to McCarney's head . . . Sometimes has much trouble in getting hat to fit him . . . McCarney is getting along into years but can jump like a 2-year-old when Jacobs or Pete Reilly crack the whip . . . Old Bill is a globe trotter . . . Goes places . . . A snappy dresser and knocks 'em dead on Rotten Row, the Rue de la Paix and Unter den Linden.

Here we are down almost to the bottom of the column—and the Big Boss warned us to keep away from the bottom—without reference to perhaps the most important man in the Schmeling entourage, Charlie White, the big Blackstone man . . . Seldom has, him mentioned but he's the Big Works in the Schmeling Crew . . . Former secretary of the N. Y. State Athletic Commission . . . Assistant District Attorney in N. Y. . . . Protege of the late Tom Foley, political boss . . . Charlie is a former Yale football and baseball star . . . Son of Charlie White, Sr., the famous "Old Good Eye," noted old time referee and art connoisseur . . . White is "Yussel the Muscle's" legal brains . . . Heavyweight championships these days depend as much upon Blackstone as upon Queensberry . . . Charlie White, the barrister, had as much to do as "Yussel the Muscle" in making Max Schmeling what he is, today . . . We hope he's satisfied.

BAY STATE HAS CORNER ON CATCHERS

By JOE CASHMAN

Seven big league clubs have Massachusetts boys listed as catchers on their 1932 rosters. The magnates are playing a

Bean : Mickey Cochrane Frank Hogan and Gabby Hartnett, the best baseball catchers in the game are all Bay State products, this neck of the woods is looked upon as a most fertile field for receivers and any local lad who claims to be a backstop is rated as deserving of a try on the game

With the great Cochrane and a pair of efficient substitutes, the champion Philadelphia Athletics have no need of another catcher, yet they have taken on one Burton Henri Hammond, who has had no pro experience but happens to hail from down Rockland way.

The Braves, being one of the clubs that overlooked Cochrane when he was at Boston University aren't going to make such a fatal blunder again, if they can help it There is a promising young receiver down in Whitman by the name of John Reason and he is going to be taken along in the Tribe's

Howie Story to Spell Berry for Red Sox

The Red Sox let out Muddy Ruel last year as soon as they discovered that young Hewis Story of Pittsfield could work a game behind the plate without getting hit on the head. Now they are counting on the boy from the Berkshires acting as first string substitute to Charlie Berry this coming season

It is not in the code of Manager John McGraw of the Giants to waste much time with rookies who don't make good from the start, but he is going to try out Francis Healy, a kid catcher from Holyoke for a third time. The state that produced Al Hogan might produce another, you know

The Red Sox didn't think as much of the catching of Rob Ashy of Concord but they no sooner turned him loose than Cincinnati picked him up. And if he isn't good enough to do considerable receiving for the Reds this coming campaign Waynesboro Dan Howley will be greatly surprised

Still another Bay State catcher who is expected to develop into a big league regular is Gene Desautels, former Holy Cross star who is with Tigers.

That makes nine natives of Massachusetts who are now listed as catchers on big league rosters, and there may be more. No other state can come close to tieing that record.

Johnny Benson, the Braves rookie, was born in Whitman 21 years ago, played for Whitman high school and for the Whitman team in the Old Colony League. The Braves picked him up late last summer, when he was batting .370, and shipped him up to Binghamton N. Y. He showed a great arm and plenty of class as a hitter and catcher

DODGERS TURN LUQUE ADRIFT

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Adolfo Luque, veteran pitcher, and Rube Bressler, veteran outfielder, today were given their unconditional releases by the Brooklyn National Club

Both entered the big leagues the same year 1914, Luque with Boston and Bressler with Philadelphia as a pitcher. Bressler went to Cincinnati in 1917 and Luque a year later and both played with Red Lucas during their best days. Bressler came to Brooklyn in 1928 and Luque two years later

Luque had a good year with Brooklyn in 1930, winning 14 games and losing eight, but he was injured early last year and was of little use to the Brooklyn club winning five and losing two.

The release of Luque breaks up the only Cuban battery in the major leagues. He and Al Lopez, the young Brooklyn catcher from Havana, formed the Spanish-speaking combination

BOOKIES HIT BY BETTING COUP

New Orleans, La., Jan 22 (AP)—A group of gamblers was reputedly approximately $100,000 richer today by reason of a "build up" coup they staged in the first race at Jefferson Park

The "leaders" bet on Charm, the favorite, quoted odds on at 1 to 2, in the race, and then, at post time, wagered approximately $10,000 on other horses to build up Charm's odds to pay $1840 as winner on a $2 mutual ticket

Bookmakers over the country were believed by the informed to have lost heavily, in "building" on Charm, once owned by Al Cayens and trained by C. S. Stubbs, the gamblers took a chance, as the mare barely got home in front of Finger Tip in the six-furlong race Charm figured in a 40-to-1 coup a few years ago at the fair grounds track here. Track officials said they were powerless to prevent the coup, since they must take any bet down through the mutual windows

A few weeks ago Agua Caliente experienced a similar but smaller coup in the Linde Cup Handicap.

Schoolboy Notes

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Seven games are again scheduled in the Boston Arena tomorrow morning with Latin facing Commerce, Hyde Park vs East Boston English vs Mechanics, Memorial vs B. C. high, South Boston vs. Jamaica Plain, Dorchester vs. Brighton and Charlestown vs Trade

In the Latin-Commerce clash two undefeated teams will come together and this game will be the feature of the morning's puck chasing

South Boston is also undefeated and is clashing with the champions of one year ago, Jamaica Plain, Jamaica has two of the finest players in the city ranks in Charlie Hoar and Stan Wolliston and a classy goalie in Nick Revaltis.

Jamaica lost to Latin on a fluke in its first game to Latin, 21 when Hoar accidentally kicked in a goal on his own nettings. Then Jamaica came back and tied Kingsbridge a week ago and is going strong again.

Four games will be played in this loop tomorrow at the Boston Garden with Hingham Tech playing undefeated Newton; Melrose, also undefeated, playing Stoneham; Cambridge Latin battling Belmont, and Medford mixing with Arlington.

A new ruling in the Greater Boston Interscholastic league states that only games played in the Boston Garden will count in the standings. This rule was made because what little ice there has been outdoors this season has been exceedingly poor and the schoolboys are hampered by bad breaks on a rough surface.

Bill Carson Classed as Great Ice Scorer

Mike Rodden is one of Canada's leading hockey authorities. He was a star player in Ottawa before he moved to Toronto, and is now refereeing in the National, International and Mercantile leagues

As Told to Bill Grimes
By MIKE RODDEN

Having signed Bill Carson to his first professional hockey contract, I was naturally keenly interested in the Boston Evening American's recent article describing the Harvard-Toronto varsity game back in 1922 during which "Doc" scored four goals.

In those days, Bill Carson had not been developed as a defense player. He was fast and tricky and in my opinion, one of the greatest goal getters the game ever produced.

Carson Wing of Fast Varsity Sextet

After a long hard elimination series in 1921, Toronto varsity and the Canadian Soo were the Eastern finalists. Varsity had about the same team that played against Harvard the next season, with the exception of Olsen, the center. Carson and Hudson were the wings with Brown and Ramsay on the defense and Langley in the goals

The Soo was an all-star outfit, with Bill Cook, now of Rangers fame, at right wing; Bill Phillips Montreal Maroons, at center, and Roy Lessard, now played for Philadelphia a year ago, the left winger Babe Donnelly and Gerald Munro were on the outer defense and "Flat" Walsh, another Maroon, as the goal minder.

Carson and Bill Cook Amateur Ice Kings

In those days, Bill Carson and Bill Cook were the standouts in the amateur ranks. Varsity feared Cook and the Soo knew that Carson was the man it had to stop. Cook was ordered to cover Carson, and "Doc's" instructions were to cover Cook

During the game I have reference to Bill Carson was at his peak. I never saw him display such speed and he appeared to be tireless. He skated Bill Cook dizzy, besides breaking up most of the Soo's rushes by back checking

It was evident from the start that Bill Cook had bitten off more than he could chew in attempting to cover Carson. Carson was not only too fast for the Soo winger, but he outsmarted him time and again

Despite the previous success of the Canadian Soo team, it was no match for varsity, which ran in a total of 13 goals, of which Bill Carson scored nine. The Soo managed to caze the puck three times, and two of these goals were made by Bill Cook

After outclassing the Canadian Soo, Varsity went through and won the Allan Cup, emblematic of the amateur championship of the Dominion of Canada. Varsity was deserving of ton honors for, in my opinion, it was the greatest amateur team ever brought together, even superior to the Varsity Grads of later years.

DEMPSEY MAY BOX LEVINSKY

Chicago Jan 22 (INS) Jack Dempsey will make an appearance in a Chicago ring February 18 for the first time since his famous 14-round battle with Gene Tunney four years ago

The Manassa Mauler was signed today for a four-round exhibition in the Chicago Stadium with the probability that King Levinsky will be his opponent, provided the King fish will accept the financial inducements Levinsky with recent victories over Tommy Loughran and Paulino Uzcudun is the man Dempsey wants to meet

Dempsey, regarded as a ring idol in Chicago, figures to draw one of the biggest crowds that ever witnessed a boxing show in the Stadium.

So far as known Dave Barry, charged with giving Tunney the "long count," will not be the referee.

Wrestling Results

By the Associated Press

Boston—Henri Deglane, 227, Fresno, defeated Nick Lutze, 211, Los Angeles, two out of three falls (Time: 15:10, 10:00); Deglane secured 10:00, and third, 15:00; Al Meroff, 218, Boston, threw Rob Wilkie, 210, New York, 38:15; Jim Moriello, Texas, threw Pat O'Hara, Ireland, 14:15; Jim Sullivan, Providence, and Jake Patterson, Syracuse, N. Y., drew.

Lowell—Ali Baba, 208, Libya, defeated Mike Romano, Italy, straight falls (15:50 and 6:58); Jim McMillan, Illinois, threw Bill Nelson, Bulgaria, 20:30.

DeGlane's Crown Shaken Loose

DeGlane's crown wabbled on his head like the float on a fishing line in the sea of roars from the 14,000 frenzied fans

Would it sink? The crowd was with Lutze. The crowd begged him to wrench DeGlane's arms off. To break his legs. To strangle him.

DeGlane Retains Title by Top Body Hold

DeGlane kept his title by a top body hold in 35 minutes 7 seconds.

In the battling preceding the third fall, both men were like a pair of lumps trying to shove each other home. Neither knew the way. But they were both going somewhere. Glane, fortunately, was first under the lamppost, and was recognized by the official police as the champion.

Boston has never seen such a strong e. It perhaps will never again see its like. Fourteen thousand persons saw the battle. Four thousand were turned away. The nearest point at which a car could have been got was eight o'clock was Roxbury Crossing

The preliminary matches consisted all the brutality that is forbidden, even by the Animal Rescue League. While women, pale in their powder under the 17 lights that lit the ring shrieked their dissonant chorus, and dignified man rose like sheep in a wind to cheer, the contestants fought on.

There were more kicks than could be counted in the Congressional Record

There was more hair pulling than you could find in an alley on a festive fighting day. There were more bouts than you could find in the Russian army. And one wrestler, we bet his dot that was feeding him . . . punches.

Fighting, Headwork Keep Action Hot

There was more fighting than in the best boxing show. There was more headwork than you could find in a soccer game. Modern wrestling rules were as valuable as tin is for money.

In the third match of the double semiwindup, Al Morelli, resplendent in his Maroon and Gold colors which he wore as a Boston College as a football star, punched, and incidentally wrestled his way to a popular victory over Bob Wilkie of New York

Morelli had the edge on the infighting, but remembering that it was a wrestling match, finally won by an inside crotch hold, body lift and slam

CHALLENGER WEAKENS AND LOSES BOUT

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Two exhaustted human forms, bathed in perspiration, lay upon the canvas at the Boston Arena while 14,000 fans reared like thunder through a valley.

One was Henri DeGlane, heavyweight wrestling champion of the world. The other was Nick Lutze, challenger. The seconds ticked off. The little minutes in the balance. Neither could get up. Lutze, weak after a desperate effort to snatch the crown, was thrown by DeGlane by a top body hold. Lutze had won the first fall. He lost the second. This was his supreme effort.

But the skill, stamina and speed of the champion was too much for the slender challenger to overcome.

"I won't quit, I won't. God, I won't quit," moaned Lutze, as the champion applied such punishing hammer holds, ar headlocks that the eyes of Lutze were crushed out of focus.

"I won't quit." The words of a champion. But his strength was no match for his heart. Lutze lost, but his battle will make wrestling history.

SHARKEY, MAX IN TITLE FIGHT CONFERENCE

GOB AGREES TO TAKE 12 1-2 PER CENT

By JACK CONWAY

New York, Jan. 22—Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey are expected to sign contracts today for a 15-round bout for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Madison Square Garden plans to stage the contest in co-operation with the Milk Fund at the Yankee Stadium in June.

Jimmy Johnston called a special conference at his office in the Garden this morning, at which it was believed final details for the title contest would be agreed upon.

Johnston conferred late Tuesday afternoon with Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's pilot, and Joe Jacobs, representing Schmeling. Sharkey sat in with Buckley before the powwow ended.

Sharkey Agrees to Take 12 1-2 Per Cent

The Garden didn't have any difficulty coming to terms with Sharkey. The latter readily consented to accept 12½ per cent of the gate. This is the amount the challenger in a title bout is entitled to under the rules of the New York Athletic Commission.

Johnston then announced that other than for some minor details all conditions in connection with the match had been ironed out. Johnston declared he expected to adjust the matters in dispute at the meeting he called for this morning.

In the event the bout is closed today, Schmeling and Sharkey will each post a forfeit of $25,000 with the New York Athletic Commission. The New York Garden will put up a similar amount.

$25,000 Forfeits to Make Go Certain

When Sharkey and Schmeling last met, each boxer was only obliged to post $5,000. The commission decided on forfeits of $25,000 to assure fans that the match will take place before July 1.

Al Jim Farley, chairman of the New York commission, asks is that the tussle not be held during the time the Democratic convention is in session in Chicago. Jim doesn't want to miss the heavyweight scrap which he has had such an important part in bringing to fruition.

Joe Jacobs stated that if the title bout is arranged today Herr Max will sail tonight for Germany on the Europa. He will return to this country in the spring when he will go on a short barnstorming tour before beginning serious training for the Sharkey battle.

Youth Eliminates Jake Schaefer

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP)—The field had been reduced to four undefeated stars today as the world three-cushion billiard championship went into its fifth day of play.

Three cushion, the greatest leveler of billiards, took Jake Schaefer out of the unbeaten class last night and his chances of adding the angle game title to his 18.2 balkline championship seemed remote with tougher matches ahead. Young Len Kenney of Chicago conquered Schafer, 50 to 43, in 43 innings.

The Daily Dozen

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Sports writers claim that golf involves more luck than any other sport. Sure. You're lucky, if you can afford to play it.

You're lucky in golf for lots of reasons. You can find balls to play with, for one thing.

Football is considered the game involving the most strategy. Have the writers forgotten poker?

The sport requiring the most strength is held by the writers to be rowing. That ought to be right. Even paddling your own canoe takes lots of strength and endurance.

Checkers, chess and contract bridge get a few votes as sports requiring strategy.

We would reclassify chess as a game requiring the most endurance. Who can stay awake the longest.

Lenz and Ely put bridge into the sports class. It now comes under the general head of prize fighting.

Nothing is said about horse racing. Or is that a gaming device.

And what about tennis? Is that only a racket?

When Kid McCoy Made Placke Chuck Fight

The Blow That Finished Placke

This series of "Finishes of Old-Time Fights" will be featured in the sport pages of the Boston Evening American throughout the winter.

Today we give you the story of Kid McCoy's easy victory over Herr Placke, the giant Hollander, who came to this country preceded as a new Jeffries. McCoy won after 40 seconds of fighting in the second round. This one-sided fracas was held in Philadelphia, April 5, 1904.

By W. S. FARNSWORTH

Herr Placke showed what he couldn't do when placed against that boyish looking veteran of the prize ring, Kid McCoy. It took just one round and forty seconds to place the big Hollander definitely among those who look like fighters, but are not. After being hammered mercilessly, the big fellow, bathed in tears, refused to continue. The men had hardly put up their hands when it was seen that, huge as the Dutch fighter looked, he was as unfamiliar to the ring as a sailor is to Fifth ave.

The bell sounded for the second round. The Kid came from his corner quickly, failing into his peculiar crouch. Placke bewildered, threw out a shower of swings which struck nothing. The wily Kid waited to land a blow that would settle his man. He hooked a quick left to the stomach. Over went the right to the jaw. The giant staggered back. It was pitiful to see this great hulk of flesh, bruised, cut, slashed, blustering like a child. It was impossible to believe that this man had ever been a fighter. The savage ethics of the ring unmanned him completely.

The sneer on the Kid's face deepened. It was full of contempt. He showed no mercy. Placke's head wobbled, his great arms were helpless at his sides. McCoy's finishing blow was a left between the eyes. It toppled the giant against the ropes like a big tree felled. The Hollander had no heart to go further. He went to his knees wilfully, and, like a whipped child, covered his eyes and bleeding face with his left hand—and wept.

DE GLANE NEAR DEFEAT

of Colgate football team, and Pat O'Hara of various places, including Florida. Pat did everything but hit Murphy with an axe. But the Colgate star hit him a few flying tackles that made him think he was a Californian. The official verdict was, Macaluso winner by service of flying tackles.

We pause to remark here that Referee Donnell, member of the Norwood police force, should be brought along his gun. O'Hara almost stuck in our eye at one time when he was thrown through the ropes.

In the other semifinal bout, Jim Browning almost won by a knockout but he and Charlie Strack battled out with a draw decision. They put on the best boxing bout of the night. But they took to wrestling long enough for Referee Donnell to give a just decision.

Other results

Harley Hansen, Sweden, and Martin Westenberg, Tacoma, drew in 10 minutes.

Casey Kanajian, Stanford, Cal., defeated Lloyd Stewart, Boston, in seven minutes, four seconds, with a hammer throw and swing.

Pat Reilly of Texas and Jack Wagner, Providence, wrestled 10 minutes to a draw.

Jake Patten, University of Syracuse, was unable to throw John Spellman of Brown University, and so a draw was declared at the end of their 10-minute contest.

Another draw resulted when Al Reveridge of Boston and Archie Golembeski, former Holy Cross star, wrestled for 10 minutes without a fall.

Buck Weaver, University of Chicago, defeated Stanley Sidkowski of Poland in four minutes and 27 seconds.

Ralph Dixon and Charley Donnell refereed all the preliminaries.

W. G. A. CHANGES PROGRAM

Approval has been given by the Women's Golf Association to a change of program for the district team matches the coming spring.

The State championships will be played at the Andover Country Club, May 23-29, and the girls' Junior at Albemarle, August 30. The courses for the club pair mixed foursomes and the Townsend Cup have not been decided upon.

The State has been divided into four districts, instead of six and each district will have three teams of 15 each, with a captain for each team.

Must Finish Night Games at Eleven

New York, Jan. 22 (INS)—The International League will do away with night double-headers, under rules framed by the magnates in session here. Night games must be started earlier and completion guaranteed by 11 o'clock at the latest. Last season several games did not end until after midnight.

It was reported that Sam Colacurcio, owner of the Jersey City club, was to obtain financial assistance from the New York Giants or the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Winthrop Loses to Watertown Five

The Watertown high basketball team edged Winthrop high, 22 to 18, in the Winthrop gym. Watertown seconds were victorious, 16 to 9.

Gold and Silver Medals to Matmen

The winners of first and second place in the wrestling tournament open classes at the Boston Y. M. H. A. gym on next Wednesday will receive gold and silver medals.

A large corps of A. A. U. officials will handle the affair, among whom are John Waters, Arthur Mather, Tom O'Hara, George Myerson, Milton Krook and Sam Smith.

By BILL GRIMES

Before the largest crowd that has turned out for amateur hockey this season, the Boston Bruins will play the United States Olympic team and the Boston Hockey Club will clash with the Poland Olympic team in a double header tonight at the Boston Garden.

The double attraction is the best offered the followers of amateur hockey in many years. With two of the four Olympic contenders in action and the Bruins and the Boston Hockey Club tossed in for good measure, the fans will have their fill of hockey before the final whistle blows.

As a couple of the Bruins are not in condition to risk any chance of injuries, Manager Art Ross has drafted Joe and Frank Jerwa from the Cubs for tonight. Also, he will present Walter "Happy" Harmer, his latest recruit from the Montreal A. A. A.

Olympic Rules Hinder Bruins, Hockey Club

The games will both be played under the rules which govern Olympic championships. Although this rule will work a hardship on the Bruins and the Boston Hockey Club, the Olympic contenders are by no means the favorites.

Naturally, the Bruins pack too many guns for the Winsor squad. They are speedier than the amateurs and smarter stick handlers, which alone would turn the tide in their favor.

The Bruins will start with Art Chapman at center and Perk Galbraith and Eddie Burke on the wings, against Johnny Chase, Ding Palmer and Doug Everett. The Olympic team will only have five spares but Manager Ross will have no less than 10 substitutes available.

Percy Jackson May Replace Thompson

Although it is doubtful if Tiny Thompson will be in the Bruins goal, Manager Ross will play Eddie Shore and Lionel Hitchman on the outer defense and also assign George Owen and Tip Foster to action. Percy Jackson may replace Thompson.

Coach Winsor will have Hallock and Garrison on the defense with Farrell, formerly of Yale, in goal. Jos Fitzgerald, ex-Boston College captain, is the U. S. spare defenseman.

Jerry Cosby will play goal for the B. H. C., protected by Ben Langevoid and Art Morrissey, with Bob Nelson, at center, flanked by Red Mahoney and Liddell. Pete Sandford, Ed Keough, Eddie Dagnino and Bergholtz will be the B. H. C. spares.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

New York, Jan. 22—The bright lights are still burning on Broadway despite all this talk about a business depression. I find that folks over here have a much more optimistic picture of the future than was the case early last fall.

Ernie Schaaf came to New York with Sharkey. He will battle Paulino in a 15-round contest in the ex-Yank Garden on February 5.

Mr. Boston

Buckley has accepted terms for Jack McCarthy of Roxbury to collide with Charley Retzlaff at the Boston Garden on February 5.

Charley Harvey tells me he is going to match Steve Hamas with Armand Emanuel. Harvey intends to keep Hamas away from the hard thumpers until the youngster has gained more ring experience.

The Garden is considering building an outdoor arena, capable of seating 80,000 persons, over on Long Island, near the spot where the Queensboro Stadium is situated.

SOCCER LEAGUE TILTS SUNDAY

The Boston and District Soccer League has scheduled two games for Sunday on which Clan McGregors and Bird & Sons elevens will feature.

The McGregors will have the Dorchester Waverly provide the opposition at Faxon Field, Quincy.

The Birds will be opposed by the Hyde Park eleven at East Walpole.

In addition to these games, the State Cup replay between Boston Celtics and Swedish F. C. at Lincoln Park and the Revere Corinthians and Boston Rangers joust at the General Electric stadium, Lynn, are big attractions.

In addition, New England fans are awaiting the National Cup clash between the Pawtucket Rangers and New Bedford Whalers, which is scheduled at Lonsdale ave. Park, Pawtucket.

Petrolle Fights Eddie Ran Tonight

New York, Jan. 22—Billy Petrolle fights Eddie Ran tonight in Madison Square Garden.

TILDEN TOPS NUSSLEIN IN FIVE SETS

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

William Tatem Tilden, 2nd, elongated tennis wizard from Philadelphia, proved once again at the Garden that he is the greatest netman in the world when he has his back to the wall.

Before 5000 rabid enthusiasts at the North Station sports palace, Big Bill made a gallant comeback, after trailing two sets, to conquer Hans Nusslein 21 year-old German champion, in a five set match, 4—6, 4—6, 7—5, 6—2, 6—3.

Tilden Nearly Exhausted by Match

Nearly exhausted, Tilden admitted in his dressing room after the match that Hans Nusslein had given him his hardest pro match, and one of the stiffest in his entire career.

The victory put Long William three up on his opponent for the world's professional tennis title. The Hub was the fifth stop of the tennis caravan, and the fourth out of five matches in which Tilden has won. Earlier in the week Nusslein topped Tilden for the first time, in Trenton, N. J.

Tilden was reckless in the first two sets. He tried many difficult shots, and most of them failed to click. He was missing the baselines and the sidelines by inches, while Nusslein played a conservative, steady game and capitalized.

Tilden Rallies When Trailing Two Sets

But Tilden's recklessness was wearing Nusslein down. Then, two sets in the rear, Tilden started driving in his old time form. "Little Nut" tried desperately to win the match in the third set but Tilden carried too much power for him.

Then in the forth and fifth sets Tilden started flirting his fiery service and winning many aces by the German youth.

There was some dissatisfaction at the announcement yet most of the customers were satisfied for they had seen their full of tennis in the Tilden-Nusslein warfare.

The program opened between Albert Burke, English-Irish pro, and Najuch, champion of Poland. Burke won the first set, 7-5, and the second was deadlocked at 6 games each when it was called so that the feature match could go on.

Jack Delaney in Exhibition Bout

Bridgeport, Ct., Jan. 22 (INS)—Jack Delaney, former light-heavyweight boxing champion, staged an exhibition here with Vic Palman, heavyweight, last night, and was another step along the come-back trail today.

PERHAPS YOU ARE IN HIS POSITION

By B. C. FORBES

AREN'T MANY of use—though not all, of course—in a similar position to an important executive of a well-known company who, in course of conversation, told me:

"I felt everything in the world was going against us. My salary was substantially cut. First one and then another of my children has serious trouble. One of my nearest and dearest died. The frightful drop in securities pretty well wiped out my rather large savings, mainly because I tried to help out others.

"Misfortunes were coming thick and fast.

"Suddenly my wife appeared. Sitting down on the arm of my chair, she began to cheer me up, not by talking a lot of bosh, but by reminding me of a few things, but very important facts. It was foolish, she pointed out, to worry about the children; they would get better, all right. Yes, we certainly had had tough luck financially. 'But,' she impressed upon me, 'although the worst that has happened is that we are back almost where we were ten years ago. You are earning, even after your cut, much more than you were earning then. Your earning capacity has certainly increased. Your company has shown that it is well pleased with your work. We have never allowed our prosperity to make us extravagant, we still live modestly. We lived on very little longer than we have lived on more. So, come to bed, and realize that you and we have a great deal to be thankful for.'

"I realized that what my wife said was absolutely true. I thereupon and then decided to devote myself enthusiastically and wholeheartedly to my work. Somehow my troubles no longer seem so very terrible. I have ceased fretting about my hard luck and am battling with real zest."

Still Ahead Despite Setbacks

This man's experience appealed to me. I had been flirting with the idea of writing an article entitled: "How it feels to be a millionaire—and after that."

Don't many of us make the mistake of recalling only how well off we were in 1928-1929? Don't we neglect to reflect where we were and just what we had six ten, or a dozen years ago?

Isn't it true that, despite all the trying experiences of the last two years, the majority of American families are better circumstanced today than they were ten or fifteen or twenty years ago? How many of us, for example, then sported automobiles? How many of us had homes as well furnished as now? How many of us travelled half as much as we have done more recently? How many of us were then in a position to spend what we now spend on education?

Our national wealth has doubled and trebled and quadrupled. Wages have increased. Our standard of living has risen. Working hours have been shortened. Entertainment and recreation have entered more generously into our daily lives.

Real Wealth Mental Matter

Isn't it true that happiness or unhappiness, real wealth or real poverty, are very much a matter of how we feel mentally?

Let's cease brooding and resolve determinedly to battle with stout heart and cheer-spreading countenance.

Financial News, Stocks, Bonds and Comment

STATE ST.

Hears:

That continued delay in announcing some of the advertised good news is causing unrest among traders. Conservatives, noting this, have tightened their protecting stop loss orders. They feel the financial community expected too much of the market and selling by disappointed longs is a natural consequence.

The Bears

While it's nice to sail along under the impression that everything is all right once hour, it is wise to keep a keen watch on that face from which does not share the same opinion. As a matter of fact keep the hands of the bears sometimes contain valuable information. That's the case at the moment. A strong bear point is the good of Business in the United States as reflected on the stock list. The failure of the market to break when Anaconda Sugar and the Corn Products Refining were passed down convinced them that covering was the thing. Now as non-combatants they continue to boost the bear side. The average listener not knowing why they are reluctant to back up these views with actual commitments is likely to place undeserved faith in their prognostications.

The bears say there is nothing business to explain the strength of shares for a time longer. But they must remember that a snapback from abnormal levels may be more violent than the decline of the same table that put prices down.

Bond Speculation

Earlier in the week some of the conservative factors which can be expected to make bond speculation more active than in stocks during the earlier stages of a bull market were ordered. An attractive method for those willing to pioneer a bit in issues that been neglected by the public could be had in the purchase of the speculative rail bonds on a price basis of around 50 cents on the dollar. Many of these issues have been selling at around 40 cents on the dollar and have been ignored by the public. Should the railroads show any improvement in earnings, these bonds would be among the first to benefit.

The speculative feature is that if these bonds are raised to 50 per cent on the total amount of $23,000,000 would be increased thereon by about $5,000. That would give a gain of about 33 per cent on the invested capital. By selecting the right issue—the collateral behind the subsidy better run to increased value of course, reducing the risk—a profit of 100 per cent and more in the issues of your enhancement.

Boardroom Briefs

Informed observers think the profit of the railways overemphasized—but only if we see a reduction. A three-cent fare, for instance would be something through State St. Also many insider letter writers are hopeful that we'll catch this to the tune through the action of General Motors. Chesapeake & Ohio and the rail stocks are being grouped in with New York Central in the belief they are all Bostonians.

Wrenn Brothers point out that unfortunately the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to assist their power forget the pro mary purpose is to aid bond prices. Advancing bond prices certainly do not con flute inflation.

Seaboard Holders of Bonds to Act

Bondholder committee has been formed representing holders of underlying properties of Seaboard Air Line Railway comprising 90 per cent of the issues. Committees headed by Thomas Cochran, of Morgan Stanley & Co., of Boston, and W. H. Sargent, president of the Metropolitan Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Committee consists E. G. Rice, chairman; J. R. Kirby, vice-president Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Pittsburgh; Andrew Mellon, president, Savings Bank of Baltimore; A. H. R. Post, president Merchants Trust Co. of Richmond; and W. H. Sargent, president Metropolitan Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Committee counsels E. G. Rice, chairman J. R. Kirby, vice-president Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Pittsburgh; Andrew Mellon, president, Savings Bank of Baltimore; A. H. R. Post, president Merchants Trust Co. of Richmond; and W. H. Sargent, president Metropolitan Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Robinson to Head New Processes Co.

Lancaster Processes, Inc. has been formed to manufacture and to issue licenses to manufacture a variety of products made from asphalt and waste paper. In an announcement Processes which has been developed.

Thomas Robinson, formerly with the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, is president of the new company which has been organized under the laws of New York with a capitalization of 2000 no par value common shares.

Installation of officers in the Women's Auxiliary to the Boston Fire Department will take place in Satisfield Hall, 184 Dudley st Roxbury Monday night.

Those to be installed are: Ella Nicholson president Mary Mc Kennedy vice-president Hannah Mahoney treasurer Mary Mc Mahon financial secretary Mary Mc Mahon recording secretary and Helen Lee, sergeant-at-arms. Miss Dave elected.

Dies After Paying Insurance

Watkins Glen, N. Y., Jan. 22—Fred Hodge, 58, a Hockstream lab owner walked 12 miles to pay his life insurance and was killed by a train on his way back.

Dividends

Quincy Market Cold Storage & Warehouse Co. declared regular quarterly preferred dividend of $1.25 per share, payable February 1.

S. S. White Dental Mfg. Co. declared a quarterly dividend of 10 cents, payable Feb. 2 to stock of record Jan. 20, placing the stock on a 40-cent annual basis. Three months ago the dividend was reduced to 15 cents, from 20.

CAR LOADINGS ARE BACK IN LIMELIGHT

By FRANK H. McLOON

With the rails staging relatively good performances in the stock market, and close watch being kept of wage policy proceedings at Chicago the revenue car loadings reports are back at the speculative limelight. In former years Harvard and other economic authorities pronounced them the outstanding single index of general business activity. With automobiles compelled on a substantially rising factor, and the steel industry also contributing thereby available the steam railroads have lost some of their old significance.

Some investment bankers interpreted the loadings for the last reported week, ended Jan. 9, as unfavorable, because they showed a decrease of 143,626 from the like week a year ago. Associated Press financial writer interpreted them as favorable because they showed an increase of 68,794 cars over the previous week.

Secretary Rich of Standish, Baldwin & Baldwin

Letter writer for an important Boston house states:

"The loadings report was decidedly unfavorable, which tends to prove that the unseasonal rise reported last week was directly attributable to forced shipments before the freight rate increase became effective January 6."

Figures to be issued next week will help clear up doubts.

Secretary George A. Rich of the Boston Stock Exchange and partner in Standish, Rich & Baldwin, Inc., tells me:

"The main interest you is to know that back in 1919 a great many so-called 'sucker lists' came into my hands, made a rather careful analysis of them and to my surprise I found that among the purchasers were many who in the lists there was relatively more physicians than those of an other profession."

"The physicians came first, then teachers and clergymen. Why clergymen did not come first as one might have expected from their less business experience I presume was due to the fact that they had less funds to go apply.

"I have discussed these figures before some of the doctor's lists and not one of the doctors has refuted them. Indeed they generally have admitted the truth of them, and explained it by the fact that they were so immersed in their professional duties that they had little time to inform themselves on financial matters. Also, where their accounts were managed largely to being consulted at their offices, a smart salesman calling upon them was in a position to put over something in that line that would be impossible if they went out to the offices of the salesmen themselves.

"Lawyers, I think, must be most susceptible to speculative influences, but I think that they are less susceptible to the appeals of miscellaneous salesmen who call on the 'phone or call at their offices."

With the idea of seeing just how much "inside" dope might be in the "grapevine rumors" so freely circulated about desirable houses being chosen by them there was in a position to put over something in that line that would be impossible if they went out to the offices of the salesmen themselves.

$5,016,481 Profit for Kress Shown

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—The S. H. Kress Co. today reported 1931 net profits of $5,016,481, or $4.14 a share, compared with $7,362,906, or $6.16 a share in 1930.

Factions in Battle to Rule Big Transamerica Corp.

San Francisco, Jan. 22 (AP)—Opposing factions in the fight for control of Transamerica Corporation, whose investments in bank stocks are nation wide, counted individual victories today from a court hearing Here.

Superior Court Judge J. C. Goodall issued a temporary injunction restraining the use of Transamerica corporate funds to secure proxies on behalf of the present management headed by Elisha Walker New York financier.

At the same time he refused the request of Associated Transamerica stockholders, a faction seeking to oust Walker and reinstall Giannini as head of Transamerica, for a similar injunction against Bank of America, National Trust and Savings Association. He explained State courts could not so restrain a national bank until final judgment on the issues had been rendered.

The Giannini interests' application for a restraining order against the Bank of America of California to keep it from using corporate funds in the proxy fight was to use the court's language, "denied in part and granted in part."

"A ruling will be issued," the judge stated, "when I have satisfied myself with respect to how far the power of this court goes with respect to their actions." The reference was to activities of the state bank's employees. No date was set for this final decision.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

AS a guide, the rail group has been exceedingly satisfactory over the bear market's duration, including whatever intermediate rallies occurred. It is a fact that currently many of the most successful speculative factions are operating in rails, almost to the exclusion of the remainder of the list.

There was talk of a "celebration" on the actual announcement of the wage reductions, but a calm discounting of impending prospects would be more reasonable if the currently is to peter out as have all past recoveries in recent years.

Adams-Millis Volume Good

Among the hosiery manufacturing companies the Adams-Millis Company has enjoyed an unusually good volume of business in spite of the adverse conditions. It is reported on Wall Street that the company continued to operate profitably in the last half of the year, but is expected to take advantage of every possible write-off at the year end to reduce contingent liabilities to a minimum. The company earned $2.49 a share in the first half of 1931.

Market's Action Buoys Sentiment

Action of the stock market for several days past has done much to bolster sentiment in trading circles. The chief factor in this has been especially noticeable in quarters closest to the so-called important speculative element. These observers believe that the stability of prices with small volume most of the week is a particularly hopeful sign. According to their views this performance indicates the absence of real liquidation and the fact that former bears have discontinued their raiding to cash in the long being at least.

Reformed Bears Are Active in Gold Stocks

Group of reformed bears is now dividing its market energies between Amalgamated Sugar, on the board, and a low-priced gold stock on the curb.

Traction Stocks Show Little Vigor

Except for occasional brief flurries of activity, traction bonds and stocks have shown little marked reflection of the belief that the fare question has entered largely into the current discussions involving New York city problems. In summarizing the financial aspects of the transit situation, a large New York financial house declared that said financing could be done at a rate not exceeding a year ago. This previous the case in figures already published of two important concerns. The American Tobacco statement, soon to be issued, is expected to develop record earnings and a strong financial position. Recently the company reported that its cash and cash items exceeded $32,000,000 against $24,101,551 at the end of 1930.

Retrenchment Plans May Affect Utilities

Probability that considerable municipal expansion scheduled for 1932 may have to be postponed because of the widespread agitation for retrenchment is causing some speculative selling of utility stocks. The reason for this is that many of the affected projects would have constituted new sources of utility revenues. Some idea of the importance of the utility industry may be gained from the fact that total sales of electricity by the United States were 4 per cent under the year before.

Long-Pull Buying in American Radiator

Long-pull buying has been reported recently in American Radiator, the corporation having some market interests. The demand is attributed to the fact that the company has put into effect many important economies which have resulted in a sharp reduction of costs. In addition, there has been evidence of an aggressive policy right along which should bring orders to the company as soon as there is any sign of improvement in general business conditions.

Market Largely Professional

The market has been largely professional in recent sessions. Trading has narrowed to fewer issues than were dealt in while the advancing trend prevailed. The present activity also is confined to a smaller number of stocks. These are signs of professionalism which have been seen on numerous occasions in the past. Many of the floor traders specializing upon profits of fractions to a point or more when these are obtainable, resulting in reversals in trend so frequently.

Goodyear Prospects Remain Favorable

Interests identified with Goodyear consider the prospects comparatively favorable, they admit that the business depression affected the company's sales, particularly so far as new tire equipment is concerned, due to the falling off in automobile production, the replacement demand was satisfactory. It is pointed out that there is a greater necessity of profit on replacements. For that reason the management anticipates not such a decline in original business than in demand from individuals for replacements.

National Power & Light's Position

Wall Street bears that some investment buying has occurred recently in National Power & Light based on the company's unusually strong financial position. On Sept. 30 last the company had $8,000,000 cash and call loans of $8,000,000 with $5,000,000 in loans receivable from subsidiaries.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Whitney & Elwell—European nations could take every cent of what is due them in New York and still this country would have a remaining far more than its proper share of the total world supply of gold, and inadequately far more than we require for our needs, present or prospective.

Shields & Co.—In further indications today that the construction bill will be passed there should be more talk in inflation in sound rails. There is good part of existing hopes therefore, however, are likely to be disappointed if that quotion should be exercised in following matters.

Hemphill, Noyes & Co.—It is our feeling that the trend is upward and that stocks are a purchase whenever weakness affords the opportunity.

Edward B. Smith & Co.—The market should show within a few days what effect that will be worth while following.

D M Collins & Co.—There is no reason to believe that this is other than a technical rally.

Clark, Childs & Co.—Chances favor higher prices.

STOCKS MIXED ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Stocks were mixed in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with changes limited to a narrow range. Utility issues were largely fractional with Edison Electric, Boston Elevated and American Telephone showing slight downward revisions.

Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway preferred was a point higher at 6. Eastern Gas & Fuel prior preferred advanced over a point at 63. United Shoe and American & Continental Corporation were at fractionally higher levels.

Kreuger & Toll and Swift & Co. receded fractionally.

There is talk of listing more mill shares in Boston. Lawrence Industries Corp. has sold the Canoco Mills to out-of-town interests. Nature of the business is undisclosed but said manufacturing would be started soon and that employment would be given to several hundred.

Manchester, N. H., will receive bids until 2 p. m., Jan. 26 for $300,000 loan dated Jan. 28 and maturing July 20.

IMPROVEMENT CONTINUES

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review in this week's issue will say it, arding trade conditions in Boston that improvement noted last week continues in the shoe and textile lines.

Sampling continues in the wool market; buying on a decidedly larger scale has been quite general and a substantial volume of business was transacted during the week. Raw materials suitable for manufacture were active at firm prices. The fine grades of wools, choice wools sold well and the fine grades are showing some quantities. Carpet wools showed an improvement at firm prices.

New business in light weight goods for Spring has been one of the factors causing an increase in business. Receipts of domestic wool in Boston for the week show a substantial increase over last week's. Worsted yarns are sharing in the interest, and specifications usually call for prompt delivery. The finer yarns have the best call but, in some cases, spinners have been obliged to shade their prices to obtain orders.

Commencing with the staple lines, improvement in cotton goods has extended into the fine goods division. Prices are slightly firmer.

SPECTATOR

Says:

With the rails still keyed up, there is no reason to regard Thursday's generally meaningless price movements as other than a normal consolidation period, preparatory to further advance.

Increased Resistance

There is no getting away from the fact that the market is gradually running into increased resistance as higher levels are approached, but surely nobody expected consructive leaders to have the upward path all groomed and ready for their arrival.

Still, some ground must be permitted to give the sceptical faction an opportunity to spank their pets, just to see if there might not be something in the picture to warrant caution on the part of traders attuned with the bull side.

Technical Views

From the technical side, mention is made of the fact that the market has measured by the Dow Jones industrial average has not yet broken through the previous top on the advance established on January 14. Even a whirlwind campaign built around U. S. Steel and selected rails has failed of instill sufficient buoyancy in the constructive cause to bring about the bulge that advanced into new high ground on the recovery.

A survey by the Analyst has revealed that of a group of 17 representative stocks, 15 were recently quoted below their high or low of their 1929 high prices, and this authority goes on to state that in fact therefore be readily seen that most stocks are absurdly low, it is assumed that earning power will some time get back to the 1928-29 level.

OPPORTUNITY SEEN AT HAND

President James R. Bancroft of the American Institute of Finance, sees the opportunity of a life time at hand in the securities markets. He declares:

"We have been going on emotions long enough. Let's get on to ourselves. We are faced with just about the easiest opportunity to make money that this or any other generation has ever had. There will be more money actually made—there will be more fortunes built up—in the next few years than at any time in the life of this generation.

"This is the opportunity of an entire life time. We are not likely to have another. There will have to be a put world war and all its aftermath to create a situation like this again. At least we won't come for at least another 50 years.

"This is our chance. It is our chance to use our money, large or small, to make it work harder for us than it has ever had an opportunity before. This is a year of remarkable opportunity. If we don't take advantage of it and take advantage of it to the last degree, we are going to have a lot of regrets right down through the years. Make no mistake about it. There is a great deal of loose talk about opportunity only knocking once. But opportunities such as this don't come twice—in any one generation.

"Don't be fooled by all the talk of impending calamity. The time to have been scared was two and half years ago. We are now on the edge of the precipice now. We are at the bottom of the swing. It's time to get up—and start to climb again."

Fewer Locomotives in Need of Repairs

Class I railroads of this country on December 1 had 3,624 locomotives in need of classified repairs, or 18 per cent of the number on line, according to the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association.

This was a decrease of 14 locomotives below the number in need of such repairs on December 15, at which time there were 7004, or 18 per cent.

Class I railroads on January 1 had 3,982 serviceable locomotives in storage, compared with 10,290 on December 15.

RAIL BUYING PUTS STOCKS ON UPGRADE

New York, Jan. 23—Buying of railroad shares appeared in sufficient volume today to put stocks again on the upgrade, after early sagging tendencies had been overcome.

The market, on the whole, was extremely sluggish, but showed a little more life on the advance. Gains of 1 to 2 points were registered by Atchison, Union Pacific, New York Central, Missouri Pacific preferred and Coca Cola.

EARLY LOSS CUT

Early losses of 1 to 2 points were reduced.

The market was again dull. There was point or more losses for American Telephone, Peoples Gas, International Silver, North American, Liggett & Myers "B," Grant, Allied Chemical, Tobacco "B" and Brooklyn Manhattan.

Setbacks of around a couple of points came at the same time for the Atlas Powder Norfolk & Western, Interstate Department Stores, du Pont and Delaware & Lackawanna.

Engineer Public Service was up a point. Macy eased 3 points. American Can and U. S. Steel lagged a little. Boston & Maine and Vulcan Detinning rose a point each. Sterling Securities preferred was up over a point.

The bond market showed small, mixed changes. The bulk of bond transactions appeared at or near Thursday's last prices.

NO IMPORTANT CHANGE

Weekly figures of the Federal Reserve system disclosed no important change in the volume of credit operations. A reduction of $27,000,000 was shown for the week in the volume of reserve credit outstanding.

A drop of $7,000,000 in the nation's monetary gold stocks and a decrease of $6,000,000 in money in circulation, which was less than seasonal were principal items of interest.

Recent statements bearing on international gold movements were interpreted faborably by Wall St. The period was reaffirmed, both here and in Paris, that the Bank of France was operating with the full approval of American federal reserve authorities in its plant to withdraw a total of $125,000,000 of French gold balances from this country.

While probable developments in the nation's reconstruction policy were quite plainly forecast, the stock market has appeared to be waiting for definite word of actual ratification of several important projects. Bankers and other financial leaders expressed a high degree of cheerfulness as to their ultimate effect on American business.

Not the least important development, they said, was the unusually enthusiastic investment response to the dazzling offering of $100,000,000 city of New York three to five-year corporate stock notes. This financing will remove one cloud from the horizon of municipal finance and may pave the way, it was assumed, for similar retrenchment activities by other cities which at this time find their credit impaired.

Sterling cables opened off 1¼ at $3.45.

CURB MARKET MOVES LOWER

The New York Curb Market seemed to favor the downside in the early half of the session today with a scattered dribbling of offerings in the more active issues influencing a slightly lower level of prices.

Utilities were irregularly lower, with selling most persistent in Middle West utilities which was off ½ point at 8⅝. Commonwealth Edison was down 1 at 115; and Electric Bond and Share was a trifle low at 12. Other favorites such as American Gas and Electric, American Superpower, and United Light and power anchored around previous closing levels.

Cities Service fell off to 6, for a loss of ¼. Oils were extremely dull, with Standard of Indiana holding unchanged at 18¾.

Investment trusts were under fairly heavy pressure, with declines averaging ½ point each chalked up against Atlas Utilities, Hydro Electric Securities, and Insull Utility Investments.

Specialties made but few appearances in the early dealings, with Aluminum among the more active favorites showing a loss of ½ point at 37.

Cotton Lower in New York Market

New York, Jan. 22—Cotton, futures today were steady, 1 to 3 points lower. March 6.70, May 6.85, July 7.02, Oct. 7.25, Dec. 7.41.

Speaker before the Society of Medical Jurisprudence says criminals should be treated and healed instead of punished.

Why not turn them over to the chiropractors, who can treat 'em and punish 'em at the same time?

Wife Was Fat
No Longer Attractive
Lost Husband's Love

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper of April 4 in connection with a divorce trial that has attracted wide attention.

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do.

If you are fat how would you like to lose 1 and at the same time gain in physical charm and acquire a clean, clear skin and eyes that sparkle with buoyant health!

And gain in energy and activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for 30 days. You can help the action of Kruschen by cutting down on pastry and fatty meats and going light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

Kruschen Salts are a blend of 6 mineral salts most helpful to body health. Best of all, a bottle of Kruschen Salts that will last you for 4 weeks costs but a trifle. Ask any druggist, for a bottle and start to lose fat today.

It's the safe way to reduce, but be sure you get Kruschen—your health comes first and remember this if you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

Mothers... Watch Children's COLDS

COMMON head colds often "settle" in throat and chest where they may become dangerous. Don't take a chance—at the first sniffle rub on Children's Musterole once every hour for five hours.

Children's Musterole is just good old Musterole, you have known so long, in milder form.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain.

Keep full strength Musterole on hand, for adults and the milder—Children's Musterole for little tots. All druggists.

CORRECTION

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

"Last week, in the women's column was a little poem, and in setting it up at the office it came out 'Hearts on Tiptoe' instead of 'Hearts on Tipton.' We make this correction for the benefit of friends who tell us they keep these verses."

NAIL-ON-THE-HEAD DEPARTMENT

Our readers are respectfully requested to stand in silence for two minutes as a tribute to Alixer R. Van Doakes, who has hit-the-Nail-on-the-Head with the best suggestion for 1932. Doakes suggests that Prohibition Director Woodcock merely give no interviews for two weeks, and that the surplus optimism thus accumulated be packed in cartons and distributed among American business men to sprinkle on their breakfast food.

Jiggs Seeks Help

WELL, WE ARE GOING OUT SHOPPING SO YOU CAN BE ALONE TO MAKE OUT YOUR INCOME TAX- SEE THAT YOU HAVE IT MADE OUT BY THE TIME WE GET BACK
I WISH I COULD DEDUCT WHAT YOU'RE GONNA SPEND WHILE YOU ARE OUT
RATS! I'M AWAY BELOW PAR IN ME ARITHMETIC I'LL HAVE TO CALL UP SOME OF ME INTELLIGENT FRIENDS FER HELP-
HELLO- CASEY- I'M MAKIN' OUT ME INCOME TAX- TELL ME HOW MUCH IS SIXTEEN TIMES SIXTY- FOUR ?
WELL THE ONLY ONE HERE WHO WOULD KNOW THAT AIN'T HERE-
DUGAN COULD ANSWER THAT BEFORE HE WUZ HIT ON THE HEAD WITH A SHOVEL.

POLLY AND HER PALS

Calm Yourself, Brother!

THE NERVE OF THAT OPERA STUDYIN' VENTRILOQUIST TOSSIN' HIS EXERCISES INTO OUR HOUSE, DAG NAB HIS HIDE!
MI-MI-MI-DO-MI-FA-SO--
SO! YOU'D GIVE US A BLACK-EYE IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD, WOULDJA?
DEAR ME! I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT!
EVER SINCE INFANCY, OPERA HAS BEEN MY AMBITION, BUT I DARENT LET MY WIFE HEAR ME PRACTISE-
-AS SHE INSISTS THAT I STICK TO MY TRADE!
THAT'S A POWERFUL SAD STORY STRANGER! BUT ONE MORE PEEP OUTTA YOU, AN' YER WIFE'LL BE A WIDDER WOMAN!

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

The Business Promoter

LISTEN, KIDS—I GOT A SWELL IDEA FOR US KIDS TO HELP THE UNEMPLOYED
HOW KIN WE HELP? WE AIN'T GOT NO MONEY
SHUT UP SKIP—AN' LET ANNIE TALK!
COURSE, I KNOW WE AIN'T GOT NO COIN—WITH MY SCHEME, A KID DON'T NEED NO MONEY—ALL HE NEEDS IS A BORROWED SHOVEL —AN' A LITTLE TIME!
WE GOT LOTSA TIME
COURSE, LITTLE KIDS CAN'T DO IT— BUT ANY BIG KID IS SMART ENOUGH TO SHOVEL SNOW OFF A WALK—SO YOU JUST GO TO THE DOOR AN' TELL THE LADY YOU WANT TO SHOVEL THE SNOW OFF HER SIDEWALK—
-AN THEN YOU SAY- YOU DON'T WANT ANY PAY—THAT YOU'RE WORKING FOR POOR FOLKS—AN' THAT WHEN YOU CLEAN THE WALKS, THEN SHE CAN PAY WHATEVER SHE WANTS TO PAY INTO THE COMMUNITY CHEST FOR THE UNEMPLOYED!
DARRELL McCLURE

BARNEY GOOGLE

Barney's No Sleep-Walker, Either

NOW, BONS, I'VE HIRED YOU AS MY BODYGUARD.—I'D LIKE TO GET A GOOD NIGHT'S REST—— WILL ONE OF YOU SIT OUTSIDE THE DOOR? THE OTHER TWO PULL UP CHAIRS 'LONG SIDE MY BED AND WATCH ME WHILE I SLEEP?
OK. YOU GOT NUTTIN' TO WORRY ABOUT FROM NOW ON—SEE?
BZZ ZZ BZZZZ
THE NEXT MORNING
GREAT SCOTT! WHERE AM I?
BY GOLLY— IF THEY WASN'T SUCH TOUGH MUGS I'D FIRE 'EM ON THE SPOT...
HEY! GENTLEMEN!

TIM TYLER'S FLYING LUCK

The Secret Note

IT'S GREAT SURPRISE AND RELIEF THE LAD FOUND WHEN HE FOUND HIMSELF BEING SAFELY CONDUCTED BY TWO OF THE COUNT'S SOLDIERS TO THE NARROW MOUNTAIN PASS WHERE HE WAS RECEIVED BY THE PRINCESS OMAH
TIM
I DELIVERED YOUR MESSAGE TO GENERAL BERSHO, CAPTAIN, AND HERE'S HIS ANSWER! I CAN'T READ IT, BECAUSE IT'S WRITTEN IN THE ROMANCIAN LANGUAGE!
I'M SURE THE NEWS ISN'T VERY GOOD! GEE—WAS THE GENERAL MAD—OBOY!
I GENERAL BERSHO, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF HIS EXCELLENCY COUNT KARLIN'S ARMY DEEPLY DESIRE PRINCESS MARDOS INVITATION TO RENOUNCE THE GRACIOUS COUNT OF ROMANCIA, AND I, BERSHO, DEMAND IMMEDIATE SURRENDER OF HER HIGHNESS AND CONSORT -WITHOUT CONDITION- (SIGNED) BERSHO
YOUR HIGHNESS, IT IS NECESSARY THAT YOU, COUNT AND COUNTESS TOTALOS FLEE FARTHER INTO THE MOUNTAINS WHILE MY MEN HOLD THE PASS!
WAIT! HOW'D THIS NOTE GET INTO MY POCKET—GEE- AND IT'S SIGNED BY ONE OF THE GENERAL'S SOLDIERS!

KRAZY KAT

The Modest Mystery Man

IT'S THAT MR. MANKS
AND HE HASN'T GOT HIS BARREL ON - NOW WE'LL FIND OUT HIS SECRET-
YES-
OF COURSE WE COULD STEP ON IT, COULDN'T WE ?
Y-Y-YES WE COULD, NEH-HEH-HEH COULDN'T WE ?

President Prepares European Surrender

Apparently "there's a reason" for the sealed orders under which President Hoover's delegation to the armament conference of the League of Nations has sailed for Geneva.

The reason for all this secrecy is to be found in a Washington dispatch of the New York Herald-Tribune in which it is stated:

"The American delegates will be prepared to accept a method of partial budgetary limitation of armaments, as suggested by most of the European nations."

President Coolidge steadfastly refused to consider this method of limitation of American defense because he knew how unjust and dangerous it would be from an American point of view.

President Hoover pretended to support the position taken by Mr. Coolidge until after Congress had appropriated $450,000 of the people's money to pay the expenses of Mr. Hoover's delegation.

In surrendering to the demands of foreign governments, domestic pacifists and international bankers for a budgetary limitation upon all our armed forces afield and afloat, Mr. Hoover deals another body blow to the common defense of the United States.

The general board of the navy and the general staff of the army examined the budgetary method of armament limitation proposed by Europe and recommended against it upon the ground that such a method would ham-string the initiative and inventive genius of America.

Now the Hoover administration, on the eve of the Geneva conference, rejects the advice of America's ablest experts, abandons the position taken by President Coolidge, and supinely sacrifices American security to give greater security to Europe.

Europe will be delighted to enter into an agreement with the United States by the terms of which the armed forces of Europe and Japan will be maintained at their present high levels and those of the United States at their present low level.

That is precisely the sort of agreement toward which the Hoover administration is paving the way by surrendering to Europe's demand for budgetary limitation of American armaments.

Congress should and could have prevented this surrender by refusing to make any appropriation for the Hoover delegation to Geneva until its instructions were published, but the Democratic House declined to take this opportunity to protect America.

Now the American people must look to their representatives in the Republican Senate to reject any treaty negotiated at Geneva which provides for budgetary limitation of American armaments.

The Meehan Matter

Quibbling by the Council

Some ten weeks ago Governor Ely appointed Miss Mary E. Meehan to be Associate Commissioner of Labor for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

She had been for nearly twenty years prominently associated with the organized labor movement and was recognized as a talented and sane counsellor.

Governor Samuel W. McCall, during the war, had selected her as the one woman best qualified to represent the interests of the 400,000 women in industry in that crucial and complicated period when sensible and patriotic leadership and adjustments were essential.

For two months and a half, the Governor's Council has failed to confirm her appointment.

Now a public hearing has at last brought the opposition to her into the open.

Miss Meehan is not a skilled statistician, it is said. Also, she is not possessed of "a formal education."

This is disguised snobbery, nothing more or less.

On the one hand, we see Miss Meehan opposed by a half-dozen persons who state utterly superficial objections which do them no credit and which should bring them genuine regret when they come to appraise their own unfortunate attitude.

On the other hand we see Miss Meehan indorsed with enthusiasm by the American Federation of Labor, the National Civic Federation, the Catholic Ladies Benevolent Society, the Girl Scouts, the Brighton Women's Club, the Faneuil Improvement Association and by a host of fine citizens, including the employers with whom she has negotiated for nearly twenty years.

The Governor's Council should confirm Miss Meehan.

What the position needs is not a comptometer or some half-baked theorist but a fine and human character like Miss Meehan. Her education has been an experience of twenty years in this particular field which requires a particular training more than a half-dozen colleges degrees.

Our Model Prison

Norfolk Merits Full Support

A great modern prison is being constructed at Norfolk.

When completed, it will be a credit to the people of Massachusetts.

Unfortunate men and women will there be given a chance under salutary penal conditions to reform, to amend their reputation, to become useful citizens again.

They will no longer be herded like common cattle, as at Charlestown, amid unsanitary and unhealthful conditions.

Superintendent Howard B. Gill, in charge of this new prison construction, has made the following public statement:

"It seems fitting that some report should be made at this time of the manner in which we have expended the $1,500,000 allotted for this work. . .

"And it seems especially fitting that such a report should be presented through the Boston Evening American, as it was the forceful and persistent support by the press, led by the Boston Evening American, that made this splendid work possible.

"Of the total appropriated and expended, every penny has been paid to civilian labor, in wages and for material and equipment manufactured by civilian labor."

Here is a project which has provided the two-fold benefit of improving the lot and the hopes of our unfortunate people.

The present session of the Legislature should provide the additional funds necessary to complete Norfolk without delay.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Thoughts while strolling: The Lexington ave. entrance of the Chrysler building a age to a black coffin upside down. What became of eye salves? Broadway's "two bit" cabaret. Raymond Hitchcock was the first actor to brush his hair in the Will Rogers manner.

The vaudevillians around the Hotel Van Cortlandt. Which Wilson Mizner used to run. And where the "Gin Buck" was invented. That gang of old timers who gather nightly at the Broadway and 50th n. e. corner. And that sidewalk spray of perfume near Nat Lewis's shop.

Channing Pollock, a Washington, D. C., boy, who made good in the city. One-word description of Jimmy Durante—cyclonic. The crimson glow of a winter twilight. No new electric Waits' Way signs. Jack Kennedy has the biggest freckles on Broadway. Another of my favorite people—Bill Hamilton.

Lew Fields's daughter Dorothy. Precise old clubmen who make Sunday calls and write testy open letters to the Park Commissioner. And the old Delmonico waiter who drives an avenue Victoria. They say Ernest Hemingway is to reside in New York permanently. What's become of the trick bicyclist—Joe Jackson?

The former Winter Garden beauty with a ghastly face scar, Joy Forty crowd in front of the Somerset. And Pa ar. Ma Gerson's theatrical eatery hardby. Purselens clowns of the curb. And now and then a strutting midget Thespian. The musty dignity of Helen Gould Shepard's home.

The first of Park Row's reporters to tinge Broadway with romantic obsolescence passes with the demise of gifted Charlie Somerville in a Harlem hospital, coming to his earthly end a little abandoned and without funds. He was the first journalist to swing a cane and in his hey day was welcomed in all the bars, cafes and theater lobbies. After quitting The World, he wrote fiction for magazines and was rarely seen on the street he helped to beglamour.

Another metropolitan metamorphosis from real life: She came from a western town. A few weeks in second rate musicals and a midnight Connecticut marriage to a broker's clerk. Housekeeping in a Bronx walk-up, a baby, divorce. A cigarette girl in a night club and an engagement in a revue. Marriage to a wealthy lawyer. An apartment on the avenue, jewels, limousines and trips to Europe. A newspaper scandal linking her with a leading man. Finale: Sales woman in a shabby gown shop in a side street. The, too, there is the famous Winter Garden beauty now selling cigarettes at The Royal Box.

Maybe Heywood Broun's experience has slowed up response to autograph seekers. Broun scribbled his name on an extended pad upon leaving a theater. His returned checks for the month included one expertly forged for $500.

A "speak" in the Snooty Sixties is as French as a bistro in Montmartre's rue Leipic. The waiters profess not to understand English. This gives one-trippers a chance to try out their Gallic vocabulary before friends.

A slightly bleary youth, berlitzing those at neighboring tables, yelled: "Garcon, encore la Bacardi pour monsieur et une fin pour madam." And as the waiter turned away, yelled: "And tout it your snappiest, sweetheart."

• • •

Just Folks

The Everlasting Flowers

The everlasting flower is grown
In many a garden. Springtime sown
It blossoms in the early fall
And has no fear of death at all.

Its pink and yellow petals feel
Like highly-lacquered flakes of steel
Which, if you run your finger round,
Produce a strange metallic sound.

These everlasting flowers defy
The death that other blossoms die.
Stuck in an urn the winter through
They hold their shape and color, too.

They gather dust like statues old
And rattle when the wind blows cold,
Till tired of seeing them about
At last the housewife throws them out.

True charms are delicately made,
The loveliest blossoms soonest fade;
We pass blooms everlasting by
To cherish those we know must die.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Getting Along With Folks

DO YOU get mad at people? Hurt at their neglect? Peeved because they don't agree with you? Yes? Then here's a letter for you, whether you're sixteen or sixty.

It is the letter of a very young girl. Reading it, you'll laugh, or perhaps choke, at the sudden memory of your own rage. Those days when you wish-you-could-die-an'-they'd-find-you-lying-cold-'n'-then-maybe-they'd-be-sorry! Those long-ago days—Or are they so long ago? Aren't you still sharing little Polly's problem?

Dear Miss Elsie:

I guess there never was such a wicked, ungrateful girl as I. I have a nice home and everything a girl should want and yet I just can't get along with my family.

The trouble is, they all clash with my ideas. There is seldom a day that I don't quarrel with my sister and I am openly disrespectful to my father. I even quarrel with my mother who has always been so kind to me.

I don't know what terrible thing has come over me. I just go into regular tantrums and throw things. When my sister acts indifferent to me, I go to pieces. Then, of course, I am very sorry. But still I feel that I am not entirely to blame.

Why do they not show me more consideration? And why do they always blame things on me, no matter what happens? I am always getting blamed and naturally it makes me ugly. I am getting so discouraged I am apt to do something desperate. Please help me. What ails me?

Polly.

What ails you? Nothing, honey. You're just human, that's all. Of course you are a very young person, and part of your trouble is due to your youth. But the unpleasant truth is that you'll never be much different inside. You'll always want more consideration than you're getting. You'll always feel that everyone is blaming you for everything. You'll always have tantrums and want to throw things.

Do I mean to say that EVERY-ONE feels that way? Your father? All these cool, controlled grownups who seem so far removed from your hot, bewildered young life?

Yes, that's exactly what I mean to say. No one is ever truly grown-up, inside. We're all Pollys, little girl. We're all at odds with other folks . . . and no matter how exalted our status or glorious our career, we spend most of our time just trying to get along with other people. And usually failing!

But isn't there a cure?

No, Polly, there is no complete cure for human cussedness. But you'll help yourself a lot if you'll realize that the other fellow is just as cussed as you are and has just as much right to express his cussedness. You and your feelings seem very important to you . . . but they are no more important, nor rare, nor precious, than the feelings of the girl at the next desk or the boy in the next house. Everyone feels lonely and misunderstood. Everybody feels "burn up" when someone clashes with their opinions. And there's only one way to forget your own peeve, or heal your own hurt—

AND THAT IS, TO REMEMBER THE OTHER FELLOW'S.

And that rule goes for always, little girl. It will solve all your young anger and bewilderment and humiliation . . . it will stand by you through every agony and every trouble that may come in the future years. Everything that you are . . . everything that happens to you . . . is all a piece with the rest of human life. If you can remember that and act on that, you'll never again have trouble in Getting Along With Folks.

Are We Going Back To the Wallow?

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Boston Evening American.

IT IS REPORTED from Washington that the President, who "is known to have felt that geographical considerations should govern the selection of Justice Holmes' successor," has about concluded "that the selection of a liberal is as important a factor as geography." This conversion to the right idea is credited by the correspondents to the fear that the naming of anyone not a liberal will mean the failure of the Senate to confirm. We hope this is true. The American people are not in the least concerned about geography in the matter.

The two outstanding liberals of the Supreme Court who have had the absolute confidence, and even affection, of millions, Holmes and Brandeis, come from the same State—Massachusetts.

In view of the common note struck by the comments of the national press on the resignation of Holmes it is astonishing that the President did not realize from the first that it is more important to name a liberal on social and economic matters than to consider geography in the selection.

If a reactionary is appointed the refusal of the Senate to confirm would meet with universal approval.

Senator Copeland's Interesting Reply

There was an interesting discussion in the Senate the other day, apropos of the debate on the amendment to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill to permit the loaning of money to municipalities that are rich and have a perfect reputation for meeting their obligations. The bill provides a fund of $2,000,000,000 from the people's Treasury to be loaned to financial institutions.

In opposing the amendment Senator Reed saw fit to slur New York City and Mayor Walker. Many will hink Senator Copeland's reply interesting:

"It's no worse for Mayor Walker to ask help than for us to be giving aid to the Pennsylvania Railroad."

Senator Reed replied that he was not interested in the Pennsylvania Railroad so much as in the stockholders who bought stock to make money; and the answer might have been that there are more than 6,000,000 stockholders of the municipality of New York City; that almost a million are jobless; that hundreds of thousands of these are not worried so much about dividends as about bread; and that the whole burden of preventing starvation has been repudiated by the Administration and put on the city.

"No One Shall Starve in America"

The taxing power of the Federal Government is to be used in the interest of private institutions. Senator Robinson made a sharp comment on that:

"It seems to us to be most inconsistent to say that it is sound and wise to use the Federal taxing power for the aid of private institutions, but neither sound nor wise to use it for public institutions."

It might be put in another way. Why is it sound and wise to go into the people's Treasury for money to aid money-making institutions, but vicious to go there to aid women and children who are hungry and starving?

The debate disclosed that New York City is not the only great municipality that is having difficulty in making loans through the regular banking channels. Boston has been refused loans by the banks, and so has Philadelphia.

It is no answer to charge that these municipalities have needlessly squandered money; for then the reply would be that all private businesses that are in distress have brought this condition upon themselves by unbusiness-like and slovenly methods. Both private business and municipalities are the victims of a common cause.

And some, if not much, of the distress of the small governmental units is due to the obligation imposed upon them by the Administration at Washington to feed, clothe and give shelter to the unfortunate, or let them starve and die of exposure. They have done what the Federal Government has refused to do—tried to make sure that "no one shall starve in America."

Cities Can Do No More

Now most of them have reached the end of their resources and can do no more. And there are just as many starving children, just as many evictions from shelter, just as many jobless men in need of aid as ever.

If the smaller governmental units have reached the end of their resources; if the banks will not loan; if the Federal Government will not help; if, as appears to be the case, the contributions from individuals do not approach the need, we should like to know if these unfortunates are to be left to their fate by the richest country on the face of the globe.

The shocking thing is that there is a disposition to frown on such suggestions.

What of the Future?

Banks bulging with money; granaries choked with grain, and people starving! That is a condition that no amount of highfat sophistry can possibly justify to humanity.

Seven or eight months ago there was a more intelligent and humane discussion of the weak points of our social and industrial system, and more of a disposition to face realities and make reforms, than there is today. Apparently we have settled down to working out a plan, if possible, to sustain the old system as far as the men at the top are concerned.

The wages of the workers are to be lowered, that the dividends may not be reduced; we are to have deflation of the standard of living for the masses, but not for all the people, and the thought of reorganizing industry in the matter of working days and hours, and of insurance for real workers against disaster, for which they are not responsible, has been abandoned. The captains of industry and finance, who then were speaking of reforms have lost their voices.

This may work out temporarily, but what of the future?

Old-Time Arrogance Has Returned

Archbishop Fumasoni-Biondi has pointed indirectly to the lack of vision in the present program:

"I am hoping the depression will induce American captains of industry, with their great business capacity and generosity, to apply their minds and their hearts to the economic problem. Let them concentrate on the establishment of a just, durable social order and they will go far toward bringing it into being. . . . And failure would certainly be most dangerous to a democratic country like this."

There is no evidence that anything of this sort will be done or attempted. The most appalling change in the spirit of those who alone can act without governmental prodding has come during the last six months. A momentary fear of the Lord was put into the hearts of some of the financial dictators of America last Spring; today the old-time arrogance has returned. Never have they been more open in dictating to Government than at this hour.
